The International Live Stock Exposition

THE TWENTY-NINTH ANNIVERSARY SHOW

The Leading Exponent of a Great Movement for the Improvement of Live Stock and Crops

Encompassing the world in truly international sweep, the 1928 International Live Stock Exposition was world-wide in fact as well as in name. Alaska was represented; so was Australia. The antipodes of the earth where the farm has importance sent products of their fields and feedlots for the attention and approval of the visiting thousands.

Pages of agricultural progress are written in its history. Twenty-eight years ago this great institution took form. Chicago furnished it an ideal setting. Acknowledged then as now, the center of American live stock trade, Chicago was particularly adapted to be the central stage for these demonstrations towards the perfection of animal form.

The object of its founders was to foster and develop the stock breeding industry of America along useful and thoroughly practical lines, with a view to recognizing those animals with the highest awards that would ultimately yield the highest quality meat on the block.

Exposition Is Many Sided

How quickly their expectations have been fulfilled and even far surpassed, is recorded in the pages that follow. The International is no longer exclusively a live stock event, primary in importance though that side is.

With its mammoth Grain and Hay Show—its National Congress of 4-H Clubs—its legions of educational exhibits—its brilliant evening horse shows—its dressed meats displays—this exposition now cradles the progress and prosperity of a world wide husbandry, and crystallizes every practical vision for the betterment of American farming, in all manner of ways from the feed lot to the fireside.

Sweeping superlatives can alone describe the size, scope and surprises of the most recent edition of the exposition. Eclipsing all of its predecessors in actual size, both in the number of entries and in attendance, which estimates hold was larger than at any time in recent years, the 1928 session establishes a new high peak for its successors to equal and surpass.

Farm Youth Victorious

Stimulating in its thrill, surprising in its unexpectedness and at the same time signifying the beginning of a new era in history of the tan-bark, was the complete, overwhelming and spectacular triumph of farm youth. All precedents were swept aside, and the great amphitheatre reverberated to the plaudits and applause of thousands of ringside fans when a twelve year old boy, Clarence Goecke, of State Center, Marshall county, Iowa, was awarded the most coveted prize of the exposition, the grand championship of the steer classes on his pet Hereford.

Closely paralleling the victory of one lad in the open steer classification came another surprise in the carcass competitions, with more glory shed upon the camp of the junior live stockmen, when one of their rank, and incidentally from the same county of Marshall, in Iowa, from which the youthful feeder of a grand champion came, was awarded the purple ribbon in the carcass competition. Thus two of the most keenly contested classes of the fat cattle division of the 1928 show, which, according to Walter Biggar, the foreign judge of the steer classes, and other authorities, never was higher in quality, went to two farm boys, the oldest of whom is fifteen.

Interestingly enough, these winnings come not long over a decade from the time when farm youngsters were first admitted to the International competitions in a special class of their own, the "Junior Feeding Contest." At that time many were inclined to frown upon the encroachment of the boy and the girl into the agricultural show business, feeling that it was a man's game only. General reversal of all such opinion was recently witnessed in the sincere and hearty congratulations bestowed upon these two Iowa youths when their entries defeated all comers and were returned the victors of the fat stock division of the 1928 show.

The story of the most recent International "coronation ceremony" wherein new heads of the live stock and agricultural kingdoms have been crowned follows, written for the most part by the most expert critics and reporters of show ring drama.

PRESS PAYS GENEROUS TRIBUTE

Each section of the country early in the season fastened its eyes upon the great Chicago International—ambitious, expectant, hopeful. The best the Angus breed has to offer was well fitted and pleasingly presented. The 1928 International brought before the visitors, international in scope, for many nations were represented at the ringside, the best lot of Aberdeen-Angus cattle ever presented at this show.—THE ABERDEEN-ANGUS JOURNAL.

The spotlight of the nation is trained upon Chicago the week of Dec. 1 to 8, as the International Live Stock Exposition opens its doors to farm and city folks and to the finest specimens of crops and live stock that the year 1928 has been able to produce.—AMERICAN FARMING.

The 1928 International Live Stock Exposition was the crowning event of the year in farm and live stock affairs. The exhibits at this great show were many and varied and projected another rung of progress on the agricultural graph of the nation.

For 27 years the International has maintained the position of being the greatest all-around live stock show of the country. It is located at one of the world's greatest central markets for live stock and farm produce. It is a meeting ground where farmers and live stock men go annually to show and sell their wares. It designates the annual meeting dates of many different agricultural societies and associations. And it is a centrally located place for agricultural college and extension workers to assemble, demonstrate the results of their past work and formulate plans for further endeavor. All these factors contribute materially to help make the International the great show that it is.—AMERICAN HEREFORD JOURNAL.

Show's Fame Is World-Wide

The International is all that its name implies. Here come the Canadians to compete with the breeders of the States, and also live stock representatives of the leading countries of the world to study our herds and flocks, frequently to become buyers for the export trade. For instance, on the last day of the International this year there came into the Chicago office of the Corn Belt Farm Dailies a young man of wealth from Cuba for aid in making a selection of purebreds for export to the island. There he is making a beginning with purebreds, a pioneer in the improvement of Cuban live stock. The widespread fame of the International brought him here.—THE BREEDER'S BUSINESS, issued by the Corn Belt Farm Dailies.

Besides establishing a record attendance, more than 300,000 men, women, and children, the 29th International Live Stock Exposition this week produced a sensation in the record smashing price paid for the grand champion steer, which brought $7 a pound at auction.—BUTCHERS' AND PACKERS' GAZETTE.

The outstanding event of the International Live Stock Show, at Chicago, this year was the winning of the grand championship in the fat cattle classes by a calf club boy from Iowa. The calf club business has spread over the United States very rapidly in recent years, but this victory will give the movement new life and the boys and girls new ambitions. The grand championships at Chicago, which is the premier fat cattle award in North America, is not now too high a mark for them to aim at.—THE CANADIAN COUNTRYMAN.

The International is a great exposition where all kinds of live stock battle for supremacy, not only within a breed itself, but in competition with all other breeds.—THE CHESTER WHITE JOURNAL.

The International is a show that never grows old. Main interest is in the cattle, hogs, sheep and horses, and it is largely a new crop brought together each year to contend for the prize money and ribbons in a show that is recognized as the climax of each year. International honors are the most coveted of any in the live stock world. That is why the exhibitors bring here each year their finest animals, and also why visitors get a thrill out of it. It is the biggest, most important live stock show in the world, and every man who produces live stock will find in it much of interest and value to him.—CHICAGO DAILY DROVERS JOURNAL.

Is Supreme Court of All Shows

The world's greatest live stock show, the Chicago International, like other live stock shows and expositions, presents to the farmer the opportunity to compare the products of his fields and pastures with those of others. An International winning is never upset; it stands for all time. The Chicago show is the supreme court that decides honors for the year, and the Dakotas found much favor with those whose word is accepted as final.—THE DAKOTA FARMER.

The International is more than a live stock show. There is also the great International Hay and Grain Show, held in connection with it. There are also the countless state and government exhibits. Boys' and Girls' Club work has come to be one of the great features of the International, bringing an attendance of hundreds of boys and girls from all sections of the United States. Coincident with its growth and development, the International now serves as the hub around which revolve the most important agricultural activities of the United States.—THE FARMER.

The International is the largest agricultural show in the world. For the maximum in entertainment and education, it has no equal, be the visitor countryman or city dweller, woman or child.—ILLINOIS CENTRAL MAGAZINE.

The story of the International Live Stock Exposition is really a story of the progress of agriculture in this country. It has marked the development that has taken place in the live stock industry and in the science of agriculture. Annually for 28 years it has brought together all the best of the farm and feed lot. Many changes have taken place during that time. Changes and improvements are continuing in all forms of farming, and at the Exposition to be held next month, the very latest in these improvements and developments will be seen.—INDIANA FARMER'S GUIDE.

The International show in general was of very high quality in all departments. So called "tailenders" were few and far between. The educational exhibits sponsored by a number of agricultural experiment stations gave testimony to the enormous amount of practical and valuable investigational work that is being done all over the country by those institutions.—THE IOWA HOMESTEAD.

Another high mark has been attained in this year's International. The average quality of the exhibits is noteworthy. The cream of the East, the West, the North and the South, and the provinces of Canada are here for the battle royal. It is truly international in scope. Here new champions are being made and many former champions dethroned.—LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

It Exceeds All Precedents

Another International Live Stock Exposition has become history, and like previous shows of its kind at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, it has set a high mark. Old live stock men who have followed the show ring for many years declare they never saw anything like it before in this country.—THE MICHIGAN FARMER.

As it is impossible to see all of the International, so it is impractical, in one story, to much more than sketch some of the more important phases of this institution. Imagine, for example, the state fairs of Missouri, Illinois, and Iowa combined into one show, with buildings sufficient to accommodate 15,000 live stock entries and perhaps 6,000 crop exhibits, and you will have a fair estimate of the utter futility of trying to see everything at one visit of a few days. Imagine further, a monster arena where thousands of folks are endeavoring to watch the placing of perhaps five or six classes of animals at one time, when possibly each class has 30 to 50 of the best individuals in stockdom. Such will be a slight vision of the International.—MISSOURI RURALIST.

Agricultural America paid high honor last week, during the annual International Live Stock Exposition, to those within its ranks whose records of achievement in producing and judging live stock and crops, entitled them to such recognition. In fact, Chicago was the center of things agricultural, and thousands of people from all over the country, probably one of the largest crowds that has ever attended the International, were present to see what was said to be the greatest live stock show in the history of this organization, and to attend the numerous other meetings which were scheduled during the week.—THE NEBRASKA FARMER.

Marks New Sunup Era

The whole world gathered for the show of shows. To the old Chicago wellspring of live stock values we came again to contrast the early-maturing sleek little beast of quality with the slow-growing mountain of tallow that walked all the way from Spoon River to the market by the fresh-water sea.

It was the biggest mobilization of fine live stock and the greatest gathering of stock-keeping gentry the world ever saw. It was the International of the century—stockdom celebrating the advent of the Sunup era.

When it was all over, and a twelve-year-old 4-H club boy from Iowa led off the whole army of meat-makers, it reminded us again how knowing the old prophet was. In proclaiming the restoration of Jesse's shepherd kingdom, how he dramatized the units of the forces of animal husbandry by grouping picture words and concluding: "And a little child shall lead them."—THE NEW BREEDER'S GAZETTE.

The 29th International Live Stock Exposition held at Chicago, Dec. 1 to 8, has, as have all its predecessors, passed into history as the greatest pageant of the year of the aristocrats of the live stock world. These International shows, at once the battleground and the homecoming for the world's best breeders and exhibitors of purebred horses, beef cattle, hogs, and sheep, have hung up so many records in past years that each year it becomes increasingly difficult for the exposition to outdo in any way those that have gone before. But in spite of this, there is always something new, something to talk about and marvel over at each show, and 1928 is no exception.—OHIO FARMER.

The interest of the live stock industry of America centers at the International Live Stock Exposition now being held at Chicago. The event may well be called the greatest roundup of farmers and stockmen assembled on the continent.—OMAHA DAILY JOURNAL-STOCKMAN.

It is impossible to describe a show like the International so that those who cannot see it can get any conception of its greatness.—PENNSYLVANIA FARMER.

The 29th International Live Stock Exposition was an exhibition of agriculture's best from nearly every state in the Union, province of Canada and foreign countries. The aristocrats of the live stock world proudly paraded before the thousands of farm and city folks.—POLAND CHINA ADVOCATE.

As these words are being read, the 29th International Live Stock Exposition will be in full swing. The boys and girls are playing an increasingly larger part in each show, and they are arousing a greater interest with each passing year. Thus does the greatest stock show fulfill its great educational mission. The boys and girls who will be the farmers and farmers' wives of tomorrow are learning vital and never-to-be-forgotten lessons in live stock husbandry and in life itself.—PRAIRIE FARMER.

International Is Peak of Show Year

More than 4,000 cattle, hogs, sheep, and horses were exhibited at the Chicago show, which was established in 1900. It is the final great live stock event of the year in the United States.—THE RURAL NEW YORKER.

With the close of the International Live Stock Exposition the curtain drops on the live stock stage, closing in one of the most noteworthy displays seen on North American circuits in a decade.—THE SHORTHORN WORLD.

The most remarkable feature about the International Live Stock Show in Chicago is its high standard of excellence, maintained year after year. When taken as a whole, the International undoubtedly is America's greatest exponent of farm products. One's imagination is challenged by the great variety of exhibits found within its confines. We are told that it exceeds anything of its kind in Europe which, of course, precludes then the world.—THE SPOTTED POLAND CHINA DIGEST.

Always inspiring, this year's International Live Stock Exposition is more than ever challenging to the interest and the imagination of the American farmer and his family, as well as affording unusual entertainment and education to people from town.—STOCK SHOW NEWS.

With an attendance of over half a million people, the 1928 International Live Stock Show and Exposition closed after a successful week, Dec. 1 to 8, inclusive. Featuring this great exposition was what was considered by many who have followed the show for years, the strongest show of fat hogs ever seen at the International.—THE SWINE WORLD.

The International this year was a great show—not as it used to be, but greater because of the changes that have come in the last 25 years.—WALLACE'S FARMER.

Serves to Modernize Farming

Show windows of big department stores inform the public as to what are the latest styles in wearing apparel. The International Live Stock Exposition gives to the public the latest styles in beef, pork, mutton and draft horses. One might go even further and say that the styles in meat animals are set by this great international show.

For over 25 years the management has been constantly bringing the producer and the consumer closer together. They have come to know quite well each other's desires and out of that acquaintance a new type of meat animal has come to supplant those that were winners at the early Internationals. Today's steer winner is as unlike the one that won 25 years ago as is an ox unlike a baby beef.

No show has played a greater part in modernizing agriculture than has the International. Systematically the management has from year to year chosen a set of judges who have known what the buying public demanded. When these judges got through with their work of placing the animals in all of the classes they had at the top blue ribbon winners that filled the market demand.

The result of this consistent market type selection has permeated every hillside and valley in the nation. It has even gone further and left evidences of the handiwork of the International in the feed lots of other countries.

While the International is located in the greatest live stock market in the world and has from the beginning set out to improve the quality of meat animals that would come through that market, it has not been selfish. In educating the producer so that he would give to the consumer the kind of meat that was in demand it has made the feeder and breeder a better business man.

Probably few agencies have contributed more largely toward quick turnover in meat animals than has this great show. When the show began, 1,400 to 1,600-pound steers were common in the yards of most feeders. Today the steer that is in greatest demand is the one that is finished at around 1,000 pounds. What has been said in reference to steers holds equally true with the other classes of meat animals.—WISCONSIN AGRICULTURIST.

It can truly be said of this year's International Live Stock Show and Exposition that it was a success in every sense of the word. It can be said with equal truth that it was better than ever. This phrase, "better than ever," has been repeated by well meaning and truthful people for a good many years and perhaps it seems to some a rather hackneyed phrase. Be that as it may, the fact remains that "better than ever" applied especially well to the 1928 show. The primary aim of the International is educational; it always has been and no doubt always will be. In addition to being educational the exposition also aims to be inspirational and so far it has succeeded in both respects.—WISCONSIN FARMER.

Combines Science and Practice of Farming

Wonderful are the sights to be seen at the Union Stock Yards this week. Wonderful because science has come to the aid of mother nature in the development of the world's best live stock, on exhibition at the 29th International Live Stock Exposition.—CHICAGO EVENING AMERICAN.

The International Live Stock Exposition, in many respects the greatest show held annually in Chicago, opens today. Every man and woman in this city, every boy and girl, who does not go to the Union Stock Yards to see this exhibition at least once during the coming week, is throwing away an opportunity for enjoyment and for keeping abreast of the times.—HERALD-EXAMINER.

The eight days reign of the world's finest animals, the nightly horse shows, the equally spectacular displays in graphic and animated style of hay, grain, and small seeds, and the many educational exhibits that translate technical terms into the language of the layman, these features which make the big International this year more brilliant and comprehensive than ever before, are also attracting greater interest than has ever before been evinced in what is generally considered the world's most important annual show.—CHICAGO JOURNAL.

NIGHT VIEW OF ARENA

Shows of other sorts, entertainment of other sorts, may be had at any time during the year. But only during eight days of the year can the International Live Stock Exposition be visited. Beginning tomorrow at the Union Stock Yards, it will continue until the end of next week. During its eight days of existence, it will constitute an entertainment of unequalled value.—CHICAGO JOURNAL OF COMMERCE.

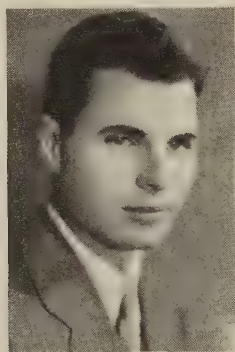

The curtain will fall tonight on the 29th International Live Stock Exposition, declared to be in every way a breaker of records and a maker of history.—CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

"In the World It Has No Equal"

Literally from A to Z—that is to say, from Alaska to New Zealand—will be the representational scope of the International Live Stock Exposition, which opens its doors at the Union Stock Yards next Saturday. In the world it has no equal. The world is well aware of that fact; hence from every corner of it where skill is shown and pride exists in the breeding of domestic animals, interest turns to Chicago, and ambition eagerly hopes that one of the blue ribbons for superlative merit awarded at this great show may be carried back as a trophy.—EVENING POST, Chicago.

One of the annual events in Chicago is the International Live Stock Exposition. However far the refinements of our industry and society may depart from the original beef and bacon economy of Chicago, we will continue to feel the proprietary thrill towards the products of the farm and the ranch. At least those should be our sentiments. The Stock Show which is to be conducted from Dec. 1 to 8 in the Stock Yards, offers the opportunity to test our affinities with the genuine, raw meat Chicago. We urge a large attendance.—THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Wm. E. Ogilvie

The Press Headquarters of the 1928 show was placed in the charge of William E. Ogilvie. After severing his connections with the University of Wisconsin last summer, he became a member of the International Live Stock Exposition organization. An invitation is hereby extended to all members of the agricultural press to become acquainted with Mr. Ogilvie and to avail themselves of his services, not only during the week of the exposition, but also at any other time that he might be able to serve them.

CATTLE DEPARTMENT

Summation of Cattlemen's Skill Seen in 1928 Show

By JOHN T. CAINE III.

John T. Caine III
Supt.

Years of intelligent breeding and months of skillful fitting made possible the presentation of modern type beef animals in all their perfection at the 1928 International.

The increase in numbers was not so marked as the striking improvement in the general quality of the classes throughout. The cattle, which were presented before internationally known judges, were uniformly good; they represented the most modern type of quick maturing, economical beef producers. After the judges had worked over the classes, the short leet was invariably made up of a uniform lot of blocky, thick fleshed cattle, representing the best of their breed for their age. Time after time the decisions were close, so close, in fact, that changes in alignment could have easily taken place.

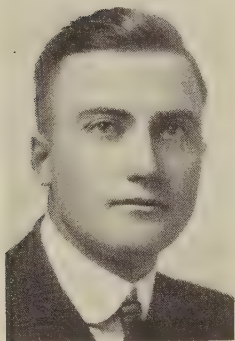

It was a nation-wide exhibition, with winners coming from the far corners of the country, and from widely different types of farms. The millionaire exhibitor was no more likely to be handed a blue ribbon than an exhibitor who represented the class known as "farmer breeders."

Nothing illustrates the full scope of the 1928 International cattle show better than to cite some of the home states of the various champions. Among the Shorthorns supreme honors went to Illinois and California, while in Herefords the West made a clean sweep, the two grand champion winners claiming Montana and California as their homes.

Aberdeen-Angus were more nearly Corn Belt winners, Iowa and North Dakota taking the purple. When it came to Polled Shorthorns, Minnesota and Nebraska claimed the champions, while the Red Polled victors came from the Gopher and Hawkeye states. The East and Midwest shared the top ribbons presented in the Milking Shorthorn classes, one championship going to New York and the other to Illinois. Ohio and Nebraska sent the two Galloway champions.

Ringside interest in the judging was never before more keenly expressed, large crowds thronging the rails all week. The judges who officiated in the various classes apparently gave general satisfaction in their placings. Little criticism was heard, and most of the decisions were popular.

SHORTHORN SHOW UNIFORMLY EXCELLENT

J. A. Watt
Judge

The Shorthorn show at the 1928 International exhibited more quality than the breed has ever been able to display in this country heretofore. So uniform were the classes that the visitor lost sight of numbers in view of the uniform excellence throughout the entire show. Yet those interested in statistics tell us that on very few occasions were there more Shorthorns on display than at this International, and there were not many more on those occasions.

The show was judged by James A. Watt, Elora, Ontario, Canada, a man who is considered one of the young men of the breed and yet whose experience goes back a long way in the history of the International. Twenty-five years ago he showed Queen Ideal, winning the female junior championship of the International. His firm showed Young Abbotsburn at this show when all breeds competed, and Young Abbotsburn was the supreme champion.

Large Ringside Attends

Mr. Watt's work was followed with keen interest and appreciation by a very large audience. He has added to his reputation as a thorough cattleman by the able manner in which he performed this great task. Mr. Watt had a wealth of good material with which to work. It gave him an opportunity to secure uniformity as well as quality among his prize winners.

In the aged bull class the great Roan Villager from the Baker Farms was the leader. He is a bull with much scale, combined with thickness and balance. Duncan Campbell, Moffat, Ontario, showed Thornham Minstrel, last year's International senior champion. He was not in as good bloom as last year, although he is a great type, very deep and on very short legs. He took second. Easton & Ward had out their great dark roan Collynie King Lancaster. He was not as bulky as the bulls above him, but his character is unsurpassed and he is a beautiful type. He took third place. Mathers' impressive roan, Dreadnaught Clansman, was fourth, and L. C. Oloff & Son, Ireton, Iowa, took fifth place on Marshal Rosewood, a dark roan. There were ten shown in this class.

Eight 2-year-olds were presented. First prize went to Singleton Farm, Midlothian, Texas, on Anoka White Frost. The John R. Thompson Estate took second on the flashy, smooth, dark roan, Maxwalton Referee. Rookwood Farm's smooth fleshed, well balanced Rookwood Regent was third. T. A. Russell of Toronto, Ontario, won fourth place on the burly Collynie White Ensign, and Mathers' noted roan, Dreadnaught Salute, was fifth.

Senior Yearlings Yield Champion

In the senior yearling class were some of the season's grand champions. In all there were eleven shown. The type and quality of Browndale Goldspur by Browndale Count decided the contest in favor of Edellyn Farms. Sni-A-Bar Courtier, a flashy roan, was second. Easton & Ward took third on Collynie Nonpareil King, a red of good character, by Collynie King Lancaster.

There were sixteen junior yearlings shown. First prize was won by Victoria's Paymaster, a very attractive roan from Singleton Farms. Frank C. Baker won second prize on Villager's Choice, a nice, even colored roan by Roan Villager. Sni-A-Bar Farms won third on Collynie Conqueror, a good type red by Maxwalton Miller, and Anoka Farms took fourth place on Imp. Bridgebank Marshal, a son of Calrossie Wanderer.

The largest class of the show were the summer yearlings with twenty-one entries. Davison Estate Farm, Davison, Mich., brought out a rich, very dark roan named Richfield Storm King and sired by Maxwalton Rambutan. He is a level, well balanced fellow with a good head and excellent bone. Baker won second place on the good topped, good headed roan Cumberland Stamp. Edellyn Farms were third on Browndale Monarch, a bull of excellent scale, strong character and with a very attractive coat of dark roan. Blotz Bros., Dodgeville, Wis., were fourth in this class with Browndale Stamp, a grand headed, burly looking red that is a son of Edellyn Perfection by Browndale Count.

Senior Calves Outstanding

In the senior calf class nineteen excellent specimens were shown. Duncan Campbell won first place on Mayflower Stamp, an attractive dark roan son of Blythwood Stamp by Browndale Stamp. Edellyn Farms took second place with Browndale Standard, a very bulky, short-legged son of Browndale Count. Third went to Anoka Farms on Royal Rex, and fourth to Rosewood's Champion by Master Hope, a Singeton Farms' entry.

In the junior bull calf class, nineteen were shown. Haylands Farm won first on a nice, level, strong-headed, dark roan of much quality sired by Haylands Dreadnaught. Edellyn Farms took second on the good, level, white, strong-boned Browndale Superior, a son of Browndale Count. Prescott & Sons were third with Broadhooks Victor by Edellyn Victor. Fourth place was won by Mathers Bros. on Leveldale Dreadnaught, the youngest calf of the entire show and almost the most attractive animal in the show. He is a very pleasing roan in color, has a grand head for such a young calf, is as level as a floor and carries his width uniformly from front to rear with his legs set squarely under him at the corners.

The senior championship was won by Edellyn Farms on Browndale Goldspur, a bull that is owned in partnership with Harry Hopley, Atlantic, Iowa. This bull is a general favorite, being just the type that most breeders desire at the present time and possessing with that type excellent fleshing characteristics and much quality. The junior championship resolved itself into a contest between Singleton Farms' Victoria's Paymaster and Duncan Campbell's Mayflower Stamp. The former exhibits a little stronger top, is beautifully balanced and has an excellent head. The latter is shorter legged and thicker, but is not as neat in the throat latch as the Singleton bull. The Singleton bull won. Browndale Goldspur took the grand championship handily.

Female Classes Superior

The female classes were just as attractive as the bulls. Eight mature cows were presented. Baker Farms' grand, thick, well balanced, beautiful roan, Supreme Rosebud, was first. Dorothy Anoka, a bit past her prime but still level and thick, took second for Sni-A-Bar Farms, and this firm also won third on the well known roan, Gloster of Wardland.

In the two-year-old class character decided the contest for Village Augusta 13th, Singleton Farms' good roan. T. A. Russell showed the thicker, smoother, white Lady Dorothy 4th, winning second place. Baker Farms' beautiful red Melbourne Missie was third.

Thirteen were shown in the senior yearling class. Edellyn Farms' great white heifer, Edellyn Myrtle, was defeated for the first time this season. Her conqueror was Collynie Rosewood 5th, a very dark roan by Collynie King Lancaster that it is practically impossible to fault.

COLLYNIE ROSEWOOD 5th 1468474

Grand Champion Shorthorn Female, 1928. Age, Oct. 25, 1926. Sire, Collynie King Lancaster 1279190; dam, Ravendale Rosewood 3rd 1346335.
Owned by Easton & Ward, Danville, Calif.

Both are great heifers, possessing wonderful quality, beautiful heads, ideal type and good balance. The Blackhawk entry has a little neater brisket and is a trifle wider and fuller in the rump and thighs. Frank C. Baker had a very pleasing third in the dark roan, Roan Missie.

Yearlings Marked by Quality

There were eighteen very nice junior yearlings shown, Baker Farms taking first on Fairy Rosewood by King of the Fairies. Russell was second with Lustre 101st by Matchless Dale, and Emery Larson of Harlan, Iowa, third on Joffre's Beauty, the latter being the winner of first prize and the junior championship of the recent Iowa State Fair. In the summer yearling class a very strong exhibit was made, sixteen entries being forward, and all of them seemingly very good ones. Singleton Farms secured another victory for Edellyn Missie 3d, their beautiful white daughter of Browndale Count. Haylands Farm showed a very typy roan calf by Dreadnaught Marquis, winning second place, and Edellyn Farms took third with Edellyn Myrtle 2d by Edellyn Stamp. Nineteen senior calves were shown, Baker taking first and second with Duncan Campbell third.

There were fourteen juniors, and they were extremely uniform, good-coated, sweet-headed babies, all of similar type. Singleton Farms won first on Clara 75th by Ballylin Rodney. Second went to Kalarama Farms of Springfield, Ky., on Kalarama Mina 2d, a nice roan heifer of rare quality with a beautiful head, by Anoka Rodney. Third prize went to Mathers Bros. on Marigold 36th by Villager Caliph, and fourth to V. O. Hildreth & Son, Aledo, Texas, on Highland Lavender by their celebrated sire, Lord Rodney.

As in the other mature classes, cows that are well known were the winners in the class for cow with calf at foot. There were but six shown. Mathers Bros.' Belle O'Leveldale had at foot the junior bull calf on which comment has been made above. She took first place. Singleton Farms' red Juno Girl was second and Baker Farms' Orange Blossom third.

Champion from California

The senior championship of the show was practically decided when Easton & Ward won the senior yearling class with Collynie Rosewood 5th over Edellyn Myrtle as that was her hardest competition. For the junior championship another daughter of Browndale Count was the contender and the victor. It was Edellyn Missie 3d, the summer yearling shown by Singleton Farms. The grand championship went to Collynie Rosewood 5th for Easton & Ward.

The showing of groups made a more attractive display than ever before seen at the International. The uniform excellence of the entire show was more than ever accentuated as the cattle were exhibited in groups.

Three trophies are awarded annually at the International. The Carlos M. Duggan trophy is given for the best two head, bull and female of any age and owned by exhibitor. This trophy was offered for the first time at the 1917 International. This year it was won by an exhibitor who had won it on two other occasions. The winner was Edellyn Farms, and thus the trophy becomes Mr. Wilson's permanent property. The Casares trophy is for the champion bull calf. Duncan Campbell, Moffat, Ontario, won on Mayflower's Stamp, the first prize senior bull calf of this show.

The Shorthorn Society of Great Britain and Ireland offers a gold medal for the best Shorthorn bull exhibited at the 1928 International. This trophy went, of course, to the grand champion Browndale Goldspur shown by Edellyn Farms.—By Will Johnson, Shorthorn World.

MILKING SHORTHORNS NATIONALLY REPRESENTED

Chas. Hudson
Judge

Entries in the Milking Shorthorn classes came literally from coast to coast.

From Davis, California, the Innisfail Herd sent on one of the most pleasing exhibits of Milking Shorthorns that has ever appeared at the International. Exhibits were present from Massachusetts and New York on the East; also from North Dakota and from Illinois, from Michigan and from Wisconsin. Visitors to the show commented frequently and favorably on the uniformity of the show and the excellence of the exhibits.

Charles Hudson of Mason, Ohio, was the judge, and from visiting about the barns after the showing, one was impressed that there was practically no criticism on the part of exhibitors and that his work was received with much appreciation by all interested in this department of the International.

Bruington Brothers of Cameron, Ill., were the largest winners throughout the show in the female and group classes. Alasa Farms of Alton, New York, won first prize and the senior and grand championship on their noted stock bull, Bessboro Musician, and took first prize in the two year old class on Anderson Matchless Bates, an attractive roan by Kelmscott Conjuror 3d that was imported during the year. This firm also won first prize in the graded herd group class. McLay Brothers, Janesville, Wis., won first prize in the yearling class and the junior championship on Roan Silver King by Arnigibbon Silver King, and Bar None Ranch took the bull calf class with Bar None Topsy's Model by Bar None Clay Duke.

Bruington Brothers won both of the female championships, the senior and grand championships on Brookside Satin 11th and the junior championship on Brookside Lass 5th. There were also winners of first prize in the group of three cows and first in group of two cows, yearling herd and get of sire. Olsen Brothers took first prize on pair of calves. W. S. Wood & Son, Rives Junction, Michigan, had first on yearling heifers and exhibited a very fine string throughout.

Milking Shorthorns are growing in popular favor and there is an ever increasing interest in sales and shows of this breed. The followers of the "red, white and roan milkers" were very much impressed with their showing at this International.—Shorthorn World.

HEREFORD KEYNOTE IS QUALITY

H. W. Marshall
Judge

The 1928 International Hereford show was no exception to the high standard of quality maintained by this breed for many years at this exposition. There were in all a total of 328 head that passed in review before Judge Henry W. Marshall of Lafayette, Indiana.

"The aged bulls were nine in number, representing several different types, from the overdone to the underdone in condition, making a particularly awkward class for any judge to regulate satisfactorily to himself or to those interested in the awards. However, Valiant Stanway from the Walter J. Hill herd and the hero of many a hard-fought contest, was chosen leader here. Thistleton Woodford 1st, the Kentucky candidate from the George Collins stalls, fresh from his championship victory at Toronto the preceding week, was quickly put in second place. What he lacks in size he gains in character and quality. Then Doctor Van Voorhis' Shady Donald 10th, with his 2,540 pounds avoirdupois, came in for third place, looking very fresh after a long, hard campaign.

"The 2-year-old bulls again numbered nine and made not only a strong class but a very uniformly good class. Again the winner was easily chosen in the Baldwin Ranch's Superior 62nd that was junior champion in the same ring one year ago and returned by Herdsman Stuart Cooper in great form. For second place, Ken-Caryl's Fowler Domino looked the part of the champion he frequently has been this season, a bull that always claims his own admirers. Third place was well filled by VanNatta-Murdock's Beverly Mixer 2nd, a very deep-bodied, short-legged chap that is improving with every show.

Senior Yearling Top Strong

"The senior yearling bulls made another good class with a very strong top end, led by Actor Domino from Ken-Caryl that had to put on a real act to defeat Foster Farms' last year's great senior calf, Foster's Anxiety 42d, that Bill Shanks has out in winning form. For third money, Benny Graves was right after them with his rather growthy Rosemont Braemore that has done wonders since first seen at the early August shows.

"The junior yearling bulls made a most interesting exhibit with Ken-Caryl's great young Sheridan Domino at their head. Walter Hill had a very thick-meated, strongly built bull with ample bone, in second place. Third place fell to Prince Mischief, a quality bull that the Saint Amour people intend to use in their herd for constructive line breeding on their Woodford 65th heifers.

"The summer yearling bulls had Alexander's Woodburn 65th, by Hartland Mischief, for their leader. He is a most pleasing well balanced bull of good lines and should make a very strong senior yearling for next year's shows. C. A. Smith's Garrett Domino by old Prince Domino, and a grandson of Largent's champion cow, France Lassie, held second place, and Baldwin's Beau Baldwin 12th, by Beau Blanchard 155th, made a very strong third.

"The senior bull calves were a very puzzling lot to place satisfactorily, and many upsets of former decisions resulted, but Judge Marshall placed them as he would want to purchase them, and no one will gainsay that Mr. Marshall does not know how to buy bulls that have won. Van Natta's Beau Mixer 6th, a straight, level-lined calf a bit off the ground, led the class. He was followed by Hazlett's Adolf Tone, very thick-set and strong in his quarters, with Baldwin's typey, quality Beau Baldwin 17th in third place.

"The junior bull calves were a much easier lot to place. Walter Hill sent in a real nugget in Prime Lad Panama 4th, and fitted to a finish by Herdsman Jim Reid, that led the way, but not without a tussle with Ken-Caryl's Roger Domino, by Prince Domino Mixer, that the judge seemed to admire much.

Champion Contest Keen

"When the 6-year-old Valliant Stanway, the 2-year-old Superior 62d, and Actor Domino met, valiant as the old bull is and always has been, good actor as Actor Domino before a full house can be, it seemed a foregone conclusion that Superior 62nd, great in substance, furry-coated, and strong in character, would carry the purple from the ring. For junior champion, Sheridan Domino, Woodburn 65th, Beau Mixer 6th, and Prime Lad Panama 4th came forward. This contest soon narrowed down to Sheridan Domino and Prime Lad Panama 4th, both being type models of their breed, but this was Sheridan's victory. For grand championship he had to accede to Superior 62nd, by popular consent the super-Hereford of the 1928 shows.

"The aged cows were led by Hazlett's sweet Hazford Dorothy. She certainly graced her position. Hill's Zool Panama 14th, that had the same position here as a 2-year-old, came next. Both are very breedy-looking matrons, just the kind we like to see in any pasture or showing. Saint Amour's Doe Woodford 13th, the Royal winner, has the advantage of scale and thickness of flesh, but lacks somewhat the feminine refinement of the leaders.

"The 2-year-old heifers were one of the strongest classes of the entire show. Here the last year's grand champion, Laura Hartland, led the way. She has been carried through with consummate skill by Billy Robertson, and the Hillandale people should be proud of both the boy and his young 'coo.' Alexander's Lady Woodburn 54th, another favorite from last year's rings, looking sweet as ever, came in second, with Baldwin's massive quality Belle Stanway 3rd contesting every inch the two leaders seem to have over her. All nine in this class were top heifers.

Senior Yearling Heifers Good

"The senior yearling heifers were stronger in numbers with 13 good heifers. Bessie Ann Blanchard was outstanding. J. C. Kinzer, who was commissioner to get a winning herd together for Mr. Hill, succeeded in coaxing Mr. VanNatta to part with her before the Royal, just when Jimmie Smith had got her in perfect winning form. A charming type, with no glaring defect, she went through to grand championship honors. Ken-Caryl's great heifer Cuba Domino, that has been such a consistent winner for two seasons, came next in line.

"The 15 junior yearling heifers were easily led by Hazlett's Ino that everybody knows is queen of the younger select circle. She is perhaps best described by saying that here one finds utility adorned by beauty, thanks, in part, to Herdsman John Blenkin, who mixes the Hazford Place bovine rations, for so far she has never missed a junior championship.

"Foster Farms came right back in the summer yearling class with a real one in Mamie Anxiety that held her place at the top like all the Foster cattle. She has substance and quality with it to spare. Saint Amour's Doe Avalanch 56th by the great Buck Avalanch gave Mamie a merry chase for first place, with Hillandale's Adah Hartland by Hartland Mischief making a strong appeal for a better position.

"The senior heifer calves brought out a nice class of 15, with Ken-Caryl's Freda Domino by Prince Domino 2nd from a Panama-bred dam taking the lead.

"Sixteen junior heifer calves made an interesting class. Ken-Caryl's Dorris Domino by the old Prince himself was very fortunate to get in the lead here over Hill's Sweet Panama 85th and Saint Amour's Doe Avalanche 60th by Buck Avalanche.

SUPERIOR 62nd 1470136

Grand Champion Hereford Bull, 1928. Age, Jan. 11, 1926. Sire, Superior Mischief 590259; dam, Doris Mischief 2nd 1176121.
Owned by H. A. Baldwin, Pleasanton, Calif.

"Matronly and attractive as Hazlett's Hazford Dorothy is, thick and deep as Hillandale's Laura Hartland always has been, when they collided here with Hill's Bessie Ann Blanchard, with a sparkle in her eye and a genuine beauty all over, they had to surrender the purple in Bessie's favor. The junior championship contest brought together Hazlett's Ino, Foster's Mamie Anxiety and Ken-Caryl's Freda Domino and Dorris Domino. Ino came through with the purple.

When Bessie Ann and Ino met for the final, both had character, quality and substance in the most pleasing form, but even then no dissent was recorded when Bessie Ann was declared the 1928 queen of Herefordom.

"The group classes were, from top to bottom, perhaps the most uniformly good we have ever had at the International show, with Ken-Caryl taking the lion's share on Prince Dominos."—John Letham in the Hereford Journal.

ANGUS SHOW IS BEST YET

Judge

W. A. Dryden
Judge

"The 1928 International brought before the visitors, international in character (for many nations were represented at the ring side), the best lot of Aberdeen-Angus cattle ever presented at this show.

"There were no cattle in the lines to bring shame to the men at the halters; even unto the last, they were good, and many outstanding individuals drew tickets with but little rating as to position, merely for the reason that the quality and quantity to select from was so far above that of other shows.

"The Middle West had its hope founded in Harrison & Ryan's great show and breeding bull, Escort Marshall, a bull of exceptional smoothness, one of the strongest top lines, plenty of scale, great depth of body, and wonderfully fleshed, a four year old by Earl Marshall.

"The West had groomed a son of the lamented Prize-mere 9th for this coveted purple. His name is Prizemere 50th, another great four year old, full of bloom and condition, nicely balanced, carrying a fine covering of flesh, of good type and general makeup. These two great bulls met in the aged class and the latter, the property of Congdon & Battles, of Yakima, Washington, came off victorious.

"The South, bolstered by success at the last International, returned with Ames Plantation Pal, last year's junior champion at Chicago. At that time he was referred to as a possible candidate for this year's grand championship, providing no serious accident should occur to him. Evidently there was no mishap, for he came back stronger and better than last year, in beautiful form. This great two year old son of Earl Marshall J. was good enough to win the senior championship for his owners, Ames Plantation, of Grand Junction, Tennessee.

North Is Victor

"The North had found a calf of June 2, 1927, in Hartley Stock Farm's Revolution of Page 2nd, that carried with him an urge toward Chicago. In the beginning of the season it was a fifty-fifty break as between this youngster and his stall mate. Later he came into his own and refused to longer share with his partner. In fact he had succeeded in pulling down at least a trio of grand championship ribbons before going to Chicago, where he won his class, defeated all comers for the junior championship and later met and defeated the senior champion for grand championship honors of the 1928 Chicago International.

"In becoming grand champion of the 1928 Chicago International Revolution of Page 2nd has created more history for a great family of breeding and show bulls. He is a son of Blackcap Revolution, the 1923 International grand champion bull who also sired Revolution 7th, the 1927 International grand champion bull. Thus the sire of Revolution of Page 2nd is the only International grand champion bull to have two

Grand Champion Aberdeen-Angus Bull, 1928. Age, June 2, 1927.

International grand champion sons. Judge Pierce said of Revolution Page 2nd, 'He is the most remarkable young bull I ever laid my hands on,' and Judge Dryden was equally emphatic when he said, 'I like him and think him the best young bull I have yet seen.'

"Future Internationals need not worry about having a suitable candidate for grand championship honors, for there were several other bulls, some of them scarcely recognized in the top rows, that will be there with bells on. It's a long time since better material was in the background. It seems that there is an improvement in the heads this year, too. For a certainty the top lines and the quarters are much improved over other years. It is indeed gratifying to note so many good bulls in reserve. Further refinement in heads will work wonders in the future.

Champion Made to Order

"No sooner had the 1927 International closed its gates than a feeder vowed a vow and an owner joined with him. The pair set about to fit an International grand champion female. They selected a very choice young daughter of Black Marshall 2nd and swore by all that was good and bad that she should defend the title for the middle west. Every section of the country offered its contribution in an endeavor to wrest from this buxom maiden any possibility for success. But all to no avail. Blackcap of Maple River 3rd made the big northern circuit with the show herd of Wm. Rowles & Son, of Onawa, Iowa, and finished with a series of big shows down in the states, some fifteen in number, among them the biggest she could find. Not once throughout the season was she denied the honor of going clear through to the grand championship of the show, and she was able to repeat here at Chicago. Nothing out this season could stop her.

"The junior division had prepared a goodly number of real outstanding young things. Congdon & Battles' Barbara of Rosemere 64th, a daughter of Prizemere 32nd, showing in the baby heifer class was a real dream. Sweet, true type, perfectly lined, a beautiful head and well balanced, she showed excellent form. She it was that conquered the junior set, and it was she that 'rubbed elbows' with Blackcap of Maple River 3rd in the finals, where the older cow secured the purple and the promising young heifer was granted the reserve.

"Stanley R. Pierce, of Creston, Illinois, and W. A. Dryden of Brooklyn, Ontario, Canada, served as a committee of two judges.

"May we suggest that next year as many as possible make it a point to be present at the next International to witness what undoubtedly will be the greatest battle in the history of the Angus breed."—Aberdeen-Angus Journal.

RED POLLS MAKE PROGRESS

H. J. Gramlich
Judge

Five full show herds furnished a splendid display of the Red Polled breed. Led into the ring before Judge H. J. Gramlich, of the University of Nebraska, they aligned themselves into a spirited competition for the leading ribbons in each class.

"Strength was especially apparent in the cow-in-milk class," declared Gramlich. There were eight pairs shown in this class, and when the signal was given for the ribbons to be presented the first and second premiums went to J. H. Aultfather of Austin, Minnesota; third to H. P. Olson, Altona, Illinois; and fourth to Alva T. Schickedanz, Chenoa, Illinois.

Cow Classes Good

Of the 19 entries in the single cow in milk class, Professor Gramlich was moved to remark upon their attractiveness in quality and uniformity throughout. It was another Aultfather victory, with first, second, fifth and sixth going to his entries, while third and fourth in line were the show matrons of Schickedanz and Olson, respectively.

Referring to the cow classes, the judge commented that most of the entries possessed large, well balanced udders, with teats well placed and of the proper shape.

The grand championship was easily settled upon the Aultfather winner of the aged cow class. She was a great type of meat cow, combining ample milk producing quality. Leona's Gay Lassie, a senior yearling owned by Adolph P. Arp, of Eldridge, Iowa, was a likable junior champion, while the reserve ribbon was presented to Aultfather on a very tidy junior yearling.

Veteran Winner Heads Bulls

Five aged bulls lined up with Arp's entry, Leona's True Lad at the head. He later went on to the senior and grand championship. Second went to Olson, third to Aultfather, fourth to Schickedanz, and fifth to Roy Tapper & Sons, Monona, Iowa.

The headliner of this class, Leona's True Lad, has a brilliant record to his credit at the past four Internationals. Starting in as a senior calf in 1925, he won second in class. Coming back in 1926 as a senior yearling, he topped that class and was good enough to win the junior championship. Returning as a three year old he not only swept his class but the senior and grand championship as well. As an aged bull at the 1928 exposition, he duplicated these honors.

Aultfather's two year old bull, Model Advancer, was class leader, while Olson's entry, National Lad, won over two other senior yearlings. Aultfather was again successful in the junior yearling class on Clover Lawn Butter Van, while the next class uncovered the junior champion in Arp's senior calf, Leona's Lad. He is from the same dam as the grand champion bull. Arp's junior bull calf, Marham Lad 17th, a son of the grand champion, was reserve junior champion.

Group Honors Divided

Seven gets of sire were shown, and that coveted prize went to Olson. Arp's aged herd won, while Aultfather's yearling herd topped this group. The junior and reserve champion bulls, shown by Arp, made the most appealing bid for the blue in the class for pair of calves. Similarly, this Iowa breeder's two junior champions, a son and daughter of Leona Lassie, were an outstanding combination in the produce of cow class.

The Red Polled breed has been coming to the front rapidly of late, and the fine display which breeders brought forward at the 1928 International is a testimonial of the splendid development that has occurred.

THREE GALLOWAY HERDS SHARE HONORS

H. R. Smith
Judge

Three Galloway herds faced Judge H. R. Smith, of Chicago, when the classes of this breed were called to the tanbark. Important ribbons went to all three.

The groups were dominated by the formations of Paul Wolph's show herd from Avoca, Nebraska, which won all but the aged herd lineup. The latter was topped by the entries of Frantz Brothers of Mt. Cory, Ohio.

Blue ribbons were quite evenly distributed in the bull classes, four going to Wolph, two to Frantz Brothers, and three to Mrs. James Frantz & Sons, also of Mt. Cory. The male championships went to Mrs. Frantz on her two year old contender for senior honors, while Wolph's toppy junior yearling bull was designated junior and grand champion.

Frantz Brothers' show matrons dominated the female classes with six blue ribbons to their credit, while one each went to Wolph and Mrs. Frantz & Sons. Both senior and grand championships, as well as the junior purple, went to Frantz Brothers, the grand championship being placed upon their aged cow, Lillian 8th, and the junior on their junior yearling heifer, Norma F. 3d.

POLLED SHORTHORN EXHIBIT PRAISED

Frank Brown
Judge

One did not have to follow the work of Judge Frank Brown in the International Polled Shorthorn show very long before coming to the conclusion that the top animals in each class were going to be of one type and that all were going to be good handlers. Some animals that had been at the top in other shows suffered setbacks here, because they lacked the handling qualities that this judge seemed to be seeking.

It was a good show of Polled Shorthorns and in quality it was perhaps the best that has yet appeared at an International in Polled classes. The four champions are indeed a worthy group for breeders to use as their standard of quality and type.

Very significant was the part played by the great Lord Collynie in this 1928 International. He put in his appearance in the aged bull class and looked finer than ever. Bert Hanson, Mankota, Minnesota, his exhibitor, has used him heavily but has done a great job of developing him to his four year old form. His remarkable depth of body, spread of rib, length of quarter, shortness of leg and thickness of flesh, and his ability to reproduce these desirable characteristics in his calves, make him one of the greatest Polled Shorthorn bulls. He was a popular senior and grand champion.

Champion Sires Winners

Lord Collynie was bred by Albert Hultine & Sons and used by them until he was sold to Bert Hanson as a two year old, after winning the International grand championship in 1926. That he did great service in the Hultine herd is evidenced by the fact that his son, Collynie's Type, equally as promising an individual, easily won junior championship of the 1928 International for Hultine & Son, Saronville, Nebraska. It is worthy of note that Mr. Hanson's other famous herd sire, Royal Marshal, stood second in the aged bull class.

Oakwood Radium, the very deep bodied, thick meated son of Royal Count, Jr., shown by C. B. Teegardin & Sons of Duvall, Ohio, that has been a consistent winner at Eastern fairs this year, was the first prize winner in the two year old bull class. The senior yearling class was headed by two of the best bulls of the show. John Clamme, of Upland, Indiana, was in first position with Rosewood Renown, last year's International junior champion, and everyone agreed that he is even better now than when he won this high honor. We prophesy that he will be a hard bull to best in mature form. Second to him in class was Village Sultan, a squarely made, short legged son of Royal Sultan exhibited by Miller & Sons, Mulberry, Indiana.

The sons of Royal Marshall continue to win high honors for Hanson. The junior yearling class was headed by one of them, Royal Marshall 3d. C. B. Teegardin & Sons have produced a remarkable bull in Oakwood Rodney, and he won first prize handily in the senior calf class, one of the strongest bull classes of the show. He is a son of the 1927 International grand champion Oakwood Baron and speaks well for the breeding ability of his illustrious sire.

The blood of Lord Collynie again came to the front in the junior calf class when Bert Hanson won first on Shadybrook Monarch, a rich roan son that gives promise of maturing into a wonderful bull. He is to be retained by Mr. Hanson for service in the herd.

Sons, came back and headed the class for dry cows. The next two classes were headed by two of the best females that have graced the International arena in years, both representatives of the Hultine herd. Lady Dale, a red daughter of Mardale, won first in the two year old class and is good enough to be a champion most anywhere. Hultine's Gloster Countess 9th, the white daughter of the same sire, that topped the senior yearling class, is a marvel for character, quality, style and smoothness of flesh. She was later elevated to grand championship of the show.

The junior yearling class contained the junior champion, Blossom Time, a beautifully moulded, deep bodied, short legged, compact light roan daughter of Matchless Stamp exhibited by Elm Grove Farm, Belvidere, Tennessee. For this high honor she had to compete with three well-nigh perfect heifers that had topped the other younger classes.

One of them was the dark roan Lady Marshall 2d exhibited by Marlowe Mitchell of Amlin, Ohio, that was good enough to win junior and grand championship at the Ohio State Fair this year. Another was Lancaster Maid 25th, a flashy rich roan that won first prize in the senior calf class for Ranck & Sons, Roann, Indiana. The third was Lavender Baroness, Teegardin's first prize junior calf, a fine roan by Oakwood Baron.

Teegardin & Sons have made the enviable record of undefeated aged herd in the 1928 shows, their well matched group winning at the International. Hultine won the yearling herd class and Teegardin & Sons again won first in the pair of calves and get of sire classes. Their first prize International get was sired by Royal Count Jr.—By Hal Longley, Shorthorn World.

FIRST PRIZE POLLED SHORTHORN AGED HERD, 1928

Owned by C. B. Teegardin & Sons, Duvall, Ohio

FAT CATTLE SHOW SPOTLIGHTS YOUTH

Walter Biggar
Judge

The "red thread" of the 1928 International bullock show was the victory of a 12-year-old boy in defeating all comers for the coveted steer grand championship. He accomplished the feat which many expert feeders and experienced breeders have aspired to, but few have accomplished, with his pet steer, "Dick."

For a number of years, calves owned by 4-H Club members have been allowed to compete with entries from the larger breeding and feeding herds of the country, in the open steer classes, but the 1928 grand champion steer is the first one to come up from the ranks of these junior farmers.

Biggar Judges Again

The selections in the fat cattle classes were again made by that leading authority on fat cattle, Walter Biggar, of Dalbeattie, Scotland, who for the fourth time has crossed the Atlantic at International time for the specific purpose of tying the ribbons in the steer classes. "This, his fourth year of work, was just as satisfactory in every way as his previous appearances have been. In all of his work, regardless of breed, he picked the low-set, thick, compact type, selecting those which carried a goodly amount of firm, yet mellow fleshing. He adhered to his standards so closely that ringside spectators could easily follow his placings and could gain a great deal of knowledge about fat cattle in so doing."—Iowa Homestead.

In reviewing the fat cattle classes, the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal prints the following pointed comment: "For the first time in several years, real prime beef had its inning.

"All four of the breed champions and the grand champion and reserve grand champion were well ripened yearlings, weighing from 1,150 to 1,200 pounds. For several years calves have been leading the way. The change made this year is in the right direction. It more nearly meets the needs of the consumer and is much more practical and profitable from the producer's standpoint. It means the consumption of more grain, grass, and roughage and less dependence upon the nurse cow."

Tops Meet Here

This paper further says, "The steer show was from first to last a quality exhibit. It was a meeting of the tops. The classes were large and the quality extended well down the line in most instances."

The showing of grades and crossbreeds was larger than any of the breed lineups and brought out some of the better individuals of the fat steer classes. Their ranks numbered 156 head. Among the purebred fat steer exhibits, Herefords were first in numbers, with 118, and following in the order of their representation were Aberdeen-Angus, with 111 head; Shorthorns, 94; Polled Shorthorns, 17; Red Polled, 14, and Galloways, 5.

SHORTHORN STANDARDS UPHELD

The Shorthorn fat classes again upheld the same quality standards which they have maintained on so high a basis throughout the history of the International.

To the University of Illinois went the championship, on their junior yearling steer, King Illini, by King Dreadnaught 2d, and out of one of the college's good matrons, Memory's Nonpareil. The reserve champion winner was the Michigan Agricultural College, with their junior calf, College Champion, sired by Edellyn Marshall and from Sultan's Mayflower.

In the group class of three steers or heifers, the Illinois entries were again the victors on a threesome consisting of the champion steer, the sixth prize junior yearling, and the fourth prize calf. All were the get of the college herd sire, King Dreadnaught 2d.

Both the summer yearling and senior calf tops went to a 4-H Club girl, Beulah Larson, of Harlan, Iowa. Particular commendation is due her double victory, since in both classes she had as her competitors the leading college and professional feeders.

HEREFORD SHOW BRIMS QUALITY

The Hereford fat classes lined up to the number of 118 head.

"Eighteen junior yearlings were a nice class that for the most part were fairly uniform in quality, so far as the winners were concerned. To head the list the University of Wisconsin's Lad was first choice—a rare type of Hereford, well balanced, very compact, but most too firm in his handling, also a bit uneven on his ribs, but well covered over his top.

"The University of West Virginia sent forward Lawn Fairfax, whose name indicates his breeding. This steer had more stretch and scale than the winner, with a pleasing top from a ringside view. Hillandale's Suitable, that looked a bit riper and thicker on his top, held second place quite a while, but Judge Biggar found what the gallery folks could not see, and doubtless was correct in his rating.

Summer Yearlings Choice

The summer yearling steers were a strong class of 23 with a lot of real choice material, but Clarence Goecke's entry, that had been champion of the junior feeding contest on Saturday, was a prime favorite with the talent, and his great wealth of natural flesh, so smoothly laid, soon found favor with the Scotch judge. Dick, the youngster owned winner, was very ably shown by Emma Goecke, the 17-year-old sister of Clarence. The perfect concord between them was beautiful to behold in any ring. Dick was sired by Master Repeater, and his dam, Betty Dismora, makes him a double Disturber.

For second honors, Michigan State College won out on Good Enough, correctly named, for his good head and strong back made him look good enough to win in any other company. The University of West Virginia had another good one in third place, a half-brother to the steer in the former class and bred much the same.

The senior steer calves also numbered 23, and the real strength of the Hereford steer exhibit was now on parade with two outstanding steers in the lot. Bruce Domino 5th, the Omaha show champion, shown by the Iowa State College, and Muscatine 2d, the American Royal champion, shown by Hillandale Farm, Muscatine, Iowa, met for the second and final time in mortal combat, both showing in rare form and grand specimens of the breed, fitted to a turn. Judge Biggar looked long and wistfully, walked them and handled them very judicially, giving the talent the impression that to him they were so nearly equal that he wished one of them had been in some other class, but it was Bruce Domino's day to win, and none to gainsay he had not earned it, much, perhaps, as the supporters of Muscatine 2d wanted to see him win out. Bruce Domino 5th carried one cross of Disturber, while Muscatine 2d was, like Dick, the grand champion steer, a doublebred Disturber. Walter Hill had in third place a grand, thick calf in Paragon Panama.

Only eight junior steer calves trod the tanbark, but with a real leader in Purdue University's Beau Paladin, a deep, wide, soggy chap that proved an easy winner. Iowa College came again with another well grown Bruce Domino, Hillandale following with another Repeater.

Youth Wins Purple

Clarence Goecke's steer was made champion Hereford, and Iowa College had the reserve champion in Bruce Domino 5th.

In breeds by ages it was Hereford year for Iowa. In the yearling division, the 12-year-old Clarence Goecke held the winning hand with Dick, champion Hereford and champion of the junior feeding contest. Clarence is a great boy, a gentleman and a true sportsman, allowing his sister Emma, who had been his tutor in his feeding operations, to show his champion pet.

For steers under one year, Bruce Domino 5th from the Iowa College, won out over some lusty Angus and Short-horns.

DODDIE CHAMPIONS TO IOWA

The Aberdeen-Angus steer show was one of the strongest fat cattle exhibits, both in numbers and in quality, ever held at Chicago.

In this show, Iowa State College won three of the four firsts and also took the breed and reserve breed championships on their junior yearling, College Prince, and their senior calf, College Thickset, respectively. These two steers and the summer yearling winner, College Knight, the third member of Iowa's first prize winning trio, made up the blue ribbon Angus steer herd and the grand champion steer herd of the show.

Briarcliff Farms, Inc., Pine Plains, New York, were close contenders to the Iowa State College for top honors throughout, while F. L. Bateman, of Barrington, Illinois, succeeded in defeating the Hawkeye institution in the junior calf class with his January calf, Trader Horn.

FAT GALLOWAYS FROM TWO HERDS

The Galloway steer exhibit was very light and there should have been a much stronger representation. It is difficult to understand why more of the breeders of Galloway cattle do not take advantage of this unusual opportunity to further popularize this breed by showing that they can really be made to produce some excellent meat for the butcher's block.

Ohio and West Virginia shared the fat Galloway awards.

The University of West Virginia's senior calf was champion, while the junior yearling entry of Frantz Brothers, of Mt. Cory, Ohio, was made reserve. The latter firm also won the summer yearling class on a fat heifer, as well as the junior calf class on a steer calf. H. J. Gramlich, of the University of Nebraska, acted as judge.

POLLED SHORTHORN QUALITY HIGH

Of a creditable type and quality the Polled Shorthorn breed was represented by entrants from six different states. Tennessee, Nebraska, Michigan, Illinois, West Virginia and Iowa all had representative delegates in the money.

Albert Hultine & Sons of Saronville, Nebraska, were successful in winning the championship on Master Rex, their first prize junior yearling. Judge Biggar designated Brookside Betty Lou, a heifer fed and shown by A. O. Murray, Mazon, Illinois, as the reserve winner, while Hultine won first prize in the class for the group of three steers.

GRADES AND CROSSBREDS EXCELLENT

Numbering 156 head, the grades and crossbreds led the fat classes in actual number of heads, and from their ranks also came a serious contender for the grand championship honor.

The first class led into the ring provided the grade and crossbred champion. This steer was Sni-A-Bar Emblem, a third cross Shorthorn exhibited by Sni-A-Bar Farms, Grain Valley, Missouri. This steer is the result of breeding up with purebred Shorthorn bulls from native stock, and shows rather concretely what may be accomplished through the use of better breeding bulls in improving beef cattle for commercial purposes.

Of Sni-A-Bar Emblem, Judge Biggar declares that he is the best Shorthorn grade steer that has been so placed, and in his deliberations for a grand champion of the show, he spent a great deal of time in considering Sni-A-Bar Emblem. Second in class of grades and crossbreds was Bobby, a very level, evenly fleshed Shorthorn bullock, shown by Richard Lacy of Kansas, Illinois.

The summer yearlings were topped by an Angus grade, shown by Briarcliff Farms, Inc., of Pine Plains, New York, and senior calves were headed by another doddie entry—this one from the Iowa State College stables.

From the state college farm of Nebraska came the leader of the junior calves, a Shorthorn-Angus crossbred, sired by the college Shorthorn herd sire, Dale Masterpiece.

Judge Biggar selected the Briarcliff Angus winner of the summer yearling class as his reserve to the Sni-A-Bar champion.

GRAND CHAMPIONS AND A BOY ARE CROWNED

"In choosing his grand champion and his breed champions, Judge Biggar used the same pattern regardless of breed. To win, a steer had to have depth, smoothness, and ripeness of flesh over the shoulders, back, loin, hind quarters, and ribs, with a neat, trim middle, and be smart in general appearance," observed one of the critics of the cattle show for the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

Continuing his description of the "grand champion drama," this reporter said of the judge, "It was a rare pleasure and a genuine education to the thousands of ring-side spectators, both for the young and those of more mature years, to follow Mr. Biggar.

"The yearling championship fight brought out eight good steers, representing the first prize winners in all the yearling classes. This was the most hotly disputed contest in the entire show. All the breed champions were yearlings, thus the winner of this event would be the logical grand champion. All eight were good ones, and at least four were of real grand championship caliber.

Judge Works Carefully

"The judge gave them a careful examination—moved them around the ring, and then narrowed his attention to three steers. They were the junior club champion, which was also the Hereford breed champion, shown by Clarence Goecke, of State Center, Iowa; the Sni-A-Bar Farms' grade Shorthorn, the grade and crossbred champion; and the junior yearling Angus champion, shown by the Iowa State College.

In the final rating, the judge sent the summer yearling Hereford, owned by the boy, to the top and next to him stood the good grade Shorthorn, Sni-A-Bar Emblem.

"For the calf championship, eight wonderful calves, the blue ribbon winners of the calf classes, including about 200 head shown, faced the judge. It was a close contest.

Eyes on Three Calves

"There were three calves of the quality and kind that had found popular favor in past years for the highest honors. They were all from the Iowa State College, and consisted of the senior Hereford calf, the senior Angus calf that was reserve breed champion here, and the senior grade Angus calf. The Hereford, regarded by many good judges as about the best youngster ever seen at the International, was made champion, and the purebred Angus won the reserve.

"Now the fight was on for the grand championship. Judge Biggar looked them over carefully, walked them, looked and handled them some more, and then drew out the two yearlings for final consideration. The one, the Sni-A-Bar grade Shorthorn, proud as a peacock, was well shown by that veteran showman, Jimmie Napier. The steer had wonderful lines, two good ends, level of back, smooth of shoulder, smoothly and evenly fleshed, had a very trim middle, and was without doubt the best Shorthorn steer ever exhibited at the International. He looked the part of a real champion.

"Then, for the first time in the history of this great show, a steer fed by a 12-year-old boy had earned his right to fight out the most contested battle of all, that for the steer grand championship honors. The youthful owned Hereford champion was always well shown. His feet were always in the right place. He might have been a bit heavier in his lower thighs, but when it came to thickness, smoothness, evenness and ripeness of high qualified flesh over the shoulders, back, loin, hindquarters, and ribs, he was the choice of the show. The judge liked him even better than the grade Shorthorn, and gave him the crown. Never was a decision more popular or better received by a ringside."

Biggar Comments

The following comment was made by Judge Biggar immediately following the judging: "Both steers are marvelous animals, the best of their age I have ever seen. Either one would make a highly acceptable grand champion in any show.

"It was a very close decision. The Shorthorn steer is the best Shorthorn I have ever seen here—yes, the best yearling Shorthorn I have ever seen at any show. He is pleasing both to the eye and touch. His lines are very correct; he has two good ends.

"I was, however, much taken with the Hereford steer. His lines were good. His evenness of width from end to end, his smoothness, thickness, and ripeness of flesh on the back, shoulder, loin, hind quarters and ribs were extraordinarily good. It was his unusual thickness, evenness and ripeness of flesh over all parts of his body which won for him over the beautiful Shorthorn."

In conclusion, Mr. Biggar said, "I was very favorably impressed with the single fat steer show. In each and every class there were many really good bullocks. All the breeds make a good impression. It is a most remarkable feature to have a 12-year-old boy feed the grand champion bullock at a show of this caliber."

Product of Practical Farm

The grand champion was a Hereford, bred on the Goecke farm at State Center, Iowa, and was fed by Clarence Goecke, a 12-year-old Iowa 4-H club boy. "Dick," the champion, was 16 months and four days old when shown, and weighed 1,150 pounds. His development was simple. He suckled his mother for some five months, during which time he ran on grass, and had nothing but pasture and his mother's milk. At five months of age, he was put on a nurse cow and was fed a grain ration of chopped corn, 4 parts; crushed oats, 6 parts; wheat bran and oil meal, 1 part each, by weight. In addition he had access to clover hay and some silage. Each month the corn was increased and some of the oats decreased.

Since September 1, preceding the show, he made an average gain of $2\frac{1}{2}$ pounds a day. Clarence, who had completed two years' activity in 4-H Club work, did all the feeding, exercising, and caring for this steer. His victory exemplifies that a grand champion bullock does not have to be reared in a hothouse.

SLAUGHTER CONTEST—STEERS ON FOOT

By M. D. HELSER, Superintendent

Tom G. Paterson
Judge

Mr. Tom G. Paterson of Argyle, Illinois, a popular bullock judge, was selected to take the place in the carcass contest of the International of the veteran, "Uncle John" Gosling, a familiar figure at 50 former Chicago shows. He was absent this year for the first time. Last year he celebrated his semi-centennial at the stock show. He is 84, and while he was not here in person we all felt sure that he was thinking of the "Big Show." Mr. Paterson did a splendid job on the awards. Twenty-seven bullocks were led before him.

They were 14 entries in the junior class. All of the prizes were won by Aberdeen-Angus in this class. Again did a 4-H Club boy triumph. Benny, a grade Angus, shown by 15-year-old Keith Collins of Liscomb, Iowa, won first on a well-finished, neat bullock of splendid type and conformation.

He was very straight in his lines and especially well developed over the high price cuts. This steer was later given the "on foot" championship. The other four were very close with only slight differences in handling qualities, finish and conformation.

In the summer yearling class there were 13 entries. All of these places were taken by Aberdeen-Angus bullocks except the fourth place, which was won by a neat, blocky Hereford of splendid conformation. This class was headed by Sen Van Hall Orchards shown by Hall Orchards, Inc., of Belding, Michigan. This bullock was smooth and very straight in lines and carried a neat brisket.

DODDIES HIGH IN CATTLE CARCASS TEST

By M. D. HELSER, Superintendent

M. D. Helsel
Supt.

The cattle and sheep were dressed and exhibited by Armour & Co. and judged in their wholesale market. All of the prize winning carcasses were put on display in the large display cases on the exposition grounds. Large crowds were constantly flocking around the cases and checking up on the feeding results of their feeding operations and admiring the excellent beef, pork and lamb carcasses.

John T. Russell of Chicago did a splendid job of judging the beef carcasses. In the junior class he found an outstanding carcass, a grade Angus, shown by Keith Collins, Liscomb, Iowa. This was one of the best carcasses ever shown in the carcass contest. He showed a perfect grain in the eye of beef and had excellent conformation and quality.

The other four prize winners in this class were Aberdeen-Angus carcasses, shown by Michigan State College, University of Wisconsin, Hall Orchards, Belding, Mich., and University of Minnesota. There were only slight differences in conformation, quality and finish in the second, third, fourth and fifth prize carcasses.

In the summer yearling class, Foo Sen of Hall Orchards led the class. He is an Aberdeen-Angus of good conformation and quality. He carried plenty of finish but was not wasty. Earl Blaney, an Aberdeen-Angus, shown by the University of Nebraska, was a close second. Another Angus from Hall Orchards was third.

The champion carcass was sold to the McCaulley Market, Mt. Kisco, New York, for $6.75 per pound. The reserve champion carcass brought 55 cents per pound. It was sold to the New City Packing & Provision Company.

ANGUS SWEEP CARLOT SHOW

Edward Hess
Judge

From a total of 224 carloads of fat cattle consigned to the 1928 International contest, the "sifting committee" dropped out 116 loads, leaving 108 loads for the judges to inspect.

The late Edward Hess, of Armour & Company's cattle buying staff, and Arthur Ettlinger, one of Swift & Company's buyers, sorted out the class leaders. Hess worked on the yearlings, of which there were 78 loads left, consisting of 39 of Angus, 32 of Herefords, and 7 of Shorthorns. The 30 loads of two-year-olds were judged by Ettlinger. Of these 12 were Angus, 17 Hereford and 1 Shorthorn. Both joined in the selection of the champion.

James E. Poole, of forensic and journalistic fame upon matters to do with the marketing of live stock, makes the following remarks upon the 1928 cattle carlot contest in his own inimitable way:

"Regardless of what happens at the International Live Stock Exposition carload display each recurring December, a successful sale is essential to amicability among exhibitors. The recent event marked an era of good feeling. Ed Hess and Arthur Ettlinger, who picked the grand champion load, fed by E. P. Hall, did their work up and down the line in a manner that eliminated all semblance of criticism, and when the sale had been concluded not an incident had occurred to mar the event.

Has Real Significance

"Some cynic has asked what a carlot show is all about anyhow. Mainly it is a spectacle, the show window of a great industry. It furnishes inspiration. During the recent show J. D. McGregor of Manitoba, and D. D. Casement of Kansas were discussing awards on the overhead board walk when a stranger addressed them thusly:

"I live in Iowa, own a 320 acre farm and feed several hundred cattle annually. I have never been here before. You men seem interested; will you tell me what I can get out of it in a practical way?"

"You cannot get anything out of it unless you are in a receptive mood," admonished McGregor. 'My first inspiration was derived at this show 28 years ago, its inception. Stanley Pierce's Angus steer, Advance, the champion that year, prompted me to develop an Angus purebred herd, which is not only my most valued possession, but a profitable one. Look around, neighbor, and you will get a lot out of this show. Its lesson is so plainly inscribed that he who runs may read.'

"The carlot cattle show is in many respects an annual repetition. Outcroppings from the conventional are, however, frequent. Ask the average spectator what he considers its superlative feature and the logical reply is the grand champion carload.

Hall Wins Again

"Many of the old-time contenders were in the running. E. P. Hall won the chief prize with a load of the same Angus yearlings he usually shows, but his contender this year was the same 'Billy' Frazier, J. W. Frazier, a previous winner of the grand championship. The two-year-old championship went to E. A. Tolan, of Illinois. In the yearling Angus class Hall was first, while in the Hereford yearling class J. W. Frazier led the procession. The Shorthorn yearling winning award went to Henry Hortenstine, and in Angus two-year-olds E. A. Tolan, H. A. Davis, E. P. Hall and John Hubly won in the order given. B. W. Brown was first in Shorthorn two-year-olds."

How Champions Were Fed

In an interview for the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal, Mr. Hall describes the care and preparation that was necessary to develop his champion carload.

The fall of 1927 they were started as calves on shelled corn, oats, alfalfa hay, and oil meal. They were getting about a pound of oil meal a day when turned out to pasture the middle of December. The Hall farm is ideal for cattle feeding, being rolling and wooded, and affording shelter that allows the cattle to run out all winter.

About August 1, 1928, a selection was made of the tops to be fitted for the show. The steers in the champion load were included in about 50 head that went into a barn at about that time, and six weeks later this number was cut to about 25 head.

Finishing feeds were shelled corn, clover hay, and two pounds of linseed oilmeal, one pound of cottonseed meal, two pounds of molasses feed, and three pounds of ground barley a head daily. They had a mineral mixture before them at all times.

while fourth went to the Frye Ranch Company, of Poplar,

The carlot feeder show consisted of 14 loads, which were judged by Harry Schirding, of Petersburg, Illinois. Johnson & Workman, of Paradise, Kansas, won first in the yearling section with a very choice load of Aberdeen-Angus that sold in the auction sale to Enos Tolan, of Farmingdale, Illinois, at $19.00 a hundred weight.

In the division for calves, A. M. Mitchell, of Hecla, South Dakota, placed his load of fine Aberdeen-Angus first; Gehan & Ashlock, of Wessington Springs, South Dakota, were in second position with their load of Angus, and Johnson & Workman were third with another of their good lots, Montana, with Shorthorns, and the same firm was, in turn, fifth with a load of "blacks."

The winning Mitchell calves sold for $16.75 a hundred, having previously been made the champions of this division. The 14 loads averaged a sale price of $14.02 a hundred.

CARLOT CATTLE SELL HIGH

The average price paid for 108 carloads of show cattle in the International sale was $19.74. It was the second highest average price paid for carlot show cattle since the 1919 exposition.

Yearlings and 2-year-old steers sold fairly close together; with the one load of $44.00 grand champions not included, they would have been nearly the same. The average for 78 cars of yearlings, including the top load, was $19.89, compared with $19.32 for 30 cars of 2-year-old steers. In 1927 yearlings averaged $20.66 and 2-year-olds, $20.79.

Of the breeds, Angus and Hereford predominated, there being 51 loads of the former and 49 of the latter. Eight cars of Shorthorns were in the sale.

The average for all Angus cattle was $20.68, the Angus yearlings alone averaging $20.82 and Angus 2-year-olds averaging $20.20. All Herefords averaged $18.91, including 32 cars of yearlings at $19.02 and 17 cars of 2-year-olds at $18.72. Shorthorns averaged $18.75, including one load of 2-year-old Shorthorns at $19.00.

Railroads Big Buyers

The cattle were distributed among many buyers, including railroads, hotels, packers and numerous public and private markets. Thirteen of the leading railroads of the country purchased 50 cars or nearly half the total number of show cattle on sale. Prices paid indicated that they selected many of the best offerings shown.

Eleven hotels shared some of the prize winners, many of them being in Chicago.—CHICAGO DAILY DROVERS JOURNAL.

SHEEP DEPARTMENT

New High Mark Attained; Large Increase in Entries

T. M. (Tom) Ryan
Supt.

"The best show of both breeding and fat sheep in the history of the International," was the universal pronouncement of reviewers of the show flocks assembled for the 1928 edition of the exposition. "The breeding sheep exhibit was a great credit to the American industry; North American sheep men are truly breeding better individuals than they were ten or twenty years ago," said another.

Increasing their ranks by some 275 head over the records of the year preceding, American flocks were represented by the new high mark of 2,175 head. A large part of this growth may be chalked to the carload and fat classes, while the breeding divisions about held their own.

"There was no outstanding exhibit by any one breed in the breeding classes. The general level of this show, compared to previous shows, was higher, due to the general higher standards within the breeds.

General Improvement Noted

"Instead of one easy, outstanding top being discernible in a class, there were generally several tops in each, and competition throughout was keen. A greater number of individuals, it seemed, came into the ring backed by proper fitting and able showmanship. By thus making the general impression of their sheep exhibits appear as attractive as possible, sheep breeders are doing much towards favorably advertising their charges.

"The Hampshires were blockier and straighter legged than in former years. Cheviot shoulders were better covered and their fleeces less open. Oxfords were blockier.

"Since breeds were represented from the most remote regions of the continent, no special locality had a monopoly on the good ones.

Ribbons Widely Distributed

"Exemplifying this wide distribution of the honors, the champion Shropshire ram came from the Broughton flock of Wisconsin and the champion ewe from the college flock of Pennsylvania. The champion Hampshire ram came from Montana, while the ewe was from Idaho. The Southdown champion ram was from Canada, while the ewe was bred and fitted in Massachusetts. Kentucky had the honor of being the home of the champion Cheviot ewe, while Illinois enjoyed the corresponding honor by supplying the champion ram."—Wisconsin Farmer.

The efficient management of the greatly enlarged sheep department of the 1928 exposition should be credited to the efforts of John T. Caine III, Thomas Ryan, and A. K. Mackey, of College Station, Texas.

SHROPSHIRE'S STAGE COMEBACK

H. Noel Gibson
Judge

When the curtain was rung up on the 1928 International, the Shropshire entries were found to have increased over their numbers in the 1927 show. Since also the quality of all purebred Shropshire flocks in the United States and Canada is conceded to be higher this year than last, it is a safe declaration that the champions of the recent show were superior to those of any foregoing competition.

Two years ago the Shropshire entries showed a decline everywhere. At the recent International it experienced a strong come-back, agreed followers of the breed. The money was well divided, no one breeder taking more than one first.

H. Noel Gibson of Komoka, Ontario, did good work in placing these classes, according to the expressed opinion of show critics and reporters. Of the champion ram, a yearling shown by A. Broughton's Sons, of Albany, Wisconsin, Judge Gibson said, "He is a thick typical sheep, good in his fleece and skin and possesses a grand top."

The purple in the ewe classes was finally settled upon the lamb entry of the Pennsylvania State College. She was highly complimented by the judge who commented that she was one of the very best lambs shown at the International in some years. "I had no hesitation in making this award and in so doing had to place her over a beautiful yearling shown by Hyllmede Farm, the reserve winner," declared Judge Gibson.

The flock and pen of three ram lambs was won by Iroquois Farm of New York. To the University of Minnesota went the blue ribbon on their pen of three ewe lambs, and the pen of three yearling ewes was won by J. L. Bistline of Aledo, Illinois.

HAMPSHIRE VICTORS FROM WEST

Wm. F. Renk
Judge

The West came East and took back to itself the lion's share of the ribbons that count in the Hampshire breeding classes. It amounted to a three cornered battle for the top honors between the entrants of Straloch Farm of Davis, California; Mrs. Minnie W. Miller, proprietress of Thousand Springs Farm, Wendell, Idaho; and the Mt. Haggin Land and Live Stock Company of Anaconda, Montana.

Champion ewe went to the blue ribbon winner in the yearling class, the property of Mrs. Miller. The reserve ribbon was placed upon the lamb entry of the Mt. Haggin Land and Live Stock Company.

When the purple colors had been tied in the ram classes, the Mt. Haggin Company was the possessor of both the champion and reserve champion honors. The championship went to their yearling entry, while the reserve was awarded to their first prize lamb.

William F. Renk, prominent Wisconsin sheepman, placed the ribbons. He remarked after completing his work, "The Hampshire show was one of the best ever staged here. The champion ram was a large, strong, masculine-headed fellow, evenly fleshed and square on his feet. The ewe champion was a low set, broad-bodied, typical representative of the breed, carrying a wealth of flesh on her back, and was, all in all, thoroughly deserving of her recognition."

OXFORD COMPETITION KEEN

Samuel Breese
Judge

"Perhaps the hottest spot in the show of breeding sheep was furnished in the Oxford competitions," declared Claude Harper, sheep specialist of Purdue University, who was one of the ringside critics of the 1928 International sheep show.

There has been a growing spirit of competition among the followers of this breed, both in the United States and in Canada. It saw its culmination in the spirited competition of the recent show.

The entries in the Oxford breeding classes were from widely separate sections of the United States and Canada, with Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Indiana, South Dakota, Oregon and Ontario represented. However, when the results of the awards were checked, it was found to be almost a one-man victory for R. Russell Fleming of Whitby, Ontario, Canada. Fleming won all the firsts but the one awarded in the aged ram class to the Iowa State College, but even this ribbon was at least a reflected victory for the Ontario breeder, since he had bred the ram and sold him to the college before the show.

A consistent runner-up to the Fleming entries was the show flock of O. R. Quakenbush, of Sharpsville, Indiana.

Fleming's ram lamb was champion, as was also his first prize ewe lamb. The judge, Samuel Breese of Purdue University, stated that the show of Oxfords was the best he had seen, remarking that the tops were unusually good and that the yearling ewe class, in which were lined up 20 contestants, was the best class of yearling Oxford ewes that he had ever seen.

LINCOLNS UP TO STANDARD

M. H. Thornton
Judge

According to the expressed opinion of M. H. Thornton, of the Michigan State College, who tied the ribbons in the Lincoln breeding classes, the 1928 exhibit of this breed was a most excellent one.

"H. H. Lee's entry headed the aged ram class. He is a thick, masculine specimen, carrying an excellent fleece. Robson & Goddard showed the yearling winner, a well balanced typical ram in nice bloom. Crandell topped the ram lamb class with a beautifully balanced lamb, carrying lots of type and the right fleece. The purple was finally settled upon Lee's aged ram entry.

"Lee also topped the yearling ewe class with another of those typical Lee ewes, carrying great thickness and fitted to perfection. This ewe also had the fleece type and balance to carry away the purple. Crandell, with a mate to his first prize ram lamb, took the blue with a very typey, uniform ewe lamb. This lamb's fleece, type and handling qualities were of the kind that everyone likes."

COTSWOLDS IMPROVE QUALITY

Judge Monte H. Thornton of the Michigan State College said of the Cotswold show that the gain in quality over the 1927 classes of this breed was easily perceptible and a matter of favorable comment from the ring side.

Seven aged rams were led out, and were headed by E. B. Moore's entry. According to critics he is a very typical, well balanced ram, thick, low set, short in his neck and carries a splendid head.

Harry T. Crandell of Cass City, Michigan, topped the yearling class of eight with a very tidy, nice type of ram of excellent fleece. Shore stood one, three and five in a splendid class of fifteen ram lambs. The same exhibitor also won the yearling ewe class of twelve entries with a thick, low-set specimen of particularly good fleece. In the ewe lamb class, Charles J. Shore of Glanworth, Ontario, Canada, won first and second with a splendid pair, the blue ribbon winner being distinguished by remarkable breadth and uniformity throughout.

E. B. Moore of Sheridan, Indiana, repeated his triumph of the preceding year by again carrying off the purple with his aged ram, which won the same honor in 1927. This grand champion, whose picture is herein reproduced, is said by breed authorities to be a model in breed type.

Shore took the purple on his outstanding ewe lamb, she being a shade better in heart, loin and leg than the yearling. Seldom has so good a pair been led out for the championship as these two ewes. At least such was the concerted opinion of the judge and of those at the ring side.

SOUTHDOWNS EXCEL

C. G. Potts
Judge

"The Southdown men put up a show that almost made your heart stop." So spoke one reviewer of the 1928 International Southdown show. "There was never a better exhibit of breeding Southdowns at the International," said another.

Mountain Farm of Bradstreet, Massachusetts, won the most coveted prize in this particular division of the International, the Silver Challenge Cup awarded by the British Southdown Sheep Society. The cup is valued at 25 guineas (a little over $100) and is presented each year to the exhibitor of the best Southdown flock, consisting of one ram, two shearling ewes, and two ewe lambs. It becomes the property of any exhibitor winning it three times in succession, or five times at intervals. In addition the British Society also gives a silver medal to the winner each year.

The champion ewe lamb was an entry from Mountain Farm, while the blue ribbon yearling ram shown by Robert McEwen and Son of London, Ontario, Canada, was made grand champion ram.

C. G. Potts, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., did the judging. "The ewe classes," he said, "were particularly strong throughout. They were exceptionally well fitted and showed extreme uniformity."

CHEVIOTS "EXTRA FINE"

W. W. Wilson
Judge

The alert and picturesque Cheviots never fail to make an impression that is pleasing even to the most casual observer, be they in field, show ring, or pen, and at the 1928 International Live Stock Exposition the exhibit of this breed was fully up to its usual high standard and attractiveness.

From the standpoint of numbers alone, this breed made the largest increase over former years of any. Cheviot exhibitors were double those of 1927 and there were more than three times as many sheep on display.

Lined up before Judge W. W. Wilson of Muncie, Indiana, the entrants arranged themselves by states from which they came into a three-cornered conflict between Illinois, Iowa and Kentucky. Alvin L. Helms of Belleville, Illinois, won the bulk of the prize money. T. C. Collins of Cynthiana, Kentucky, had championship on his ram lamb entry and reserve on his aged ram, while Helms had things his own way in all the other classes. R. E. Pullin of Waterloo, Iowa, furnished some formidable runner-up material.

"An extra fine show of Cheviot sheep, and the best lot of yearling ewes I ever saw," was Judge W. W. Wilson's comment. He picked his champion from the winner in this class, the entry of Alvin L. Helms, of Belleville, Illinois, and then placed the reserve ribbon on the lamb winner, also shown by Helms. Second in the yearling ewe class went to Helms, and third to Chase Brothers of Willow Lake, South Dakota.

DORSETS IN STRONG SHOW

P. C. MacKenzie
Judge

Fillmore Farms of Bennington, Vermont, swept the strongest Dorset show ever seen at the International. They took all firsts and championships. Critics of the show declared that it was the fitting of sheep of the right type that gave Fillmore Farms an advantage that could not be overcome.

Rounding out the classes of Dorsets into what Judge P. C. MacKenzie referred to as a display of exceptionally high quality were the flocks of Chase Brothers, Willow Lake, South Dakota; Archie R. Minish, Hudson, Iowa; and the Kansas, Michigan and Oklahoma Agricultural colleges.

Judge MacKenzie picked his champion ram from the winner of the yearling class, and selected the winning lamb to wear the purple among the ewe entrants. Referring to these two, Mr. MacKenzie said, "The champion ram and ewe were beautiful sheep of outstanding Dorset type."

LEICESTERS MAINTAIN QUALITY

In a small but quality show of breeding Leicesters, Humphrey Snell, of Clinton, Ontario, Canada, returned to repeat his victories of recent years by annexing all but one of the first prize ribbons in the show. This one went to Harry T. Crandell of Cass City, Michigan, on his aged ram. D. F. McDowell and Sons of Mercer, Pennsylvania, provided some fine entrants which were keenly competitive for the top places.

RAMBOUILLET SHOW OUTSTANDING

E. F. Rinehart
Judge

The Rambouillet show at the 1928 International was outstanding in quality and remarkable in the number of good entries, according to E. F. Rinehart, of the University of Idaho, who tied the ribbons in this division.

Of the show he says, "The Rambouillet classes were uniformly strong and each class brought out many worthy individuals. It is a universal and widespread breed, being the standard range breed of the west, as well as being widely distributed on the farms to the east.

Aged Ram Class Strong

"The aged ram class was one of the strong classes of the show. It was headed by a King Brothers ram that I consider an outstanding representative of the breed. The class was good all down the line. This was a ring of so many good individuals that winning the class practically meant winning the championship of the show.

"The yearling ram class brought out six good rams, any one of which could have stood first and undoubtedly each had strong backing. An entry, finally standing sixth, possessed a remarkable fleece and was seriously considered for first place, but lost in the final rating as lacking a trifle in the scale and body characteristics of the five that stood before it. First went up on a combination of body and fleece that was uniformly good. This was a class remarkable for the stiff competition for top place.

"The ram lamb class was headed by a Purdue lamb possessing an unusual combination of body and fleece. Like in the other ram classes there was much difference in ring-side opinion.

Ewe Competition Keen

"The yearling ewe class showed more good entries than are often seen together. It was headed by two ewes possessing a combination of body and fleece that is exceptional. They were the best pair of ewes that I have ever seen together. The one that finally won went up on thickness of body and the density, fineness and length of staple of fleece. From first to tenth there was so much type, quality, and such good fleeces, that each could carry a championship ribbon from a district show or a state fair with honor to themselves and credit to the state.

"The ewe lamb class, from one end to the other, was the strongest of the show. It was headed by a University of Illinois lamb that possessed all the desirable qualities of body, fleece, conformation and type. She was outstanding in class. A good King lamb stood second and the next three places went to Bullard lambs that were remarkably uniform.

"The flock display was an interesting study of type and wool quality. The King flock in first place displayed a remarkable uniformity and was an example of the ideal and goal of a constructive breeder.

CORRIEDALE EXHIBIT GOOD

King Brothers Company of Laramie, Wyoming, were the sole exhibitors of the Corriedale breed, which is one of the newcomers to the folds on this side of the Atlantic. Samuel Breese, of Lafayette, Indiana, viewed the Corriedale exhibit and pronounced it as being very high class.

The enthusiastic efforts of The King Brothers Company to popularize this breed of sheep is worthy of more than passing comment and should entitle this firm to the undying gratitude of all Corriedale breeders.

FAT SHEEP DIVISION

Greater Number of Outstanding Tops Than Ever

"The wether show was without a doubt one of the best, if not the best, ever seen at the International. There have been many great wethers brought out at former shows, but there have never been so many good ones lined up in the various classes as were to be seen this year.

"In almost every class there were a number of sheep good enough to head a very strong class. The large fat over-done wethers as seen at many of the former shows were absent." So declares E. L. Shaw of Ashley, Ohio, who served as one of the sheep judges at the International, and who expresses the above opinion in a written statement for the American Sheep Breeder.

The Iowa Homestead reports that every sheep exhibitor interviewed declared with enthusiasm that the fat sheep show was the best that had been gathered at the International for several years. On other occasions, they recall, there have been good shows put on by a single breed, or some few exceptional individuals sprung up in all the breeds, but on no occasion have so many individuals with outstanding merit appeared as in all of the fat sheep classes of this exposition.

Classes in all breeds were well filled. Even with an enlarged sheep judging arena this year, it was necessary in many classes to arrange two lines of sheep to accommodate the exhibitors. It was a lamb victory in most instances. Aside from the Oxfords and long wool breeds, all of the champions were lambs. Canada swept the long wool championships in a spirited sectional contest between flocks from the states and the provinces.

SHROPSHIRE SHOW EXCELLENT

Fourteen exhibitors joined to stage what was universally agreed to be an outstanding exhibit of Shropshire wethers.

"The Shropshire wether show was one of the best, if not the best, ever brought out at the International," declared E. L. Shaw of Ashley, Ohio, who judged them.

"A nice lot of yearling wethers were lined up," he says. "The top wether shown by the University of Wisconsin was thick and well covered.

"The lamb show was the best ever seen in America. The top lamb, shown by Kentucky, was a real package of mutton. He had wonderful bloom and was shown to win. The lamb shown by A. J. Moore in second place was a good thick individual, but not as uniformly fleshed as the winner. A lot of good lambs stood in the final lineup. The Kentucky lamb was made champion and the Wisconsin entry reserve."

The champion of this breed, incidentally, later moved on to further honors, when in competition with all breeds, he was made reserve grand champion of the show.

HAMPSHIRE COMBINE QUALITY AND NUMBERS

The entries of fourteen exhibitors lined up before Judge William F. Renk, in a combined quality-quantity show of Hampshire wethers.

First and second in the yearling class went to the Iowa State College, while Purdue and the University of Kentucky nominations stood third and fourth, and a wether from the Michigan State College just inside the money, in fifth position.

When the lambs were in place, it turned out to be a victory for Purdue on a lamb which Mr. Renk termed as the best shown at the International for many years. He describes him as being evenly covered with fine quality meat, exemplary of size, early maturity and good fleshing. A product of Mrs. Minnie W. Miller's Thousand Springs Farm was second to the Purdue entry, while Chase Brothers showed for third and Purdue for fourth. The lamb was champion and the yearling was reserve champion.

The entries of four Cotswold breeders made bids for top honors in the wether classes of that breed. The championship went to Charles J. Shore of Glanworth, Ontario, on a yearling wether and reserve to Harry T. Crandell of Cass City, Michigan, on a lamb. Judge M. H. Thornton thought well of his choice for the purple. He said of him, "The champion wether in my opinion was the most evenly finished Cotswold wether that has been shown for quite a

DORSET SHOW CREDITABLE

The fat Dorsets found favor in the eyes of their judge, P. C. MacKenzie of the Pennsylvania State College, who remarked that both the winning yearling and lamb entries were exceptionally well covered. The championship and the reserve ribbons were placed upon representatives of college flocks, the grand champion being a lamb from the Kansas State Agricultural College, and the reserve a yearling fitted at the Michigan State College. According to MacKenzie, the lamb was put up to the top because of being a little better in proportions throughout than the yearling.

From the ranks of the Southdowns came the grand champion wether of the show, all breeds competing.

The judge, E. L. Shaw of Ashley, Ohio, was deeply impressed by the superior quality of the fat sheep of this breed at the 1928 show. Of them he said in part, "The Southdown show of wethers was the best that this breed has ever presented at the International. The yearling class brought out a grand lot. The first six in the final lineup were very well fleshed specimens, and it required careful handling to make the final decision.

RAMBOUILLETS INCREASE NUMBERS

Of the Rambouillet fat classes the judge, E. L. Shaw, said, "The Rambouillets made a larger showing than at the 1927 exposition. The top wether in the yearling class handled well, but was outclassed for the championship by the blue ribbon lamb."

A reporter for "The American Sheep Breeder" described the show in the following terms:

"The class of eleven yearlings was not as uniform as might be desired, but several very good sheep found their way toward the top. The first place wether, shown by the Michigan State College, was a well fleshed sheep and handled well. The next four wethers were very well fleshed and handled good for the breed.

"The class of sixteen lambs was the best the breed has displayed at the International. The University of Illinois easily won first and second on two outstanding lambs. The top lamb was the best fleshed lamb of this breed the writer has ever handled and it did not take long to make him champion for the breed over the yearling. Purdue had two very good lambs in third and fourth positions.

GRADES AND CROSSBREDS UNIFORMLY GOOD

E. L. Shaw
Judge

"The grades and crossbreds made a beautiful showing," said E. L. Shaw, who judged the medium wool or down classes.

"The yearlings," he stated, "were a very uniform lot and well fleshed. Iowa stood first, second and third on three of the best yearling wethers that have ever headed this class. The lamb class was topped by an excellent individual shown by Chase Brothers. He possessed a great top and handled well in all sections. A number of well fleshed lambs were in the first lineup. The lamb was made champion and the yearling reserve."

H. L. Garrigus of the Connecticut Agricultural College placed the long wool types and he expressed the same high praise of the quality evidenced in these classes.

"The long wool grades and crossbreds were uniformly good, the best throughout that I have passed on," declared Garrigus, "uniform excellence being more marked in the lamb classes, as far as improvement over previous years is concerned.

"The champion was a very smooth, thick yearling, excelling over the others of the class principally in loin and top. H. M. Lee, of Highgate, Ontario, had champion wether and his provincial fellow exhibitors, Robson & Goddard, of Denfield, showed the reserve winner.

GRAND CHAMPION DEFIES OMENS

Ten purebred breed champions and the two purple winners of the Grades and Crossbreds were in line for the crowning honor of the fat sheep show—the grand championship.

Out of the South came the victor, a Southdown lamb bred and fitted by Harold Barber, shepherd of the college flock at the University of Kentucky. The product of an unlucky birthdate—Friday, January 13, 1928, he was dubbed with the most fortune favored name, "Lindy," which quite evidently counteracted all evil omens possibly to be met with by reason of the ill-fated date of his arrival. Both judges and ringside were unstinting in their adjectives of praise and compliment of him.

E. L. Shaw, Ashley, Ohio, who has helped pick the grand champion wether here for the past two decades, said: "This Kentucky grand champion wether is the best I have ever seen."

"Even long before the breed champions lined up for the final award, folks about the ringside were saying that the Kentucky Southdown wether could not be stopped," stated one of the reporters of the event, going further to add, "and they didn't stop this perfect block of prime lamb, because he had everything that good judges like in a grand champion, low-setness, well proportioned lines, a thick covering of hard, even flesh over the back, loin, rib and shoulder. No one cared to criticize his bloom, style or type."

It was a complete victory for the Blue Grass state, for their champion Shropshire wether lamb was selected by Judges Shaw and Garrigus as the reserve grand champion of the show.

DRESSED CARCASSES OF SHEEP LED BY SOUTHDOWNS

Robert Lorimer
Judge

The championship and reserve championship both went to Southdowns. Six out of the ten prizes were won by Southdowns. Mr. Robert Lorimer, an expert lamb and mutton judge of Evanston, Illinois, did excellent work in making the awards.

In the lamb class there were 36 shown and the judge had 21 of them ribbed down before he could make his final decision. The lambs were quite wasty—more so this year than ever before.

A Southdown, shown by John D. Larkin, Inc., was first prize lamb and champion carcass. He had a beautiful, well-grained eye and was especially heavy in the leg and loin. Another Southdown shown by the University of Wisconsin was second. Helms Brothers of Belleville, Illinois, won third on another Southdown. The fourth and fifth prizes were won by Cheviots shown by Hal B. Clark and University of Kentucky.

In the yearling class Kansas State Agricultural college won first on a beautifully fitted Southdown wether. The second and third prizes were won by Shropshires shown by Warwick & Warwick and North Dakota Agricultural College. Two more Southdowns, shown by University of Kentucky and Ohio State University, were fourth and fifth.

The champion lamb carcass was sold to Stop and Shop at $3.00 per pound. The reserve champion went to New City Packing and Provision Co. at 75 cents per pound.

SOUTHDOWNS ARE CARLOT WINNERS

J. M. Horan
Judge

"The grand champion award for carload of fat lambs illustrates the truth of the old adage about persistence," says the Illinois Farmer in remarking upon the achievement of W. G. Miles, of Evansville, Wisconsin, who after showing carloads of lambs for eighteen years, took home grand championship honors for the first time.

Incidentally, this is but the second prize of any kind that he has won in this long series of persistent effort. Fifteen years ago he won a first on his lambs, but was defeated for grand championship that year by a load of yearling wethers.

Describing the champions, the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal says: "The grand champion car lot of lambs was fattened on shock corn and rape alone, according to Mr. Miles. The rape was grown in the field where the corn was in the shock, and it was here that this grand champion load put on their final finish. The lambs were sired by Southdown rams and were dropped in April, 1928."

Ribbons Widely Distributed

Sixteen carloads of market grades of sheep were in place when J. M. Horan, head sheep buyer for Armour & Company, Chicago, began the work of appraising them. From a class of six carloads of native lambs came the grand champion load. Second in this class was made reserve champion, a carload fed out by Robert McEwen, of London, Ontario, Canada. Third and fourth went to C. J. Brodie, of Stouffville, Ontario, and fifth to Chase Brothers, Willow Lake, South Dakota.

One load of two year old range sheep and two loads of yearlings made up these two classes. All three were fed by W. C. Wilson, of Burlington, Wisconsin. Wilson also topped the class of four loads of range lambs, while Chase Brothers took the top money on their load of Southdown grade lambs from range ewes—three loads competing.

WOOL SHOW HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

P. V. Ewing
Supt.

The Wool Show is a new department of the International, introduced at the 1928 exposition. Its popularity was immediate. Its initiation into the organization of the International was marked by widespread public interest and approval.

Although this was the first competitive wool show held here, some impressive exhibits of wool are on record at the expositions of 1912, 1913 and 1916.

Sheep men throughout the country whose attention was directed to this initial competitive International Wool Show declared it a great success. Widespread interest has been aroused over the winnings. On the occasion of a number of the western wool growers' conventions, exhibits of fleeces which had won here were displayed in show windows of the towns where the meetings were held.

Entries Are Creditable

The management of the new department was particularly pleased with the number and quality of fleeces entered, both being considered good, in view of the short time previous to the opening of the exposition that it was decided to hold a wool show.

The Iowa State College received highest recognition in the market wool division, on a fine combing Rambouillet ewe fleece which won the fine combing class in the market division and then the championship. This winning carried with it the Webb special award, presented by Charles J. Webb Sons Company, Inc., of Philadelphia. The Webb firm donated $50 to this introductory competition which was distributed to the first prize and championship fleeces in the market wool division of the show.

E. E. Brownell, of Woodland, California, took the reserve champion ribbon on his first prize Romney ewe fleece, which was also first in the low one-quarter blood market class. Many of those who examined the display were impressed by the showiness of this fleece.

Larger Show Is Planned

Plans are now in progress for a much larger show in 1929. As it nears shearing time, wool growers are urged to watch very carefully so that their good fleeces can be reserved for exhibition purposes.

Entries were sent from eleven different states to the first International Wool Show. The competition was divided into two separate sections, one being the market class division, the other the pure bred wool contest. There were six market classes and ten breed classes. All were judged by George T. Willingmyre, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics at Washington.

The successful management of this department is to be credited to John T. Caine III, of Logan, Utah, and P. V. Ewing, business manager of the American Sheep Breeder, Chicago.

SWINE DEPARTMENT

Swine Entries Gain in Numbers and Quality

Dr. J. M. Handley
Supt.

Both the breeding and the fat swine classes enjoyed an increase in entries over the past several seasons, and at the same time the standards of quality were raised, according to the opinion of Dr. J. M. Handley, superintendent of the International swine department.

The greatest growth was evidenced in the breeding division of the show, where for the first time in recent years their numbers were equal to the barrow entries. Of the latter, Dr. Handley declared the tops have never been better, if equalled. The grand champion barrow was referred to by judges and ringside as being as near a perfect barrow as has been seen at the International.

The Hampshires again raised their record of carload grand championships by taking to themselves the tenth championship in the past eleven years.

Professor E. F. Ferrin, swine specialist of the University of Minnesota, stated that the 1928 International could boast of the biggest show of barrows, possessing the highest average excellence of any display of fat hogs ever exhibited here.

BERKSHIRES COME FROM COAST TO COAST

J. S. Coffey
Judge

Widespread popularity of the Berkshires is indicated by the 1928 entry list of this breed at the International. Coming from far away Oregon on the west and South Carolina on the east and from six corn belt states, fourteen breeders met here with their show herds to compete for the high honor which the top ribbons of the International carry with them.

From a sectional point of view, the Berkshire breeding classes developed into competition for the purples and blues between Oregon and South

Caroline, with somewhat of the advantage going to the latter when the scorings of each class were compared. The Mid-west, however, was not without its formidable contenders, the blues in both the senior yearlings and junior yearling sow classes going to the entrants of Cudahy Brothers Company, Cudahy, Wisconsin.

The grand championships were shared by Clemson College of Clemson, South Carolina, and Rieck Brothers of Macleay, Oregon, Clemson College taking it on their senior yearling boar and Rieck Brothers on their aged sow. Both of the reserve ribbons went to Clemson College—one on their junior boar pig and the other on their junior sow pig. J. S. Coffey, of the Ohio State University, acted as judge of the breeding classes.

POLAND CHINA BREEDERS SHARE HONORS

E. C. Caverly
Judge

Six show herds, the property of five breeders and the Colorado Agricultural College, made up the display of Poland China breeding swine.

From the start to the finish, it was a spirited contest for the leading ribbons between all six. The advantage, when the judging had been completed, was with the C. L. Hurless herd of Coleta, Illinois, which had a string of 11 top ribbons to their credit at the close of the show. The boar grand championship was settled upon the junior yearling blue ribbon winner shown by Hurless, while the junior champion ribbon was presented to C. E. Gumery of Whitestown, Indiana, on his junior boar pig. The judge thought well enough of the second prize winner in the class that uncovered the grand champion, to make him reserve grand champion. He was the property of the Colorado Agricultural College.

Gumery was the one successful challenger to an almost complete victory of the Hurless herd in the group classes, Gumery's entries breaking through to the top in the class for four pigs under six months the produce of the same sow.

Lewis L. Guard of North Bend, Ohio, a brother to Samuel, well known editor of the New Breeders' Gazette, was quite successful as a new exhibitor at the International, winning three blue ribbons and the junior championship purple on his junior gilt. Wonderland Farm of Wolcott, Indiana, occupied the grand championship spotlight, receiving the recognition on their aged sow.

The awards were made by E. C. Caverly, well-known Poland China breeder, of Peoria, Illinois.

DUROCS MAINTAIN STANDARDS

Dr. W. J. Fitts
Judge

As usual there was a good Duroc sow show, and the male classes were not without likable candidates for the top ribbons. The grand champion boar award was won by Shallenberger Farms on a junior yearling boar. He was a boar of a great deal of stretch, but was not shown in the best of condition because he had been shipped about the southern circuit for some weeks.

The grand champion sow, Modern Type Lady, shown by the Colorado Agricultural College, was a wonderfully smooth, large, deep bodied individual. Walsh Brothers' junior champion gilt was declared the most outstanding gilt shown this year.

Full herds were exhibited by Shallenberger Farms, Argyle, Illinois, the Colorado Agricultural College, and Kehl and Muth of Elizabeth, Illinois. Their entries were met in various of the classes by the entries of Lillard Stock Farms, Arlington, Texas; R. C. Walsh, Beloit, Wisconsin, and George W. Millikin, Utica, Illinois. Shallenberger Farms and the Colorado Agricultural College won the largest share of the high ribbons.

Dr. W. J. Fitts of Gallatin, Tennessee, tied the ribbons in his usual very satisfactory manner.

CHESTER WHITES EXCELLENT

Chas. Richert
Judge

The Chester White breeding classes at Chicago this year were excellent. I. T. Hickman & Son, Marion, Ohio; Albert H. Stuart, Newhall, Iowa; G. W. Black, Washburn, Ill.; Dr. J. A. Swallum, Storm Lake, Iowa; F. C. Verkler, Cissna Park, Ill., and Vincent Rehmeier of Weeping Water, Neb., were all represented with herds.

No one could be said to have won a monopoly on the top ribbons, blues going to Black, Hickman, Stuart and Swallum, while in several classes the entries of Verkler and Rehmeier were among the runners-up for the first awards.

I. T. Hickman & Son won the senior and grand championship on their aged boar, Commander, an undefeated boar on the 1928 circuit. Reserve grand champion boar went to J. A. Swallum on his junior champion winner. The senior and grand champion sow was owned by Albert H. Stuart, and the junior champion sow was from the herd of G. W. Black. Mr. Black also exhibited the reserve winner. Charles Richert of La Moille, Ill., was judge.—Chester White Journal.

HAMPSHIRE BREEDING CLASSES STRONG

"The show of breeding Hampshires at this year's International represented the best and strongest exhibition of Hampshires at any International during the past ten years and was in fact perhaps one of the best showings of breeding hogs of any breed.

"The strongest competition was furnished in the sow classes in all ages, particularly outstanding being the aged sows, the junior yearlings and the senior sow pigs. When the older class was in the ring it was a showing equal in quality to any held during the past season—favorable comment upon them coming alike from Hampshire enthusiasts and from those working with the other breeds.

"The grand champion boar award went to the Bonnie Braes' entry, Bonnie Braes Judgment, a big and impressive junior yearling of marked type and fine individuality. An injury during the early show season had prevented his showing but at this, his only show of the season, he went as high as a boar can go. Dick Hollstein's junior boar pig, The Verdict, is just about as clean and sound a pig as it is possible to find, of excellent type and plenty big. He became a popular reserve grand champion and of course, also, junior champion boar.

"Bonnie Braes scored again in the sow grand championship on their aged sow, Bonnie Braes Model. She is almost an ideal of Hampshire sow type and since she was just two years old this spring, should make an even better showing in 1929. She is one of the best of the breed. Big Four Farms' senior sow pig, Iva Sensation, was deservedly selected as junior champion.

"Every exhibitor at this year's International has made a valuable contribution to the advancement of the breed because of the excellent impression created by this outstanding breeding Hampshire show. Splendid Hampshire business should and will develop from it.

"Seth T. Hadley of Hadley, Indiana, did a great job of judging, placing every class to the entire satisfaction of every exhibitor."—The American Herdsman.

TAMWORTHS IN KEEN CONTEST

I. M. Reed
Judge

The 1928 Tamworth show was virtually a three-cornered contest between three prominent breeders, who all strove with much zeal for the blue ribbons and arrived to enjoy about an equal share of the reward.

To Guy W. Baker of Shelbyville, Illinois, went the largest number of the blue ribbons, as well as the senior and grand championship on his aged sow entry. Smithson & Sutherlin of Russellville, Indiana, won three blues and the junior championship on their junior sow pig, while the Fox Chemical Company, Des Moines, Iowa, in addition to winning four firsts, took both the senior and grand champion and junior champion awards in the boar classes—the grand on their aged boar winner, and the junior on their junior boar pig.

W. S. Adams of Litchfield, Michigan, headed the list with his entry when the senior boar pigs were in place, and several others from his herd were contenders for the top places. I. M. Reed of Oskaloosa, Iowa, made the awards.

YORKSHIRES SHOW STRONG

A. L. Anderson
Judge

Favorable ringside comment was expressed of the Yorkshire breeding classes. After Judge Arthur L. Anderson, of the swine department of the Iowa State College, had performed the work of placing the animals, ten of the blue ribbons awarded were in the hands of Cudahy Brothers, of Cudahy, Wisconsin; five went to B. F. Davidson and his son, Bennie, of Menlo, Iowa; and one to A. H. Stringe of Cary, Illinois.

The championship honors were shared equally by Cudahy Brothers and B. F. Davidson and Son. Cudahy's aged sow was senior and grand champion and their senior sow pig was made junior champion. Davidson's junior yearling boar was senior and grand champion, and his son's winning entry in the junior boar pig class was awarded the junior honors. Stringe's entries crowded the top place in several classes.

SPOTTED POLAND HONORS DIVIDED

In a contest which ended with a fair division of honor for all, five breeders competed for the Spotted Poland China ribbons with herds totaling 81 head.

The Wilt Farms, Hillsboro, Indiana, had a majority of the blues, as well as both grand championships. Four important awards went to I. C. Lister of Pulaski, Iowa, with a blue on his senior yearling boar, his young herd, his young herd bred by exhibitor, and produce of sow. To Jessie B. Wear, Avon, Illinois, went the high award of junior and reserve grand championship on her winning junior boar pig. E. C. Caverly, Peoria, Illinois, officiated as judge of the "Spotted" breeding classes.

FAT SWINE DIVISION

Barrows Gathered in Strongest and Biggest Show

Conceded the greatest annual assembly of fat swine of show ring quality in America, the most recent International contest showed renewed growth in numbers and discernible improvement in quality in its barrow competitions, according to the men who judged them and ringside reporters and critics who follow these classes each year.

"The International staged the strongest and biggest show of fat barrows, in numbers and in individual excellence, that has ever been shown at Chicago. Nearly all breeds evidenced improvement in the exhibits representing them, some reflecting outstanding advance over previous shows," declared Professor E. F. Ferrin, of the University of Minnesota swine department.

Another critic expressed his opinion that the showing of individual fat hogs was the strongest ever seen at the International. Wallace's Farmer, in reviewing the Exposition, said: "The whole hog show was excellent. The judges, no matter whether the breed was Poland or Tamworth, Duroc or Yorkshire, in general used as an ideal a so-called medium type—one that produces hogs of rapid gains and yet free from coarseness and waste in carcass.

BERKSHIRE TOPS TO COLLEGES

E. J. Barker
Judge

Seven colleges and two breeders were represented in the Berkshire fat classes by 75 head, which faced Judge E. J. Barker, a Berkshire breeder of Throntown, Indiana.

The principal winnings were identified with entrants from the Iowa, Pennsylvania and Purdue institutions. The champion barrow award went to Iowa and the reserve championship to Purdue. Iowa again scored when the purple ribbon was presented them on their champion pen of barrows, and the Pennsylvania college was handed the reserve colors.

The champion was chosen from the heavy weight division. He was a barrow tipping the scales at 560 pounds. The champion pen was also the winner from the heavy weight division.

POLAND BARROWS OUTSTANDING

Burlie Dobson
Judge

credit upon Carl Thompson and his associates at the Still-

"Burlie Dobson of Lancaster, Wisconsin, tied the ribbons on one of the best displays of Poland China barrows ever seen at the International Live Stock Exposition.

"This holds good for the entire exhibit, but it applies particularly to the ring of heavy weight barrows, weighing 350 pounds up to around 575 pounds. It is doubtful if ever before, in this or any other country, as many big barrows, varying as much in quality and finish, were presented in one ring by any breed.

"The championship went to the Oklahoma A. & M. College on a heavy weight barrow that reflected much water institution. The animal weighed 550 pounds, as evenly distributed and as smoothly placed as could have been done by an artist modeling a hog in clay. He was nicely fitted, not overdone, and made as good an impression under the hand as he did to the eye. He was strictly a modern-type of Poland China, tall, long, deep and wide, not too rangy, not too high off the ground, with well-arched back, deep, level sides, full flanks and straight underline.

"The light barrow which won for the University of Wisconsin was a superb pig, superbly finished. He radiated type. He was a wonderfully thick pig, refined, yet big for his age, and it was easy to vision him as an outstanding mature hog.

"When it came to the pens Oklahoma did not have the needed support for their champion to win the heavy class. First here went to Iowa, and the blue on pen of middle weights went to Purdue."—The Poland China Journal.

DUROCS CONTRIBUTE GRAND CHAMPIONS

This year Duroc admirers enjoyed the thrill of watching a barrow from their favorite ranks climb to the grand championship over all breeds. It was their first grand championship since 1922, when the Oklahoma College came up with Oklahoma King.

The winning barrow this year, Ames Touchdown, was fed and shown by the Iowa State College. This barrow made a real touchdown when he landed the grand championship of all breeds and then with the help of two team mates kicked goal by taking the pen grand championship of the show. It was the first pen championship for this breed since 1902.

The champion barrow came from the Shallenberger Farms, Argyle, Illinois, and was purchased by the Iowa State College in June. He is sired by the boar, Cabellero, which was sold to Schwab Farm, Loretto, Pennsylvania. The barrow weighed 570 pounds.

Extremely high quality marked the entire Duroc display, particularly in the heavy weight division. As one critic reported: "It is certain that so many good red barrows were never before shown in one class at the International." Henry W. Matern, of Lstant, Illinois, judged these classes, and had the honor and pleasure of uncovering the barrow that was to be later crowned the most outstanding in the entire fat swine exhibit.

uniform width and deep sides. He was seriously considered for the grand championship over all breeds, landing reserve to the Iowa Duroc. The champion pen was composed of three uniform fall barrows, all well finished and in fine bloom.

The barrow classes brought out possibly the greatest number of Chester White barrows that had ever been shown at Chicago, and a larger number of exhibitors were showing them. It was interesting that all the universities exhibiting swine at Chicago were represented in the Chester White classes.

Arthur Tomson, judge, of Wabash, Indiana, was taxed to his utmost on several occasions, and it was only after careful and conservative accounting that he was able to make his final selections.

Dr. J. A. Swallum of Storm Lake, Iowa, won the championship for individuals on a heavy weight barrow of

"The showing of the Hampshires in the individual and pen classes was a source of pride to those in attendance, an excellent exhibition of high quality barrows; the showing representing a marked improvement over those presented in the past.

"Hampshire breeders, no longer willing to concede the superiority of the Agricultural Colleges in this important division, are getting back into the competition.

"The champion Hampshire barrow, from the medium weight class, bred by Klein & Granzow of Alden, Iowa, and fitted and exhibited by Iowa State College, received much consideration in the all-breed championship judging but not quite enough to land either grand championship or reserve. He was a splendid specimen—clean as a whistle, excellently finished and showing the most quality of anything in the show, with a great side and with every indication of being an excellent 'killer.' The only possible criticism was a slight variance of width from front to back.

"Champion pen of three barrows, also of Klein & Granzow breeding and fitted and exhibited by Iowa State College, came even closer to the highest International award, being named reserve champion pen over all breeds. Although showing more uniformity and fully as much quality and finish as the grand champion pen they could not overcome the effect of the grand champion barrow which was in the other entry."—The American Herdsman.

TAMWORTHS MAKE GOOD IMPRESSION

"The unlucky number of 13 Tamworth barrows were shown. This breed has the potentialities for developing into an even greater pork producing animal than it is at the present time. Many ringside observers made the remark that the representatives of this breed come very nearly meeting their ideal butcher hog type. All in all, the Tamworth barrow exhibit aroused a great deal of favorable criticism."—Wisconsin Farmer.

The Iowa State College, the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, and the Fox Chemical Company of Des Moines all shared in the top ribbons, champion barrow going to Ames on their winning barrow in the heaviest class open to Tamworths, which has an upper weight limit of 250 pounds. The champion balanced the beam at 245 pounds. The champion pen also was shown by the Iowa State College. I. M. Reed, of Oskaloosa, Iowa, dispatched the judging of the fat Tamworths.

YORKSHIRES HEADED UP GRADE

"Quite a noticeable improvement was made in the show of Yorkshire barrows," declared E. F. Ferrin of the Minnesota Experiment Station, in a report of the barrow classes for the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

From the show herd of the University of Wisconsin, Judge A. L. Anderson, of Ames, Iowa, chose the champion. He was a marvelously smooth pig, showing a lot of stretch, a good firm finish, and wonderfully deep sides. He was the medium weight barrow that defeated the light weight class leader, a very trim pig shown by the same institution. The light weight barrow became the judge's choice for the reserve ribbon.

GOOD SPOTTED POLAND SHOW

"The Spotted Poland China barrows made their usual good showing. There were several well finished, smooth quality pigs in the spring pig class, that faced Judge E. C. Caverly, of Peoria, Illinois.

"The championship and the reserve championship both went to the Kansas State Agricultural College. A heavy weight barrow that weighed 535 pounds was champion and a middle weight, which tipped the scales at 310 pounds, was the reserve winner.

"The champion was a good one, very much the modern type of Spotted Poland China. He had height, length, depth and width, with not too much ranginess or too much daylight under him. His back was well arched with a good spring of rib, full flank, and clean underline. He was clean of head and jowl, showing much refinement here, and possessed a smooth shoulder and a deep, wide ham.

"In the middle weight class the judge found in the Kansas pig a smooth type barrow, with length, well arched back and good balance. He later gave him the reserve ribbon.

"The champion pen of barrows was also won by the Kansas State College on its heavy pen, which contained the champion barrow. This winning pen was sired by Fascination, and one of them was a litter mate to the champion."—The Spotted Poland China Digest.

DUROCS SWEEP CHAMPION HONORS

H. W. Vaughan
Judge

"Ames Touchdown, Ames Silts and Ames Fireworks made up the pen of Duroc-Jersey barrows that individually and collectively swept clean the grand championship honors.

"H. W. Vaughan, head of the Animal Husbandry Department of the Montana Agricultural College, placed the grand champions.

"When the individuals were inspected, it was apparent that the premier honor rested between the Chester White champion barrow, owned by Dr. J. A. Swallum of Storm Lake, Iowa, and Ames Touchdown. The Duroc won; his finish, smoothness, trimness, balance and heavy hams brought forth the coveted purple. It was the first victory in this competition for the Durocs in this show since the time of the Oklahoma King winner in 1922.

"Eight splendid pens of three, representatives of the eight common breeds of hogs in the United States, were driven before Judge Vaughan. The Duroc pen won the grand championship while the Hampshire placed reserve. It was the second Duroc victory in the pen grand championships in the history of the International.

"The size, uniformity, finish and quality of the grand champion pen was well above that of the other pens and easily accounted for their winning. Although all breeds had their enthusiastic boosters, the grand champions were popular with the swine breeders."—Duroc News.

Ames Touchdown was bred by Shallenberger Farms, Argyle, Illinois, and was out of a litter of eleven. He was grown on the Shallenberger Farm until late in the spring of 1928, when he was purchased by the Iowa State College.

DRESSED CARCASSES OF HOGS SHOW QUALITY

Hugo F. Arnold
Judge

This was a real Berkshire year. Six out of the nine prizes in the different weights were won by Berkshires.

There were 147 hogs in the contest; 44 of this number were cut before the judge could make his final decision. Iowa State College won first in the 200 and under 300 lb. class on a Berkshire that was pronounced to be one of the best carcasses ever shown in the carcass contest.

In the class for Wiltshire sides all prizes went to the Yorkshire breed in this division.

Swift and Company dressed and exhibited the carcasses and Mr. Hugo F. Arnold, an expert meat judge of Chicago, made the awards in a very satisfactory manner.

The champion hog carcass was sold to Stop and Shop at $1.60 per pound. The reserve champion also went to Stop and Shop at $1.20 per pound.

HAMPSHIRE TOP CARLOAD SHOW

A. G. Welhener
Judge

"The grand champion carload of the hog show was awarded to J. M. Ballard, Marion, Ind., on a load of heavy Hampshires. With one exception, this breed has claimed the highest honors in the car lot exhibit since 1918.

"For the fourth time J. M. Ballard has taken the purple with his purebred 'belts,' this being the ninth time in the last 10 years that feeders from Indiana have been awarded the grand championship on hogs.

Cites Lighter Weight Trend

"In picking the type of hog for champions the judge called attention to the trend toward lighter weights in recent years. In congratulating Mr. Ballard, the judge said: 'Your hogs are the best here, but some of the lighter weights needed only a little more finish to give your load plenty of competition.'

"These hogs were farrowed in February and March in a big central house. As soon as they were old enough they had corn, flour side middlings, tankage and linseed oil meal, two parts tankage and one part linseed oil meal. As soon as grass was high enough they were turned out on alfalfa pasture, receiving the same ration, together with fish meal and kelp made from seaweed. They were fed along with 800 pigs, which were the same age and handled in the same manner. About the middle of September all the barrows were sorted out and the rest sent to market. Out of these barrows, the load was picked that was entered in the show.

"After the middle of September their ration was 'sweetened up' a little, getting corn, two parts of tankage, one part linseed oil, one part dry buttermilk, one-half part fish meal and kelp and three gallons of molasses a day. All during the feeding period they had a home-mixed mineral before them.

Durocs Head Classes

"Two loads of Durocs came to the top in the classes, by weight, of from 200 to 250 pounds and 250 to 300 pounds. They were fed by P. G. Horn of Valparaiso, Indiana. The champions came from the heavy division.

"Substantial growth took place in the carload swine entries over the previous year. Twenty-one loads were driven before Judge A. G. Welhener of Chicago, as compared to a total of 16 at the 1927 exposition."—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

MANY COLLEGES WIN JOHN CLAY & CO. SPECIALS

The John Clay & Company offering of $1,000 in cash awards to the agricultural college exhibits of fat cattle, sheep and swine was continued at this year's exposition. Competition is open to all pure bred fat stock entries of the colleges, as well as grades and cross-breds.

The principal colleges of the United States and several Canadian institutions competed this year in this attractive feature of the show open to college live stock. The Iowa State College took the largest share of these special awards, winning two firsts and a championship in the individual cattle classes, two firsts in the groups, one on cattle and the other on swine—and in addition, first on best general exhibit of five steers, five wethers and five barrows.

In the wether competitions the University of Kentucky came to the fore, winning the championship with a South-down lamb and a first in the group class. Iowa was also well up in the wether group class, taking second. The balance of the awards was widely distributed.

DRAFT HORSE DEPARTMENT

Largest Display of Draft Horses in Recent Years

By ELLIS McFARLAND, Supt.

Ellis McFarland
Supt.

Not for a decade has there been more interest expressed or larger numbers entered in the draft horse department of the International than in the 1928 edition of the exposition. Ring-side spectators watched the judging eagerly.

While fewer sales were made as compared to those of the 1927 show, many buyers were looking for stallions and mares. At the meetings of the various breed associations during the week, breeders told of an improved year and expressed confidence in the coming twelve months.

Percheron and Belgian Classes Strong

The number of horses entered showed an increase, with most of this registering in the Percheron and Belgian sections. Stallion classes were particularly large, and quality was evident all the way through. There was a large group of imported stallions, many of them winners in the best shows in France and Belgium. That the imported horses ranked high, but were topped by American breds, is a tribute to good live stock in this country, for the imports were of the best.

Breeders in eight states and Canada competed for Percheron honors, and no one state could claim more than one grand champion or reserve champion. Exhibitors who operate on a small scale were successful as well as the big establishments. From the viewpoint of both the onlooker and the men competing, the Percheron show was a success.

Belgian followers were just as proud of their breed and rightly so. The big horses made an impressive showing, with entries from nine states and our Canadian neighbors. The number of Belgians competing made a pleasing jump over that of last year.

Clydesdale Entries Creditable

The Clydesdale show was not great in numbers or in number of exhibitors, but the horses brought into the ring made a very creditable showing. Saskatchewan Clydes took a high ranking.

Shire classes were fairly well filled with entries from six breeders. Suffolks were represented by but one breeder. These two breeds have been going down instead of up in importance in the International's horse department, and it is hoped that they will be strengthened in the future.

Seven Percherons and two Belgians were reported sold at the show for a total sum of $10,000.

CLYDESDALE CONTEST IS KEEN

W. L. Carlyle
Judge

From Saskatchewan, Wisconsin and Illinois came the "bonnie Clydes" in answer to the lure of the bagpipes and drums of the International. As on the battle fields of old Scotia, the land of their source, where the pipes and drums wrought zest for the fight in the Scotsman's breast, so at this International did their playing mark a keenly waged encounter between the contestants of five different "clans."

With 52 head of straight-moving, good type horses to pick his tops from, the judge was confronted with no easy task. Canadian entries left the ring victorious in the possession of both grand champion ribbons. They were shown by J. E. Falconer of Govan, Saskatchewan.

Canadian Horse Wins Purple

When it came to the crowning decision, that of the grand championship, Judge Carlyle designated the three-year-old stallion Lochinvar. Describing him, the Farmers Advocate says, "He is a beautiful black and looked every inch a winner, with his style, massiveness, and general quality, which was much in evidence right to the ground." For reserve senior and reserve grand champion, he chose the veteran winner of a veteran showman, Green Meadow Reliance, exhibited by A. G. Soderberg of Osco, Illinois.

The 1928 International marks Mr. Soderberg's final gesture in the show rings of America in which he has been an ardent participant for over a half century. He has been a constant exhibitor at the International since its inception in 1900, and he came to Chicago with his Clydes even long before that, when the first lake front Fat Stock Show opened here in 1878. A dispersal sale following the recent exposition brings to a close Mr. Soderberg's active participation in the exhibitors' lists from which he will be sincerely missed.

In the mare classes the three year olds brought forth the senior and grand champion, Queen of the Roses, also shown by Mr. Falconer, while the yearling lineup was headed by Soderberg's Reliance Bonnie Lass that was made junior champion. She is sired by Green Meadow Reliance, the reserve grand champion stallion.

Wisconsin Winner Is Popular

The reserve junior champion attracted the fancy and commendation of many of the Clydesdale ringside. She was a two-year-old granddaughter of Fairholme Footprint, bred and exhibited by the University of Wisconsin. E. A. Jones of Bangor, Wisconsin, and George W. Merna of Castleton, Illinois, made their presence known by taking away some of the top ribbons.

Judging was performed in a very fair and satisfactory manner by W. L. Carlyle, manager of the Prince of Wales' ranch at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

PERCHERONS BEST IN A DECADE

JUDGING COMMITTEE

Eight states and Canada were represented by Percherons at the 1928 International. The show was even larger than that of 1927 and was termed the best in the past decade. Judging of the large classes was watched by a big crowd of spectators.

Sir Laet, the American-bred junior and grand champion stallion, was a two-year-old, owned by W. H. Butler's Woodside Farms, Columbus, Ohio. This colt weighed 2,100 pounds, was clean in his hocks, and was heavy-boned. Mr. Butler bred Sir Laet and a full brother of the champion, Rolaet, a winner in the futurity classes.

Senior Champion Is Outstanding

Brossac, the senior and reserve grand champion of the show, was imported late in 1927 by Trumans' Pioneer Stud Farm of Bushnell, Illinois, and sold to the Tazewell County (Ill.) Percheron Breeders' Association. Weighing 2,450 pounds, this beautiful light grey stallion looked wonderfully big and smooth.

Cavalier, owned by E. L. Humbert of Corning, Iowa, was second in a strong two-year-old class, and followed Sir Laet up the line to become reserve champion American bred Percheron stallion.

When the mares were judged Laet offspring came to the fore again. Laet's Magic Queen was winner of the aged mare class and grand champion of the show. She was shown by Montcalm Farms, Frank B. Foster, owner, of Phoenixville, Pennsylvania. Michigan State College's Maple Grove Leila, a former International champion, came back to take the reserve grand championship. The junior champion was Carmaline, whose young owner, Glenn Sonner of Delaware, Ohio, showed a number of blue ribbon winners.

Well Known Judges Officiate

The judging committee consisted of the following men: Harry McNair of Chicago, E. A. Trowbridge of the University of Missouri, and H. H. Kildee of Iowa State College.

Laet winnings were of outstanding interest from the breeder's viewpoint. Both the grand champion stallion and the grand champion mare were sired by Laet. No sire has ever before achieved such an honor in the history of the International. Other big achievements, including a first in get-of-sire, went to Laet offspring and descendants. Two sons of the famous old Carnot followed Laet as sires of 1928 International prize winners.

Seven Percherons were sold during the show including three mares and four stallions. The six for which the prices were known sold for a total of $7,000. A large number of buyers were pricing stallions and mares.

BEST GROUP OF FIVE PERCHERON STALLIONS, 1928

Owned by E. L. Humbert & Son, Corning, Iowa

SHIRE SHOW OF GOOD QUALITY

R. M. Hamer
Judge

Six breeders brought together fifty-two head of Shires before Judge R. M. Hamer. Hope is expressed by those interested in the promotion of the Shire horse that by another year more of the many worthy specimens of the breed now extant in this country and Canada will be assembled in the International competition.

Two veteran Shire exhibitors were present with full show strings: F. A. Huddlestun of Webster City, Iowa, and the Truman Pioneer Stud Farm of Bushnell, Illinois. These two well known Shire establishments shared the grand championship ribbons, Trumans winning one on their three-year-old stallion, Laddie II, and Huddlestun the other on his two-year-old mare, Wauneta. After Judge Hamer had chosen her to head the two-year-old line, he further elevated her to the junior championship, and later in competition with H. W. Matern's winning three-year-old and senior champion, Laurel Flower, the judge favored the junior representative for the grand championship.

The grand champion mare is sired by Edgewood Hengist, a stallion that for several years has been well up in the money at the International and this year was second in the aged class.

In the groups, it was a fifty-fifty affair between Matern and Huddlestun. The blue ribbons for the classes of stallion and three mares and get of sire went to Matern, while Huddlestun showed the winning produce of dam and the best five stallions.

BELGIANS PRESENT SPLENDID SHOW

D. J. Kays

JUDGING COMMITTEE

The Belgian show was the strongest gathering of the breed that the International has been host to for a number of years. Although the quality was good throughout, the stallion classes were particularly excellent.

Heading an impressive line of aged stallions was Lordeau II, shown by Charles A. Wentz & Sons of Kirby, Ohio. He was later elevated to the senior and grand championship, with reserve senior and reserve grand ribbon going to the Holbert Horse Importing Company of Greeley, Iowa, on their imported four-year-old, Man d'Haute-Croin.

Michigan College Wins Albert Cup

The junior championship in the stallion classes was won by Michigan State College on Preston Wolfe. This stallion later had the extremely high honor of winning the King Albert Cup, given for the best stallion or mare of the show, to be awarded to an animal that had never once won it. Lordeau II was presented with the trophy at the 1927 show and therefore was ineligible to receive it again.

The reserve junior championship went to Earle Brown of Minneapolis, on Mendo d'Ergot, a two-year-old stallion bred by C. E. Jones of Livermore, Iowa. Brown showed another Jones bred entry for the senior championship in the mare classes, in Genese d'Ergot, the first prize aged mare. She won grand champion honors at the 1926 International. Reserve senior and grand championship was placed on the second prize aged mare, Reconnaissance de Geron, an imported mare shown by Brown.

Another class furnished both the junior and the reserve junior champions. This was the two year old lineup, which was headed by Range Line Marie, owned by Mr. Brown. She won junior honors, with the reserve ribbon going to Boulder Bridge Farm, Excelsior, Minnesota, on Syncopation. When it came to a decision as to which of the championship nominees should wear the grand championship ribbon, the three judges elected Brown's Genese d'Ergot. It was the summation of a splendid list of winnings to the credit of Mr. Brown in the mare classes.

Bronze Trophy to Holbert

Aside from the top ribbon in the produce of dam class, which went to the entries of Charles Wentz, the representatives of the Earle Brown stables also had a sweeping victory in the breeding group classes. To the Holbert Horse Importing Company went the highly coveted bronze trophy offered by Societe Nationale Pour l'Exportation du Cheval Belge, of Brussels, to the International exhibitor showing the best five stallions of this breed. The bronze is called

"Etalon au Trot" (Stallion at a Trot), and is the work of the celebrated Belgian sculptor, Bastin.

A triumvirate consisting of D. J. Kays, of the Ohio State University; A. B. Caine, of the Iowa State College; and J. S. Montgomery, of South St. Paul, Minnesota, chose the winners.

Mr. James D. Conner, Jr., who has so ably and efficiently served the Association of Importers and Breeders of Belgian Draft Horses for more than forty years, and who has contributed greatly toward popularizing the Belgian draft horse in this country, was signally honored by the Belgian government during the 1928 International Live Stock Exposition. This dean of Belgian horse breeders was, by decree of King Albert of Belgium, made a "Knight of the Order of the Crown." A beautiful decoration accompanied the decree, both of which were presented to Mr. Conner, with proper ceremony, by a personal representative of the King.

SUFFOLK CHAMPIONS REPEAT

Samuel Insull's Hawthorn Farm, Hawthorn Farm, Illinois, predominated in the Suffolk classes this year.

The three-year-old stallion, Hawthorn Wisdom, repeated his grand championship winning of a year ago. He is a son of Ashmoor Romeo, many times an International grand champion. Hawthorn Marvel, a stallion foal from the second prize aged mare, Hawthorn Henham Hope, was made reserve champion to the three-year-old.

In the mare classes, Hawthorn Sea Breeze added another grand championship to her record, which makes the fourth successive purple for her at the International. She, in turn, is a daughter of Ashmoor Romeo, that also sired the champion stallion. The two-year-old, Hawthorn Jewel, was reserve champion.

John G. Truman of Bushnell, Illinois, judged.

GELDING AND GRADE MARE SHOW GOOD

The judging committee chose the recently imported five-year-old bay Clydesdale owned by Wilson and Company to head the line of aged draft geldings. He was a facile mover at the walk and trot, was clean and flat in his bone, and possessed plenty of the scale that should mark a winner in a draft horse line at the International.

Crowding the top of the class was a dark bay horse, weighing over 2,200 pounds, shown by the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company. He was lacking in the general style and quality of the imported gelding that stood above him, although he represented a very creditable type of utility horse. Third went to Wilson on another purebred Clydesdale, while fourth in line was the purebred imported Clyde gelding, Scotty, of the Union Stock Yard stables. Hard to fault at the ground, weighing 2,100 pounds, and presenting an ideal set of legs, he still is a force to cope with in any class of draft geldings, despite his 13 years.

Imported Geldings Champions

Highland Lad, another of the recent imports of Wilson's, topped the three-year-old halter class without any trouble. The entries of J. F. Hassler of Princeton, Illinois, were in second and third. A young grandson of the famous Clydesdale sire, Fairholme Footprint, from the University of Wisconsin's stables, led the two-year-olds.

The judges selected the winning aged gelding of Wilson and Company to wear the champion ribbon while the same firm's growthy, free moving, very promising three-year-old was the logical recipient of the reserve ribbon.

In the class for pair of heavy draft geldings shown to wagon, Wilson and Company's champion and reserve champion geldings made up the team that most pleased the judges, and the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company showed pairs for second and third. On tandem draft pairs, the same order of winnings followed in first and second, with J. F. Hassler third, as also in the four horse teams, save third here went to Boulder Bridge Farm on a quartet of Belgians.

Six Horse Teams Capture Attention

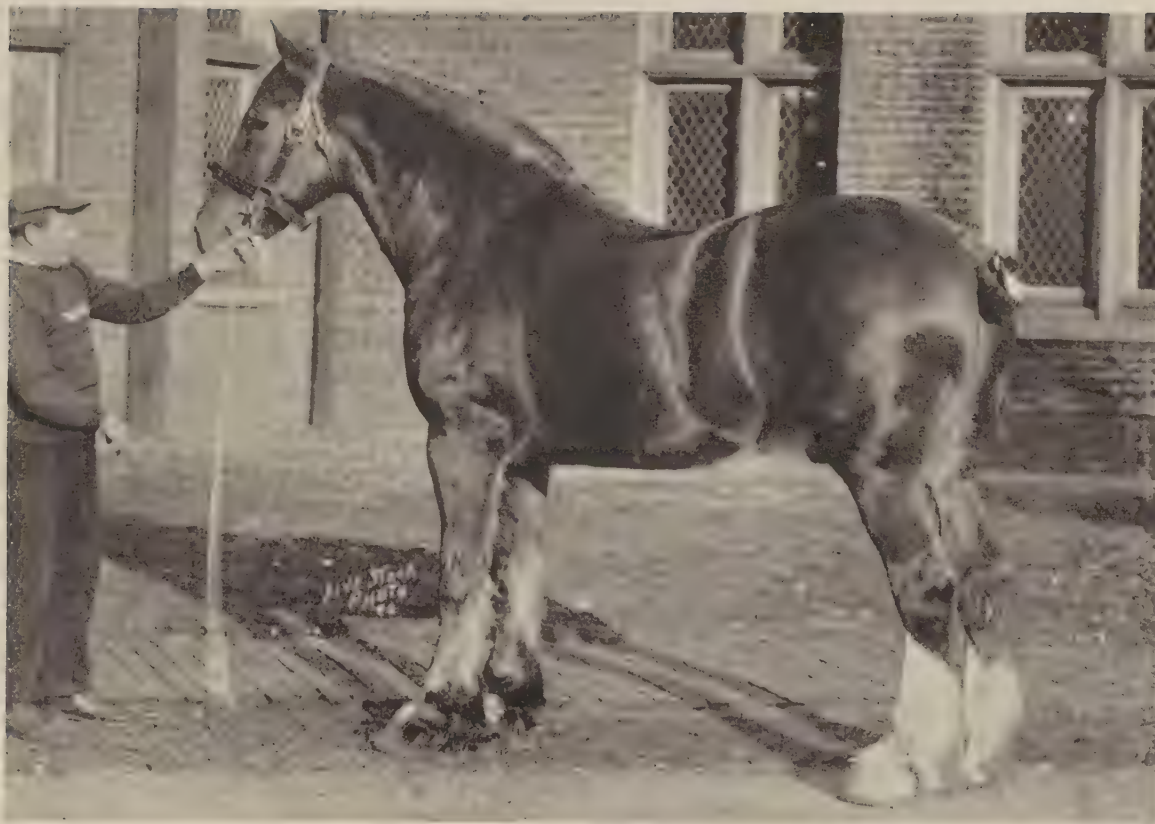

The six horse teams participated in their usual hotly contested battle, in which both teams and drivers, with what is seemingly miraculous accord, attempt to outdo their opponents for the blue ribbon. The Wilson six, piloted by Frank Housely, finally won the judging committee's approval, while the Stock Yard team was second and the Hassler hitch third.

In the lighter weight pairs, Wilson and Company won first and George W. Merna, a Clydesdale breeder of Castle-ton, Illinois, second. The Boulder Bridge Farm Belgians topped the non-professional pair class, and a Soderberg Clyde team was second. The same two exhibitors stood in similar order in the non-professional four-horse team class.

Halter classes, pairs, and four horse teams were judged by W. L. Carlyle of Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, and R. M. Hamer of Sunbury, Ohio, with D. J. Kays of the Ohio State University, as referee, and the six horse teams were viewed by Hamer and Thomas Clark of Edgemont, Pennsylvania. Referee on the sixes was Lawrence Smith of New York City.

THE EVENING HORSE SHOW

More Entries, Larger Crowds Mark 1928

O. T. Henkle
Chairman Horse
Show Committee

The 1928 International Horse Show attracted larger entries than at any time for some years, while the usual capacity crowds filled boxes and seats and thronged the promenade at each performance.

The appreciative attention and applause which the various classes and individual entries met with made the exhibitors who had brought their splendid horses to Chicago from widely separated parts of the continent feel well repaid. Interest never waned, as the riding, driving, and jumping events, interspersed with a wide variety of parades, six horse team performances, sheep dog exhibitions, and polo games kept the arena filled all the time with attention gripping action.

Nation's Best Represented

The finest quality horses in the United States took part in the seven evening and two matinee performances. Starting on the opening Saturday evening, the shows gathered in interest until the climax was reached on the closing night, December 8, when the final championships, including the keenly competitive six horse team blue ribbon, were awarded. A number of horse show critics expressed the opinion that no better staged horse show event was ever witnessed anywhere in America than that of the closing night of the 1928 International.

Keen though the competition was throughout, it was particularly so in three and five gaited classes, where entries of the highest order competed, while many of the country's headline winners from the roadster, heavy harness and pony ranks delighted the ringside in their animated contest for the favor of the judge.

The hunter and jumper classes, always a favorite feature with the audience, also furnished some excellent performances.

Noted Judges Officiate

Ribbons were tied in the saddle and fine harness classes by Thomas W. Clark, of Edgemont, Pennsylvania; Claude Pemberton, of Elizabethtown, Kentucky; and Harry McNair, of Chicago. Mr. Clark officiated alone in the pony and heavy harness classes.

Hunters and jumpers were reviewed by Mrs. Margaret Thorne Smith, of Millbrook, New York, and Andrew Montgomery, of Oconomowoc, Wisconsin. The

W. J. O'Connor
Secretary Horse
Show Committee

draft horse harness events were scored by W. L. Carlyle, manager of the Prince of Wales' ranch at Calgary, Alberta, Canada, and R. M. Hamer, McLean, Virginia, with D. J. Kays, of the Ohio State University, Columbus, acting as referee. Serving in the capacity of associate judges were Robert A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, New Jersey, and R. Lawrence Smith, of New York.

The full success and unstinting praise which marked this most recent series of International Horse Shows is creditable to the efforts of Chairman O. T. Henkle and Secretary W. J. O'Connor of the Horse Show Committee, and their staff of able assistants.

MEAT SHOPPE A POPULAR ATTRACTION

By R. C. POLLOCK, Superintendent

R. C. Pollock
Supt.

The unusually keen interest shown in the Quality in Meats Exhibit at the 1928 International Live Stock Exposition was a source of deep gratification to its sponsors. The attention directed toward this feature by the record-breaking crowds indicated that the effort to make this the most interesting, attractive and valuable exhibit of meats yet presented had been successful.

Observation throughout the week brought out a very significant fact—that visitors in general were not merely walking through the meat exhibit room and glancing about casually, but were devoting serious study to the various units—more than they ever had in the past. Many took occasion to tell the attendants of their favorable reaction to the exhibit.

As in previous years, the National Live Stock and Meat Board joined with the International management in presenting the meat exhibit, with the full co-operation of the Institute of American Meat Packers, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and state agricultural experiment stations.

Quality Meats Stressed

Ever since its beginning the International has served to stress the character of the finest grade of meat product on the hoof. Now it goes a step forward and offers to the public a lesson in what the same product looks like on the hooks.

The first "Meat Shoppe" was introduced at the 1924 International in a specially constructed building which was an exact copy of the house in Stratford, England, where the father of the famous William Shakespeare served the populace of Stratford-on-Avon in the capacity of butcher. "The Meat Shoppe" continues at each session of the International to be one of its most attention attracting and highly informative features.

SECTIONAL VIEW OF QUALITY IN MEATS EXHIBIT

Contrasting Types Are Featured

The exhibit was new in its entirety. One of the most popular features dealt with the subject of changing styles in live stock through the years. In this display attention was called to the marked difference in types of meat animals of fifty years ago and today. While present-day demands are for the trim, lightweight carcass, half a century ago the market was for the extremely heavy animals. Carcasses of beef, pork and lamb typical of fifty years ago and those typical of today hung side by side to bring out the striking contrast. The wholesale cuts were displayed in the foreground.

EXHIBIT SHOWING CHANGING TREND TO MEET CONSUMER DEMAND

Another display of a very timely nature showed the ideal types of beef, pork and lamb carcasses that meet consumer demand. The present-day demand is for cuts of meat of handy size. Furthermore, a large percentage of the preference is for the so-called choice cuts, which are a relatively small part of the carcass, especially in the instance of beef.

Explanatory cards accompanying each of the meats in this exhibit gave data as to the preference for the various cuts and general information as to the important part played by meat in the diet. One of the points brought out which attracted a great deal of attention was that 85 per cent of the consumer demand is for only 25 per cent of the beef carcass.

IDEAL TYPES MOST POPULAR WITH CONSUMER

In a small cooler at one end of the room an attractive lamb display was installed by the National Wool Growers' Association. The new, practical and profitable retail lamb cuts brought out in the current national lamb campaign were featured in this exhibit.

At the opposite end of the room, in refrigerated display cases, were exhibits showing a wide assortment of prepared meats and meat sundries. A display of liver called attention to the recent important discovery that liver is valuable in the treatment of anemia, and emphasized the fact that beef, lamb and pig liver are of equal nutritive value.

EXHIBIT OF LAMB CARCASSES AND ATTRACTIVE RETAIL LAMB CUTS

Pork Cuts Prominently Exhibited

Another display was given over to meat-type hogs. Here were shown two sides of pork of uniform size and weighing within the range of 190 to 225 pounds. Wholesale cuts were displayed in the foreground.

The foregoing displays occupied a portion of two large coolers, along with the offerings of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the experiment stations, which set forth the results of experimental work.

Prize-Winning Carcasses Displayed

On Thursday morning the displays occupying the large coolers were removed and replaced with the prize-winning carcasses in the annual carcass contest. These carcasses were sold at public auction on Friday morning, but remained in the coolers until the close of the Exposition. The auction was keenly competitive and lively bidding resulted in excellent prices being obtained, particularly for the champions. The champion beef carcass exhibited by Keith Collins of Liscomb, Iowa, was purchased by the McCaulley Market of Mount Kisco, N. Y., at $6.75 per pound. The champion lamb carcass, exhibited by J. D. Larkin of Queenston, Ont., Canada, was purchased by Stop and Shop of Chicago at $3.00 per pound. The champion hog carcass, shown by Iowa State College, went to Stop and Shop of Chicago at $1.60 per pound.

The carcass contest has become one of the highly educational features of the Exposition. The growing interest in it indicates an increased appreciation of the value of quality meats.

The information on meats conveyed by the displays of the actual product was augmented by an explanatory pamphlet. Several thousand copies of the National Live Stock and Meat Board's new recipe book, "The Housewife's Meat Calendar," also were given out to visitors.

The detail of the exhibits offered by the government, the experiment stations, and the Institute of American Meat Packers, was as follows:

AGE MADE THE DIFFERENCE

U. S. Department of Agriculture

Mutton, the meat from mature sheep, and lamb, the meat from sheep less than a year old, are both wholesome. Lamb, being generally the most delicate and cutting into smaller and more handy-sized roasts, is usually more in demand and higher priced than mutton. Nevertheless, mutton will often be found more economical, and mutton similar to that which was shown in this exhibit is wholesome, palatable and nutritious.

The carcasses and cuts shown in this feature of the exhibit were from Shropshire sheep produced by the Department of Agriculture at the Government Experiment Farm near Middlebury, Vt., on native pasture typical of New England.

CATTLE WEIGHTS AFFECT RETAIL CUTS

Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station, Institute of American Meat Packers, Co-operating

In the selection of a retail cut, consumers should be guided by the weight of the side from which the meat is taken as well as by its quality. This is because the weight of the carcass has direct bearing upon the size of the retail purchase and its total cost. Pot roasts, short ribs and boiling pieces of almost any desired size can be made from both light and heavy carcasses. However, other cuts such as roasts and steaks, should have a certain minimum thickness for satisfactory cooking. Therefore, the weight of these retail cuts is influenced by the weight of the side from which they are taken.

This display showed the weights of some standard retail cuts when taken from calf, yearling and heavy beef carcasses.

LAMB TYPES CONTRASTED

Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station, U. S.
Department of Agriculture, Co-operating

The lamb carcasses and cuts in this feature of the exhibit illustrated meat produced with four primary types of western range lambs which were grown at the U. S. Sheep Experiment Station, Dubois, Idaho, and had been fattened under Corn Belt conditions at Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station on the ration of corn, 7 parts; cottonseed meal, 1 part; corn silage and clover hay.

Contrary to the general impression, the palatability of the meat from the Rambouillets has been found approximately equal to the palatability of the meat from the lambs of the other breed types represented in this exhibit, which were Corriedale, Hampshire-Rambouillet and Hampshire-Corriedale.

EXHIBIT SHOWING HOW TYPES, AGE AND WEIGHT ARE IMPORTANT FACTORS

MARKET WEIGHT RESPONSIBLE FOR DIFFERENCES

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Institute of American Meat Packers, Co-operating

The weight and fatness or finish of market hogs were shown to be responsible for rather marked differences in the products. Ordinarily, with usual methods of production, greater weight and higher finish go hand in hand.

Lighter-weight hogs produce smaller hams, shoulders, loins and chops, leaner bacon and less lard. The heavier, more highly finished animals yield the heavier hams more suitable for restaurant and delicatessen trade, with shoulders, loins, chops and other cuts of proportionate size. The lard yield of light hogs is often as low as 7 to 10 per cent of the live weight, while that of heavy hogs frequently is more than 20 per cent.

MARKET GRADES AND TYPES OF SWINE CARCASSES

MEAT STUDIES RECOGNIZE FIVE BEEF GRADES

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Institute of American Meat Packers, Co-operating

Grade measures the general desirability of the carcass as an article of commerce and indicates the relative excellence of the meat from the consumer's standpoint. This exhibit included five carcasses of beef, each representative of a different grade. The grades illustrated were Prime, Choice, Good, Medium and Common.

Although all of the beef in the exhibit was Federally inspected, and therefore wholesome, it was apparent at a glance that the carcasses differed widely in conformation, finish and quality. These are the three factors which make up grade.

It could easily be noted how the carcasses scaled down from Prime grade to Common grade with respect to each of these characteristics. The fullness of the round and loin, thickness of flesh on the ribs, thick but smooth and creamy white covering of fat on the Prime grade carcass was in marked contrast with the Common grade carcass with its relatively thin round, shallow loin, thin fleshing over the ribs, relatively thin layer of fat over the loin and rump, and numerous bare patches which were practically devoid of fat.

In the wholesale cuts exhibited, other important differences between the grades were apparent—namely, the differences in quality.

It was pointed out that not only did the grades at the extremes—namely, Prime and Common—contrast strongly, but between the extremes the carcasses stepped down by regular gradations. This is the justification for the various grades.

The five grades which were shown in the exhibit, together with Cutter and Low Cutter, are recognized in the National co-operative research project, "A Study of the Factors Which Influence the Quality and Palatability of Meat." Of 2,315 carcasses graded in that study the percentages in the different grades were as follows:

Prime43
Choice	22.98
Good	41.94
Medium	31.23
Common	3.07
Cutter35

INTEREST GROWS IN MEAT JUDGING CONTEST

By R. C. POLLOCK, Superintendent

That the Intercollegiate Meat Judging Contest at the International Live Stock Exposition is serving to stimulate more interest in the study of meat, was further demonstrated in the contest of 1928. The manner in which contestants of the nine competing teams applied themselves to their tasks showed plainly their interest in the subject and spoke highly for the training they had received.

The competing universities and colleges were: University of Illinois, Iowa State College, Kansas State Agricultural College, University of Missouri, University of Nebraska, Ohio State University, Oklahoma A. & M. College, Pennsylvania State College, and South Dakota State College.

Co-ed Team Is Victor

One of the institutions—the University of Nebraska—was represented by a team composed entirely of girls. While co-eds had taken part as members of teams in one or two instances in the past, this was the first time that an entire team of girls had ever competed. The success of their initial effort is noteworthy. They carried off highest honors in the contest as a whole, and two of the girls tied for first in the ranking of the ten highest individuals.

The team finished first with a score of 2312 out of a possible 2,700 and Kansas was second with 2,249. The high individuals were Misses Louise Genung and Marjorie Thompson—each scoring 787 out of a possible 900.

The young women of the winning Nebraska team were:

Louise Genung, Carns, Neb., a Senior;
Marjory Thompson, Billings, Mont., a Junior;
Winnie E. Powell, Hardy, Neb., a Junior;
Myrtle Greenlund, Alternate.

Professor W. J. Loeffel of the Animal Husbandry Department was the coach and Professor Rebekah Gibbons assisted.

Nebraska made its best showing in the judging of pork. The team was first in this department, scoring 801 points out of a possible 900. All three of the girls placed among the ten high individuals in pork, with Louise Genung heading the list. Of course, their showing in the other meats necessarily had to be very creditable in order to bring the team in as winner in the contest.

Kansas High on Beef

The Kansans distinguished themselves in judging beef. With the score of 1,016 out of a possible 1,200 the team was well above all others, Ohio being the closest contender with 985. The work of Dale Sheel of Kansas in beef judging did much to place his team first, while O. E. Funk also contributed substantially to the count.

Illinois excelled in judging lamb with a total of 538 out of 600. In this division all of the nine teams were rather closely grouped. Only 4 points separated Iowa from the high Illinois team. The keen competition in lamb was shown even more clearly in the scoring of the ten high individuals. J. C. McLean of Missouri was high man with 187 points to his credit out of 200. Following only one point below him was Miss Genung of Nebraska and the scores down almost the entire list were consecutive figures.

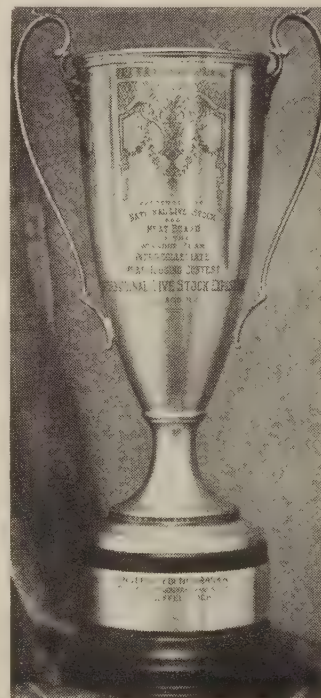

By winning in this contest Nebraska came into possession of the National Live Stock and Meat Board trophy for the second time. They won it the first year the contest was held—1926, but last year surrendered it to the Iowa State College. A school must win it three times before it remains their permanent property.

The Pullman scholarship of $250.00 also went to Nebraska. This amount will be paid to a deserving student at the institution to be used toward a course in scientific agriculture. Selection of this student rests in the hands of a group of trustees appointed by the International management. The scholarship is in the form of a loan and is perpetuated in that it is passed on to other students when paid back.

Medals to Individual Winners

Those placing first in the ranking of individuals for the different branches of the contest were awarded appropriate bronze medals.

NATIONAL LIVE STOCK AND MEAT BOARD TROPHY
Won by Nebraska Team

By way of explanation as to the actual judging in this contest, it may be said that the meat to be judged was divided into nine classes, including beef, pork, and lamb. There were two classes of beef carcasses, two classes of wholesale beef cuts, one class of pork carcasses, two classes of wholesale pork cuts, and two classes of lamb carcasses. Each class was divided into four exhibits. The meats were arranged in the cooler of Wilson and Company's Wholesale Market and the judging proceeded in a systematic manner. For each class 15 minutes were allowed to take notes and later 10 minutes for the writing of reasons for the placings.

Grading of the papers and the selection of winners was in the hands of a committee composed of A. T. Edinger, W. C. Davis and K. F. Warner, all of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and John A. Kotal, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers. Valuable assistance throughout the contest was rendered by A. T. Semple of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and Kenneth Clark of the University of Maryland.

Complete results of the contest were as follows:

COLLEGE LIVE STOCK JUDGING CONTEST GROWS

J. H. Shepperd
Supt.

The Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest continues to grow. Two more teams entered the lists this year, making a total of 23 college teams competing.

The newcomers are the Universities of Georgia and Manitoba. The Georgia institution makes its first appearance in the history of the contest, and the Manitoba college is a welcome contestant returned after a number of years' absence.

Oklahoma Wins Trophy

The Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College sent five young men who returned the highest team score. Their chief pleasure in connection with their victory was in becoming permanent possessors of a handsomely wrought bronze, known in the early years of the exposition as the "Spoor Trophy," having first been offered by the late J. A. Spoor, former president of the Chicago Stock Yard Company. The original was won by the Iowa State College, and when a duplicate was placed in competition at the 1913 exposition, it was named the "Union Stock Yard and Transit Company Trophy," to become the permanent possession of the institution whose student team won the contest three different years. Passing temporarily from one state to another during the 16 years' interim since 1913, it now finds a final owner in the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, whose victory this year is their third since 1913. The Sir Thomas Lipton trophy also went to the Sooner team.

W. L. Blizzard, coach of the Oklahoma team, is to be complimented upon the splendid records made by students in these contests, whose expert knowledge of live stock is tempered by his tutelage.

Oklahoma's five-man team and two alternates included Quentin Williams, Carlton Corbin, Charles Hogan, E. E. Jacobs, D. V. Nelson, Karl Wilanttt, and Arthur Petermann. Quentin Williams was the high scorer of the contest, coming through with 935 points out of a possible 1000, which is the highest individual record ever made in the history of the contest. His score was closely approached by one of his team mates, Carlton Corbin, who totaled 926 points, which also is just over the previous high mark of 924, established by the 1927 winner, Theodore Besh of the Iowa State College.

Kansas Is Runner-up

The Kansas State Agricultural College team finished in second place with a score of 4,532 points, as compared to Oklahoma's 4,567. Of the four classes of stock judged, Oklahoma was first on cattle and sheep, third on horses, and tied with Purdue for sixth on swine. First in judging swine went to the Ohio State University team, and the Wyoming students led on horses.

Once again the smooth running management of the contest is creditable to the faithful supervision of J. H. Shepperd of the North Dakota Agricultural College and his staff of experienced assistants.

THE UNION STOCK YARD AND TRANSIT CO. TROPHY

For the first time in fifteen years the handsome bronze, depicting the primitive relationship of man and beast in farming, has passed into permanent hands. This trophy, which is offered to the college team making the highest score in judging all classes of live stock, must be won three times to become the permanent property of an institution.

It has been temporarily shared by no less than eight different state colleges during this time and now becomes the lasting possession of this year's victor, the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College. Arrangements have been made for the trophy to be duplicated and again placed in competition for the 1929 contest. Teams that have won this bronze since 1913 are:

1913	A. & M. College of Texas.	1917	University of Nebraska.
1914	No contest.	1918	Ontario Agricultural College.
1915	No contest.	1919	A. & M. College of Texas.

PERCHERON SOCIETY OF AMERICA TROPHY

The Percheron Society of America awards a handsome silver trophy to the team taking highest rank in judging Percherons. Said trophy will become the permanent property of an institution only after it has been won three times. Following are the institutions that have won this trophy:

1920	Texas A. & M. College.	1925	Oklahoma A. & M. College.
1921	Ohio State University.	1926	Oklahoma A. & M. College.

This summary shows a well distributed list of "high man" winners following the first four contests.

It will surprise most people to learn that the 20 years in which comparable data is available that the high man has been from the winning team twelve and from a lower team eight years.

PULLMAN SCHOLARSHIPS ADVANCE EDUCATION

The Pullman Company for the fifth consecutive year offered $5,000 to be divided into 20 equal scholarships of $250 each and awarded to the various agricultural colleges in proportion to the winnings of their teams and live stock in the contests of the International Live Stock Exposition.

Iowa State College again will gain the benefit of the largest number of these scholarships, four of them being allotted to this institution on the basis of the splendid record of winnings returned by their live stock entries in the 1928 show.

Three scholarships go to the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College—one on the basis of their winning the Live Stock Judging Contest, a second on their team scoring highest on cattle in this contest, and a third by reason of the success of the college live stock in the competitions of the exposition open to them.

Are Widely Distributed

The Michigan State College and the University of Illinois won two each on their college stock, while on the same basis Purdue University, the Kansas State Agricultural College, and the Universities of Kentucky, Minnesota, and Wisconsin received one each. For its judging team being first on swine, the Ohio State University took one scholarship as did Wyoming, whose team led in horse judging. The University of Nebraska and the North Carolina State Agricultural College were each presented with one for their teams being first on meat judging and grain scoring respectively.

The basis for awarding the scholarships is as follows:

1. To the college whose team does the most efficient work in the Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, on horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, all classes of live stock; and grains and meats, one scholarship each.

2. The remaining thirteen scholarships were distributed on the basis of cash prizes won by the colleges in the open classes for International Exposition money only; the money of the Exposition that is won on the grain and forage exhibit not to be counted in this item.

3. The number of scholarships that can be allotted to any school is restricted to twenty-five per cent (25%) of the whole.

4. These twenty scholarships of $250.00 each must, in accordance with the Pullman Company's wishes, be awarded to twenty deserving students who would otherwise not be able to secure a scientific training in agriculture or animal husbandry; and this money must not, under any conditions, be divided among a greater number.

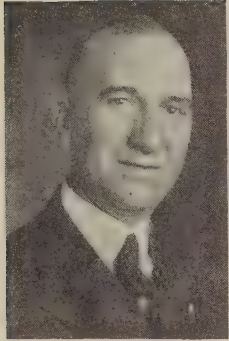

5. Students favored with the Pullman scholarships are to be paid this money in quarterly installments.

Administration

This fund is to be administered by trustees chosen by the directors of the International Live Stock Exposition, who will disburse the funds in line with the above rules.

The trustees shall receive from the students accepting the funds a promise to repay the money (if possible) obtained through this Foundation. The money thus refunded is then to be credited to the college originally winning the scholarship and to be made again available. By this means a permanent revolving fund, known as the PULLMAN COMPANY FUND, is to be created to aid deserving students who would not otherwise be able to secure a scientific training in agriculture.

NON-COLLEGIATE LIVE STOCK JUDGING CONTEST

M. G. Thornburg
Supt.

Competing against the champion teams of eighteen other states, three boys from Oklahoma again returned the highest score in the International Non-Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest.

High on the team was Wiley Morse, an eighteen-year-old farm-raised boy of Alva, Oklahoma. He was second highest individual scorer of the contest. In addition to the honor of being the highest scorer in an Oklahoma state contest, held previous to the International, he was voted the champion health boy of the state. For his individual rating of second in the International judging contest, he will receive $300 from the Chicago Association of Commerce, which donates $1,000 to be presented to the three ranking boys in this contest, with the reservation that it be used for furthering their education at any state agricultural college of their choosing. The $300 award to Wiley Morse is the share of the total allotted to the second ranking man.

Oklahoma Boys Are Winners

The second boy on the winning Oklahoma team and third in the contest was Russell Van Buskirk of Avard. He is a nineteen year old youth, a high school graduate, and an active participant in 4-H Club work in his community, serving for a time as president of his county club. He receives $200 as the share of the Chicago Association of Commerce donation that goes to the third boy in the contest.

The third boy on the Sooner team was Gaines Gormley, a seventeen year old high school student, and a member of the North West Oklahoma Model 4-H Club. He was highest in a live stock judging contest at the 1928 Oklahoma State Fair and was fifth here.

A. R. Jacob, Woods county agent, and Paul G. Adams, live stock specialist of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, are to be credited in a large measure with the success of their state team. At the last four expositions the Oklahoma junior judging delegations have made splendid records, winning the contest in 1925 and 1927, and taking second in 1926. The team score of 1536 points is one point under that established by last year's Sooner trio, which was by a wide margin the highest score then made in the history of the contest.

Kansas Youth Receives Top Honors

Earl Coulter, an eighteen year old Kansas boy, won the highest individual honors of the contest and did much to elevate his team rank to second place in so doing. He is the product of self applied industry and innate ingenuity. Suddenly faced with a large share of the responsibility of running a hundred acre farm left by the death of his father when Earl was twelve years old, he proved himself capable of successfully meeting these emergencies, so weighty for a boy of twelve years.

His mother, his sister and himself have farmed their legacy profitably since his father's death, and are succeeding in cancelling incumbrances. Such achievement is too noteworthy to go unrecognized. Earl, therefore, has the hearty congratulations of the International Live Stock Exposition on this high but well deserved honor come to him. As individual winner of the contest, he receives a $500 check from the Chicago Association of Commerce, to be used in extending his educational opportunities.

Two brothers, Arden and Forrest Booth of Fairview, Kansas, were fourth and eighth respectively, and comprised the two other members of the Kansas team. W. H. Atzenweiler, Brown county agent, and J. J. Moxley, live stock specialist of the Kansas State Agricultural College, coached the Kansas team.

Girl Makes High Record

It is an interesting note that girls are coming to the fore in live stock judging contests as well as in all other lines of live stock endeavor. Miss Anna Handley, a seventeen year old girl of Lewisburg, West Virginia, is listed as "high man" on swine judging. Earl Coulter of Kansas was high on sheep. Wiley Morse of Oklahoma led on cattle, and Forrest Booth of Kansas was the ranking boy on horses.

The contest was again conducted under the efficient direction of M. G. Thornburg, Iowa State Secretary of Agriculture, and his assistant, Carl N. Kennedy. Its success was made possible by the co-operation of the coaches of the various teams and those live stock authorities who kindly consented to serve as judges.

JUNIOR ACTIVITIES

By G. L. NOBLE

G. L. Noble
Supt. National
Boys' and Girls'
Club Congress

Results secured by approximately 650,000 4-H club members organized in every state of the Union, carrying on 4-H club projects individually in their homes or on their home farms, was the basis of the Seventh National 4-H Club Congress held in conjunction with the 1928 International Live Stock Exposition.

The blocky, finely finished baby beeves; the uniform, deep kernalled corn; the smooth, disease-free potatoes; the well developed bolls of cotton; the attractive, suitable girls' outfits; the cosy, homey centers of girls' rooms in the home furnishing department—these and many others were the result of study, concentration, effort and application on the part of thousands of 4-H club members throughout the nation.

The buoyancy and enthusiasm which these progressive young delegates to the 4-H Club Congress inject into the activities of the International Live Stock Exposition are but an expression of the new blood—the absolute confidence in the opportunities afforded by agriculture, and the spirit of victory which is pervading and influencing the countryside wherever 4-H Clubs are organized. The confidence of these youths is born of a knowledge of how to become successful. They have demonstrated to themselves, their parents and their neighbors that the better practices advocated by the agricultural colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture lead to the highway of success.

Here is a leaven—a new yeast—a hidden enzyme—a mighty vehicle for progress, which in many quarters is just beginning to be acknowledged as one which is contributing to our national growth and development to an extent that is yet but little realized.

Surveying results of the 4-H Clubs, the nation's captains of industry, its chief executive, its legislators, and the leaders and organizers of vast farm organizations without equivocation or reservation one and all pronounce the programs of the 4-H Clubs as good and fundamental endeavor.

To adequately show the results of the 4-H Club program is the purpose of the National 4-H Club Congress. Its exhibits, its judging contests, its demonstrations, its health scoring, its play programs, and other features are intended to demonstrate to the world the benefits of 4-H Club work and if possible, to set new national and world records of achievement each year. Speaking of records, 1928 was the first year in the history of the International Live Stock Exposition that a 4-H Club boy was ever honored by having bestowed upon him the purple ribbon for having fed and shown the grand champion steer.

The National Club Congress is made possible by the whole-hearted co-operation of the agricultural colleges, the United States Department of Agriculture, the International Live Stock Exposition, various business and farm organizations, and the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work. Much credit is due to all of the state and national club leaders who assisted, especially to Wakelin McNeel, chairman of the executive committee, and his fellow members.

BEST POTATO EXHIBIT TO MICHIGAN

"A fine lot, but perhaps not as uniformly high quality entries as in previous years," was the verdict of the majority who observed the 1928 exhibits. Each state submitted five exhibits of 32 potatoes each—each being the product grown by an individual club member. Entries were scored on trueness to type, uniformity of sample, freedom from disease or blemish and quality of flesh. Michigan won first place; Wisconsin second; Pennsylvania third; Ohio fourth; and Minnesota fifth.

Individual Exhibits

Seven varieties of potatoes were shown by individual club members. Prizes were awarded as follows:

Complete Outfit for 4-H Club Girl

Perhaps a girl's first thought is of her personal appearance—hence the great interest in Class I of the clothing exhibit which consisted of a complete outfit for a 4-H Club girl. Not more than four garments made during the year 1928, plus appropriate shoes, stockings and hat chosen by the girl, made up each exhibit. A statement of the purpose of the outfit plus the photograph of the exhibitor wearing it was also submitted. Twenty-one states (5 more than in 1927) entered, the winners being as follows:

IndividualsNATIONAL HEALTH WINNERS CHOSEN

The National Health Contest is an important part of the 4-H Club program for the development of health. In most states health habits are advocated as a regular activity no matter in what 4-H project the boy or girl is entered. 1928 was the sixth consecutive year in which the national health scoring has been conducted by the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund in co-operation with the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, the Agricultural Colleges and the United States Department of Agriculture. Since the beginning of this feature carried on annually during the International Live Stock Exposition, a large number of states have inaugurated state health contests and in turn county extension agents have sponsored county health contests. The purpose of the county contest is to select the best boy and girl health representative for competition in the state contest, after which, if they be winners, they will compete with the other state champions at Chicago.

Thelma Svarstad of South Dakota, 16 years old, was rated the healthiest 4-H Club girl in the 1928 scoring. She is 5 ft. 3 inches in height, and weighed 122 pounds at the time of the contest.

The champion 4-H health boy representative was William Tobias, age 15, of Michigan. He scored 97.4, is 5 feet, 6 inches in height and weighed 130 pounds. In honor of their winnings the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work presented each with a gold medal.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON OFFERS CUPS

Sir Thomas Lipton offered trophies—one for the boy and one for the girl having the most outstanding project record in 4-H Club work in the United States during 1928. Due to the fact that the offer was made known rather late in the season it was necessary to accept only those records submitted by 4-H Club champions who were attending the National Club Congress. The awards were as follows:

Sybil Herring of Illinois.
John Jackson of Louisiana.

LEADERSHIP CONTEST IS PROMINENT

The National 4-H Leadership Contest conducted each year by the states in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture is one of the outstanding features of the National 4-H Club Congress. The high scoring 4-H Club boy and the high scoring 4-H Club girl in leadership work in the United States are each awarded a perpetual trophy provided by Mr. H. A. Moses through the International 4-H Training School. The 1928 winners were Miss Frances Reed, Indiana, and Edgar Grimes of Oregon.

Miss Reed enrolled in 4-H Club work in 1921 and has been a loyal member each successive year since. She has won many prizes on her exhibits. She has been in judging contests; health contests; demonstration work. She has given radio talks and public speeches; has written many club reports for newspapers and magazines. She has been a leader of 4-H Clubs for the past five years and developed demonstration and judging teams. In 1927 she secured 30 new 4-H Club members and in 1928 she secured 70. She has held many offices, taking a prominent part in civic affairs in Fountain County and as a result was named the National Girl Leadership Champion for 1928.

Edgar Grimes of Oregon first joined the 4-H Clubs in 1921 and has carried on a dairy calf project, also sheep, swine, poultry and dairy herd record-keeping projects. In the interim between 1921 and the fall of 1928 he appeared in 30 4-H demonstrations, 45 judging contests; gave two radio talks, 4 public speeches at the state fair, 8 at community entertainments and entered 60 exhibits at 8 fairs. He won many prizes including the Governor's offer of a $250 yearling heifer. During 1927 and 1928 the 4-H members in the clubs organized and lead by young Grimes made 274 exhibits at 4 fairs and won $1,750.00.

Other winners of the leadership contest were as follows: Second, Joe Stillwell of Washington, and Ina Fae Paul of Iowa; third, Douglas Curran of Wisconsin and Lois Starbuck of Kansas.

JUNIOR FEEDING CONTEST GRADUATES CHAMPIONS

By W. H. SMITH, Supt.

W. H. Smith
Supt.

One of the outstanding features of the 1928 International was its Junior Feeding Contest.

It was a dramatic episode, unprecedented in the annals of the exposition, when Clarence Goecke, twelve year old 4-H Club member of Marshall County, Iowa, with his pure bred Hereford steer, "Dick," trudged on up the line to the grand championship of the entire show, after having been awarded the purple on him in the Junior Feeding Contest.

State Champions Compete

Beef calves to the number of 117, most of them county, state or regional champions, passed in review before the judge, W. L. Blizard, of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College. His work was characterized by rapid decisions and careful discrimination of each entry. Interest in the contest naturally reached its peak when Walter Biggar, who judged the fat classes, pointed to young Goecke's Hereford as the grand champion steer of the exposition.

Further testimony of the skill that these younger feeders have attained is the phenomenal record of an eleven year old Iowa girl, Beulah Larson of Shelby County, whose two Shorthorn calves not only topped both the summer yearling and senior calf classes of their breed in the Junior Feeding Contest, but repeated the double victory in the open Shorthorn fat classes, where her entries met those of the leading colleges and most expert feeders in America.

The 1928 edition of the International was a great event for the young sons and daughters of the Hawkeye state.

Onward past the portals of the Junior Feeding Contest went the doddie junior yearling "Benny," fed, fitted and shown by fifteen year old Keith Collins of Liscomb, Iowa. Keith's calf was second in his class in the Junior Feeding Contest, being topped by another Iowa boy's Angus steer, that of Lawrence Aves of Melbourne. Young Collins, however, took advantage of the privilege of entering his calf in the open carcass class, where again colleges and professional feeders vie with one another for the top places. In this competition the entries are judged first on foot, and following slaughter the carcasses are scored.

Carcass Championship to Iowa Boy

Keith Collins' calf won his class in the steers on foot and was made champion. After slaughter, another judge selected the carcass of this steer first in its class and then made it the champion carcass of the contest. Sold later in the International meat auction, it brought $6.75 a pound at the bid of the McCaulley Market of Mt. Kisco, New York, or a total sum to this young feeder of $4,873.50. It is the second highest price ever paid for a steer carcass in the history of the exposition.

Thus did the 1928 International Junior Feeding Contest pave the way for at least three youngsters to attain as high achievements as are known to the live stock show world; and it is hoped that their victory will serve to inspire others of their ranks to return in years to come and if possible duplicate these splendid achievements.

Active competition was prevalent in the lamb feeding contest, with attention centered upon winners from Wisconsin and Indiana. H. L. Garrigus of Storrs, Connecticut, acted as judge of the exhibit of eleven pens. Walter Templeton of Evansville, Wisconsin, won with his pen of cross-breds. They were Southdown-Shropshire crosses. Brown, Battle Ground, Indiana, was second with his pure-bred Shropshire pen. The latter's lambs were just as fat and more uniform in finish than were the Templeton entries, but were a bit leggy and lacked some in quality by comparison to the blue ribbon pen.

In the barrow class there were eight shown with top honors going to Gerald Hitchings, McCoysburg, Indiana. Runners-up in this division were William Verkler, Cissna Park, Illinois, and Carl Duis, Milford, placing second and third respectively. W. W. Smith, of Purdue University, did the judging. Gerald Hitchings also won the championship in 1926 on a Chester White barrow.

In the calf showing contest excellent talent was demonstrated, with highest honors going to Ray Greathouse of Hindsboro, Illinois. Ray also won the medal for the best showmanship at the 1928 Illinois State Fair. He also exhibited the grand champion steer in the 1926 International Junior Feeding Contest.

GRAIN AND HAY SHOW

Crops Contest Honors Are Widespread

By THOMAS CONDON

Thos. Condon
Asst. Supt.

The 1928 International Grain and Hay Show was featured by the entries of many new exhibitors, some of whom figured prominently in the winnings. Awards were widely distributed. Special premiums were offered by different states for the first time, and the increased co-operation from crop improvement associations and various organizations in other states stimulated widespread interest.

The junior corn contest for this year was thrown open to youngsters other than those enrolled in 4-H club projects, resulting in such a large number of entries that this contest proved to be one of the high lights of the show.

Field beans were divided into different classes, which stimulated navy bean growers to bring out a strong exhibit. Entries in the small grain and seed contests were unusually heavy, especially the wheat classes, and the quality of the samples throughout the show was exceptionally high.

The International Crop Improvement Association for the first time sponsored an educational exhibit showing the scope of its activities, which was arranged under the capable direction of K. E. Beeson of Purdue University.

M. O. Pence of the same institution again assembled a large display of new crops developed by the various agricultural experiment stations. The champion competitive samples of the show were featured in exhibition cases in the corn room, together with the trophies and ribbons they had won.

Three States Share Championships

Interest in the corn classes was unusually keen as the judges sifted the entries down to the final winners. When the awards were announced it was found that the three most coveted honors had fallen to three different states. The grand championship for ten ear samples was awarded to an entry of Reid's Yellow Dent grown by Rome Workman of Waverly, Illinois. He is the second member of this well known Sangamon County family to hold the highly prized title of "Corn King." His father, J. W. Workman, was awarded the same honor at the 1921 International Grain and Hay Show. The reserve grand championship went to ten ears of Johnson County White corn exhibited by Fred W. Harting of Friendship, Ripley County, Indiana.

The champion single ear of corn, also of the Johnson County White variety, was shown by George Straub of Brunswick, Chariton County, Missouri, and the reserve champion single ear by John Lux of Bridgeport, Indiana.

NEW CROPS EXHIBIT

Nearly two hundred new varieties of farm crops representing introductions or developments of the experimental stations of the continent were contributed by the various institutions and assembled into an educational exhibit by Professor M. O. Pence for the Grain and Hay Show. Maps showed the location of the stations where the crops were originated and cards gave details concerning the possibilities of the different samples

Ralph Troyer, son of C. E. Troyer of La Fontaine, Indiana, led the junior corn exhibitors when his ten ears of Reid's Yellow Dent was awarded the championship in the junior corn show. A Missouri boy, Billie Kuhler of Dalton, won the reserve junior championship.

H. H. Kalmoe of Montevideo, Minnesota, was the winner of the championship for ten ears of corn in Region 1; Sam Carlson, Elk Point, South Dakota, was champion of Region 2; and Walter Russell, Indianola, Iowa, was champion of Region 3. The champion sample of Region 4 was later awarded the grand championship of the show. S. Wayne Patterson of China Grove, North Carolina, won the championship in Region 5; T. C. Dodd, Linn, Kansas, in Region 6; C. E. Troyer, La Fontaine, Indiana, in Region 7; and Fred W. Harting in Region 8. H. T. Draheim, Gotham, Wisconsin, was awarded first prize in the flint corn contest.

Australian Samples Compete

Spurred on by many liberal special prizes, the small grain and seed growers brought out a strong array of high-quality entries. With Australian samples competing with the pick of Canada and the United States, interest centered around the wheat contests and many close decisions were made before the winners were determined.

Repeating his feat of 1927, C. Edson Smith of Corvallis, Montana, again won the wheat championship with his sample of Montana 36 hard red winter wheat which weighed 66.7 pounds per bushel. Mr. Smith has been a consistent winner in the wheat classes of the past International Grain and Hay Shows, having had the reserve champion wheat sample for three years prior to 1927, as well as winning in other wheat classes. Mr. Smith also was awarded first in Durum wheat for the fourth time and was first in the soft red winter wheat class. Herman Trelle of Wembley, Peace River Country, Alberta, a former holder of championship honors, was awarded the reserve wheat championship on his sample of Marquis variety weighing 65.6 pounds.

L. E. Peterson of Victor, Mont., won the first premium in the white spring wheat class, and Arthur William Jewett, Jr., of Mason, Mich., was first in the white winter wheat.

C. Ivan Gustafson, Victor, Mont., won the championship in the oats class. His sample of Victory white oats, weighing 48 pounds per bushel, won over a sample weighing 48.1 pounds per bushel exhibited by J. F. Meinzer of La Jara, Colo., which was awarded the reserve championship. Mr. Gustafson also won first premium with his sample of rye.

Richard Kleinsmith of Onalaska, Wisconsin, was the oats winner in Region 2. Jay Lawrence of Coshocton, Ohio, won first on oats in Regions 3 and 7. V. E. Davis, San Jose, Illinois, was the winner in Regions 4 and 8, and G. B. Neely, Geary, Oklahoma, won first in Region 5. The champion sample exhibited by Mr. Gustafson was from Region 1, and the reserve champion sample came from Region 6. L. E. Peterson, Victor, Mont., won first in the early oats class.

H. A. Nelson and H. Ludeman of Fargo, North Dakota, were awarded first prize for flax in a large class.

The champion barley was two-rowed barley weighing 55.3 pounds per bushel exhibited by C. Ivan Gustafson of Victor, Mont. Mr. Gustafson's sample of six-rowed tre-bi type barley was awarded the reserve barley championship.

Fritz Struchen, Shoshone, Idaho, was the winner of the six-rowed barley class for Region 1. In the six-rowed barley class for Regions 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, H. T. Draheim of Gotham, Wis., won first prize. C. Edson Smith of Corvallis, Mont., won first in the any other variety barley.

A Kansas exhibitor, Lathrop W. Fielding of Manhattan, won the hay championship for the second consecutive time with his bale of alfalfa hay. The reserve hay championship was won by Arthur William Jewett, Jr., Mason, Michigan, on mixed timothy and clover hay.

The first prize for kafir was awarded to a sample shown by F. P. Freidline of Caney, Kansas. Elmer Ivins of Hydro, Oklahoma, exhibited the first prize sample of milo.

ALASKA EXHIBIT

For the first time Alaska was represented this year by an educational exhibit. It was in charge of Director H. W. Alberts of the Alaska Agricultural Experiment Stations and showed some of the work of the farthest north stations of the United States Department of Agriculture. Visitors were surprised at the quality of the crops exhibited which were produced under continuous daylight during the growing season and at temperatures much warmer than usually supposed.

INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION

Idaho Alfalfa Wins Purple

A large number of exceptionally high quality small seeds were shown. Earl Strosheim of Sterling, Idaho, won first in the western alfalfa seed class and also the championship. Harvey Vizina of Afton, Michigan, won first with his alfalfa seed in the eastern section. The first prize red clover seed was exhibited by Jim Whittington of Kuna, Idaho. A. Lougheed of Bowden, Alberta, was the winner of the timothy seed first premium. First prize for alsike clover seed was won by Frank Westfall of Aberdeen, Idaho, and William Norman of Crawford, Nebraska, was the winner of first prize in sweet clover seed.

The champion sample of soy beans was an excellent sample of yellow or greenish yellow soy beans from Regions 5 and 6 exhibited by C. S. Looney of Winchester, Tennessee. John C. Wilk, St. Louis, Michigan, was awarded the reserve championship with his sample of yellow or greenish yellow soy beans from Regions 1 and 2.

Winners in other classes of soy beans were as follows: Regions 1 and 2, any other varieties of soy beans, John C. Wilk, St. Louis, Michigan; Regions 5 and 6, any other varieties soy beans, C. S. Looney, Winchester, Tennessee; Regions 3, 4, 7 and 8, yellow or greenish yellow soy beans, D. C. Lawrence, Coshocton, Ohio; Regions 3, 4, 7 and 8, any other varieties of soy beans, C. E. Barnett, Princess Anne, Maryland.

W. S. Ray, Sparta, Tennessee, won the championship with his sample of mottled cow peas; and the reserve championship was awarded to J. E. Morrison, Sterling, Colorado, on his sample of black and white cow peas.

Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, Canada, was given the championship with his small yellow field peas. Wm. Darnbrough, Laura, Saskatchewan, Canada, was reserve champion with any other color field peas; and W. G. Gibson of Ladner, British Columbia, won first prize in the large yellow field pea class.

John C. Wilk of St. Louis, Michigan, won the championship for field beans with a navy variety sample; and also won the reserve championship with his any other variety field beans. The competition was unusually strong due to the new classification.

PURDUE UNIVERSITY'S CORN BREEDING EXHIBIT

Dr. G. N. Hoffer again presented an exhibit of some of his work in corn breeding. The theme of this exhibit was the increasing of corn yields by reducing barrenness in the crop. It was shown that low soil fertility, weedy fields, crowded plants and diseased susceptible strains increased barrenness. Samples of adapted strains and new corn hybrids were exhibited.

INTERCOLLEGIATE CROPS JUDGING CONTEST

A. C. Army
Supt.

Seven teams competing, the sixth International Crops Judging Contest was again won by a threesome from the North Carolina State College of Agriculture. This winning makes a total of four firsts won by students of this institution since the inception of the contest in 1923.

In so doing, North Carolina breaks its own high score of last year by 82.4 points. With a possible perfect score of 5,000, the three North Carolina students made 4,410.1, or 88.2 per cent perfect. The winning team comprised the two high individual scorers, E. H. Floyd and J. E. Zimmerman, and the fifth ranking man on individual score,

J. W. Davis. Particular credit is due W. H. Darst, of the agronomy department of the North Carolina College, for his skill in coaching successful teams for these competitions.

Both the first and second high men returned scores that broke the previous high mark made by an individual contestant. Floyd's record on a percentage basis was 89.6 per cent perfect, while his team mate, Zimmerman, was close to him with 89.4 per cent. The former high mark was 88.9 per cent, held by H. E. Myers of the Kansas State Agricultural College.

The coaches of the seven competing teams were C. S. Dorchester, Iowa; J. W. Zahnley, Kansas; H. R. Pettigrove, Michigan; T. H. Goodding, Nebraska; W. H. Darst, North Carolina; C. O. Cromer, Pennsylvania; and R. T. Stewart, Texas. The contest was again supervised by A. C. Army, agronomist at the College of Agriculture of the University of Minnesota.

THE UNION STOCK YARDS AND TRANSIT CO. OF CHICAGO TROPHY

A silver cup was provided by this organization for the first time in 1926 with the understanding that it shall become the permanent property of the team winning it three times. The Kansas team won this trophy in 1926 and the North Carolina team in 1927 and 1928.

One scholarship of $250 has been awarded each year to the institution from which the winning team comes. This fund is made available to a student in that school who would not otherwise be able to secure a scientific training in agriculture. In 1924 and 1926 this scholarship was won by Kansas; and in 1925, 1927 and 1928 by North Carolina.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITS COVER WIDE SCOPE

The number and scope of educational exhibits offered to visitors continued to increase this year and proved to be one of the most popular attractions of the exposition. The exhibits staged in the United States Department of Agriculture's hall, the Meat Shoppe, the Boys' and Girls' Club Building and the Wool Show are treated separately elsewhere in this Album.

In addition to these there were many educational exhibits located at various parts of the grounds and in the adjoining stock yard. The largest group of these occupied the walls surrounding the Grain and Hay Show display cases.

Corn Borer History Illustrated

As has been the custom since the European corn borer became a serious menace to the Corn Belt, the United States Department of Agriculture again sponsored a comprehensive exhibit devoted entirely to this insect and its control. The life history of the corn borer was shown graphically by means of small plots which illustrated the condition of that field during each stage in the life cycle of the insect. This demonstrated what could be done by the farmer each season to control it. Other material presented the spread of this pest in the United States and Canada and showed specimens of the insect and its work. Representatives of the European Corn Borer Control office at Toledo were in charge of this timely and valuable exhibit.

An elaborate exhibit prepared by the animal husbandry department of the University of Wisconsin presented the results of experiments in cross-breeding live stock. The type of animal and carcass produced in this work were shown. Especially interesting to visitors were the results of crossing beef bulls with dairy cows to produce baby beeves for the market.

The University of Missouri after an absence was again represented by an educational exhibit. Illuminated pictures and an automatic projector illustrated the various activities of the College of Agriculture and its extension work among farmers.

Alaska Exhibits Crops

For the first time Alaska was represented this year by an educational exhibit. It was in charge of Director H. W. Alberts of the Alaska Agricultural Experiment Stations and showed some of the work of the farthest north stations of the United States Department of Agriculture. Visitors were surprised at the quality of the crops exhibited which were produced under continuous daylight during the growing season and at temperatures much warmer than usually supposed.

The increasing importance of the barley crop was demonstrated by the Michigan State College exhibit under the direction of Professor H. C. Rather and R. H. Morrish. A map indicated the increase in barley acreage in the leading sections of the continent and samples of the best varieties for each region were displayed. The "Spartan" variety developed by the plant breeders at Michigan State College was given especial prominence. The exhibit brought out the possibilities of using barley as a substitute for corn in feeding live stock.

The University of Nebraska joined the list of institutions staging educational exhibits this year. A novel cabin constructed of bales of alfalfa hay and thatched with loose alfalfa called attention to the prominence of that crop in the state. Adjoining this building was a wall exhibit giving detailed information and illustrations of the federal grades of alfalfa hay and other interesting facts about the crop. Professor P. H. Stewart was in charge of the exhibit.

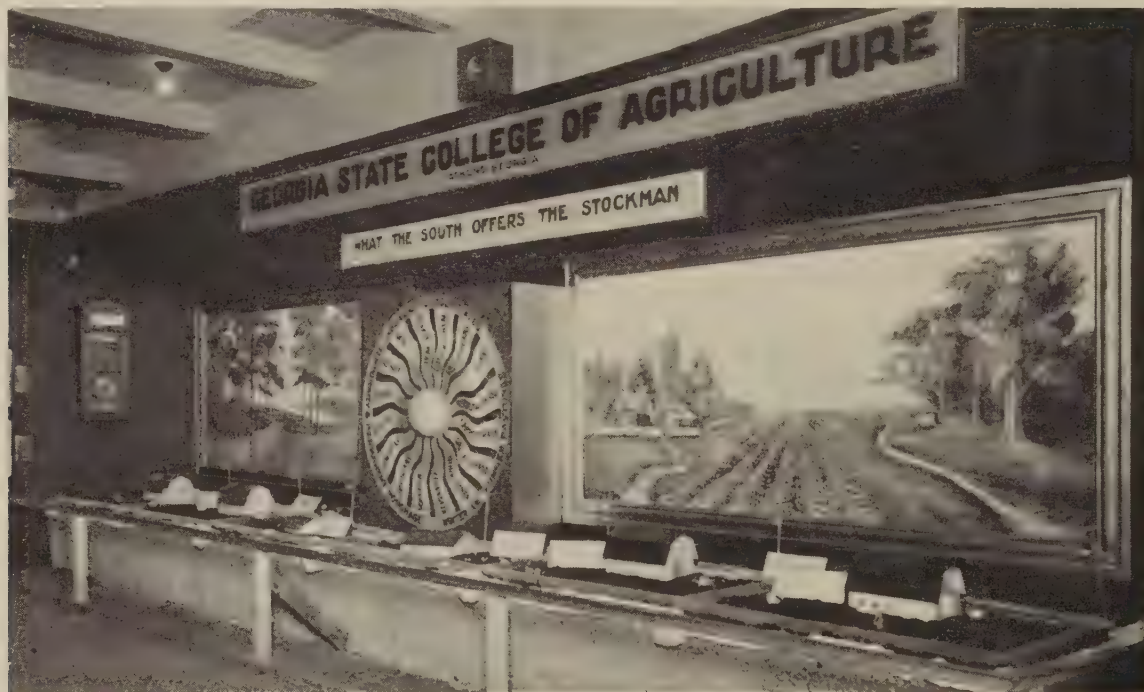

The University of Wyoming exhibit portrayed the work of the College of Agriculture in improving the products and developing the natural resources of that state. Commissioner of Agriculture L. T. Oldroyd, formerly a member of the Extension Service of the University, directed the preparation and exhibition of the material which included a wide range of products. A feature was the use of hydro-electric energy and irrigation for agricultural development.

The Georgia State College of Agriculture again presented one of its picturesque exhibits, attractively staged.

Professor Milton P. Jarnagin selected as his theme this year the advantages of raising live stock in the South. The exhibit showed that the South offered the stockman continuous pasturage, with abundant concentrates and roughages. Miniature farms visualized the animal husbandry of that section.

A CONTRIBUTION FROM THE SUNNY SOUTH

State Seed Commissioner C. B. Ahlson chose as the main theme of the Idaho exhibit this year the proper utilization of the potato crop, advocating that high grade table stock only be sent to market and the low grade stock and culls be fed to live stock. Samples were exhibited of some of the twenty-six agricultural products which are now being officially graded in that state.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO EXHIBIT

INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION

The main University of Illinois exhibit visualized the lessons learned from keeping accounts on the operations of 206 farms in East Central Illinois. It was found that the 35 most successful farms averaged $3,000 more net income per year than the 35 least successful. R. G. Morris, who had charge of the exhibit, graphically brought out the various factors which went to make up this difference by the use of moving motor vehicles carrying appropriate signs.

A supplemental exhibit from the University of Illinois gave facts concerning the feeding of scabby barley to cattle. Experimental lots of steers used in investigations at that institution were on display in the stock yard adjoining the carloads of show cattle.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS' EXTENSIVE EXHIBIT

In accordance with the present trend toward the production of a leaner type of hog in the United States, the Ontario Agricultural College contributed an exhibit showing the result of 35 years of breeding and feeding to produce the Canadian bacon hog. Actual sides of pork and cuts of meat were displayed to illustrate the development of the present day lean type from the old fatter type. Samples of the feeds used in the production of the modern hog were on display. This excellent exhibit was prepared and presented by Professor John Buchanan.

TIMELY EXHIBIT OF ONTARIO AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

The educational exhibit of Purdue University consisted of two separate subjects, one dealing with feeding live stock and the other with corn breeding. The former was contributed by the animal husbandry department and Professor J. W. Schwab was in charge of its display. This exhibit showed graphically that soy beans were more profitable than cottonseed meal for fattening steers when fed with corn silage, clover hay and corn.

Dr. G. N. Hoffer of Purdue again presented an exhibit of some of his work in corn breeding. The theme of this exhibit was the increasing of corn yields by reducing barrenness in the crop. It was shown that low soil fertility, weedy fields, crowded plants and diseased susceptible strains increased barrenness. Samples of adapted strains and new corn hybrids were exhibited.

PURDUE UNIVERSITY'S FEEDING EXHIBIT

Development of the Modern Steer

An unusual educational exhibit this year consisted of three steers roughly illustrating the changes which have taken place in the type of steer raised during the last half century. A large bullock five years of age and weighing 2600 lbs. was supposed to represent the animals exhibited at the first Chicago Fat Stock Show on the lake front in 1878. A three-year-old steer, weighing 2100 lbs., illustrated the type of steer shown at the early Internationals which started in 1900. The present day baby beef type was shown by a winner in the junior feeding contest which weighed 1170 lbs. at 19 months of age.

Field Museum Cooperates

The celebrated Field Museum of Chicago exhibited samples of the agricultural material loaned to schools by its extension service and invited visitors to view the many interesting exhibits connected with agriculture which were a part of its permanent collection.

Barberry Eradication Urged

A cooperative exhibit on barberry eradication was again staged under the direction of W. E. Leer, state leader of that campaign in Indiana. Farmers were shown how the common barberry spreads black stem rust to grain crops and were urged to kill this plant wherever found by treating it with salt or kerosene.

The International Crop Improvement Association was given prominence by the Exposition through an educational exhibit showing the work of the association which was prepared and presented by K. E. Beeson of Purdue, Chairman of the Exhibit Committee of the association.

The New Crops exhibit which was again brought together by Professor M. O. Pence of Purdue for the Exposition as a part of the Grain and Hay Show contained nearly two hundred new varieties of farm crops representing introductions or developments of the experimental stations of the United States and Canada. Maps indicated the location of the stations where the crops were originated and cards attached to the samples furnished details concerning their possibilities in those sections.

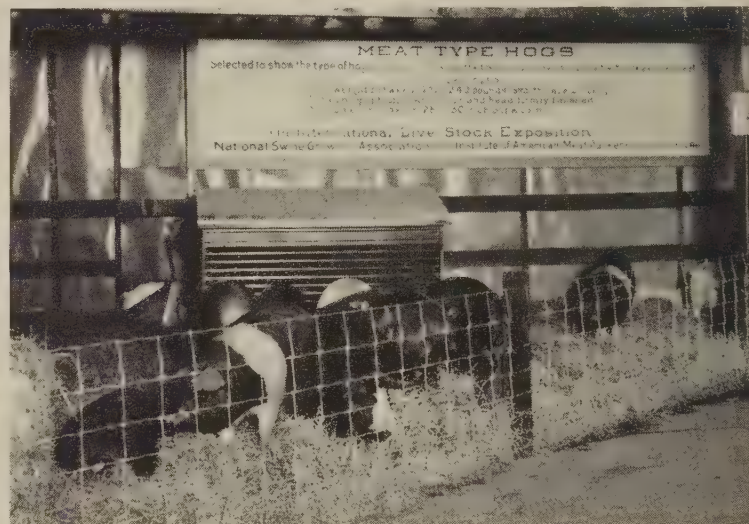

Scabby Barley Utilized

The most extensive educational exhibit was composed of different lots of cattle used by the University of Illinois in experimental work dealing with the feeding of scabby barley. These cattle were exhibited in the pens of the stock yard north of the carloads of fat show cattle. The experiment was unusually timely because of the fact that the largely increased acreage devoted to barley had been found in some sections to be badly infected with wheat scab so that it could not be sold for grain. It could not be fed satisfactorily to hogs or chickens and it was very desirable that a way be found to utilize it as a feed for cattle. The experiment showed that good results could be obtained by feeding ground barley in various rations as a substitute for corn. This exhibit was under the direction of Professor H. P. Rusk, head of the Animal Husbandry Department.

Exhibit "Market Type" Hogs

The International Live Stock Exposition, National Swine Growers' Association and Institute of American Meat Packers cooperated to stage an educational exhibit of the type of hog most nearly meeting the present trend of consumer demand for fresh pork and cured meat. These hogs weighed between 190 and 240 lbs. They had a small proportion of shoulder and head with smooth backs and bellies and were firmly finished. This type is suitable for making 28 to 30 inch pork loins.

"UNCLE SAM" PREPARES ANOTHER LESSON

Likening its educational exhibits to school room instruction, the United States Department of Agriculture returned to the International this year with a splendid display of varied subjects apropos to the uppermost features of the American farm and its products.

The "school room" was a spacious one adjoining the amphitheatre. There was no examination, nor tuition fee. No textbooks were needed. In fact educational booklets were given freely to those who attended this school, but no night-study work was to be done until the "student" returned to his farm, or his ranch, or his home in some city or town.

Both Young and Old Attend

In point of numbers attending, rapidity of instruction and other features, this school holds many records. During the seven years that it has been in existence at the International nearly three-quarters of a million people have attended it. In 1927 the enrollment in two of its sections alone was from 32 states and two foreign countries.

Its students range in age from 10 to well over 70. They are farmers, ranchers, meat dealers, college professors, county agents, scientists, home makers, hotel chefs, meat packers, and so on. It is a cosmopolitan student body whose members have one thing very much in common. They are all interested in farm animals. They either raise them, fatten them, buy them, sell them, eat them, or wear and use products made by them.

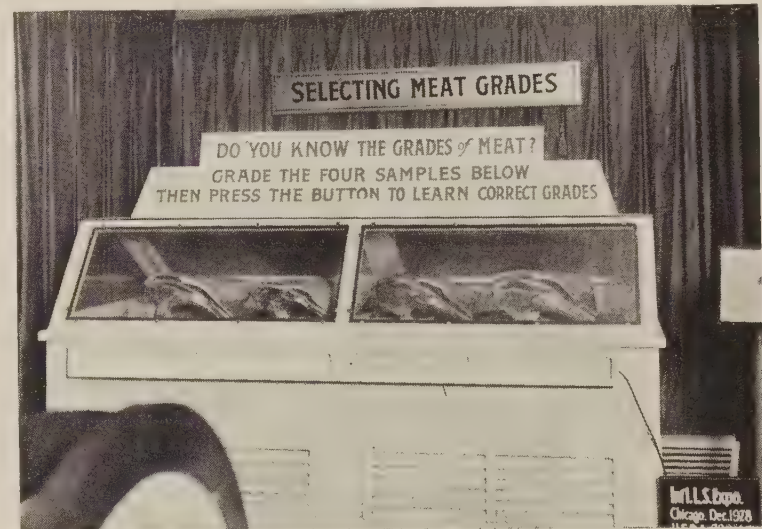

The course of instruction in this school was planned so that "he who runs may read." Each lesson was outlined on large charts or panels and pointedly illustrated with drawings, life sized models of livestock, or, in many cases, even with the animals themselves. Technical language and detailed scientific discussions were barred. Short lessons and shorter words were the rule. Such slogans as "A wormy pig will never get big" and "Growing animals make best use of feed—keep them growing" were used as "college yells." Motion pictures and phonographs were employed to avoid the monotony that can sometimes be charged against the ordinary lecture.

This year examinations were held to test the "meat knowledge" of the various classes. Housewives and cooks apparently profited most from this feature. Each person who took the test graded his own "papers" so it is assumed that nobody failed to get at least a passing mark.

Do You Know Your Meat?

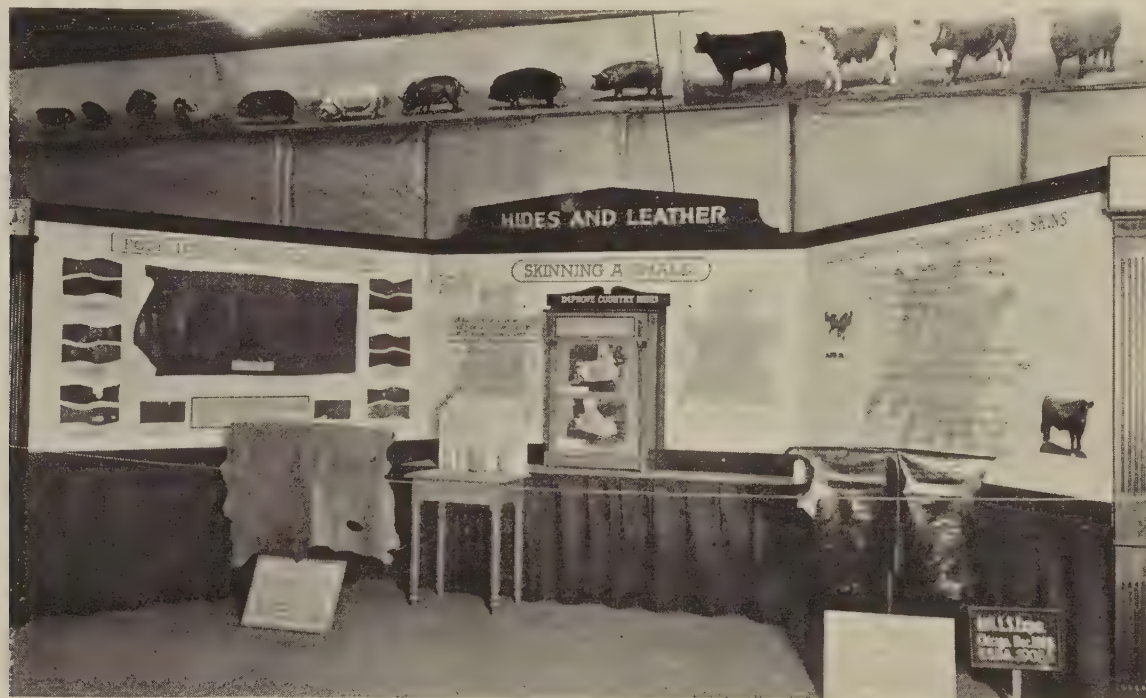

One part of the examination was neither written nor oral. A refrigerated glass show case contained four wholesale cuts of meat, just as they would be seen on the butcherer's block. Each is the same cut, but of different grades, having been taken from animals of different degrees of quality. The grades of choice, good, medium and common were all shown. The problem of the one who took the test was to determine what grade of meat each cut represented. When he had made his "guess" he pressed an electric button opposite the cut at which he was looking and an electric flash illuminated the correct grade of that cut on a panel above.

Another show case contained retail cuts of beef, pork, lamb and veal, without respect to the quality or grade. The problem here was to name the cut. It was expected, of course, that most people knew the difference in appearance between a slice of ham, for example, and a round steak of beef, or between a lamb chop and a veal chop. Yet considerable speculation exists as to whether that woman made a perfect score who once told her butcher that she did not wish to buy a T-bone steak because her family preferred porterhouse. It is believed that most people profited by a better acquaintance with the beautifully marbled appearance of a chuck roast of beef exhibited. This is a fore-quarter cut, much less expensive than the prime rib cut, but, when properly prepared, fully as delicious and probably a richer dish.

Another lesson of particular interest to swine raisers showed the results of the government's eight years' research in immunizing suckling pigs against hog cholera. Here it was pointed out that four out of every five deaths from swine diseases are caused by hog cholera; that there is no known cure for the disease once it has developed; that the treatment of pigs requires smaller dosage and less labor; and that the shorter period of susceptibility also diminishes danger of losses by the disease.

"The Brood Sow's Rebellion" Attracts

A lesson in the principles of modern swine sanitation was ingeniously illustrated with an "educated" hog which, by means of phonography, was heard to take its owner to task for the unsanitary condition of the hog lot in which it is kept. Like the many characters in Aesop's Fables, this talking sow pointed a moral. She called attention to the futility of farrowing litter after litter of some of the finest pigs only to see them fall victims to roundworms before they are weaned. Whereupon occurred the death in rapid succession of little Betsy and Percy, the only remaining members of her last litter. Their deaths are very untimely, but at the same time occur at quite an opportune moment to add effectiveness to their dam's plea for cleaner pastures. This the farmer, her caretaker, promises forthwith. In addition to its humorous angle this lesson presented an animated visualization of the simple but harmful journey of the roundworm through the body of swine from the time it is picked up as a tiny egg in a contaminated feed-lot by the pig, until it is returned to the soil as millions of eggs ready to spread further destruction.

Grass the Cheapest Feed

It has long been known that the livestock grower who makes the most and best use of grass is usually the one whose production costs are lowest. Two lessons were used to illustrate this axiom.

One outlined a year's successful business on a Northern Great Plains ranch. Fenced pastures enable the operator to control both breeding and grazing. The steers on this ranch are carried to long 3-year-olds for the reason that there is ample grazing to produce good grass-fat beef and to enable cattle to be wintered at small cost.

The other should have proven of interest to western stockmen, as it deals with the latest accepted principles of range management. The old method of turning stock on the range so early in the spring that the grass had not got a strong start of both root and leaf was extravagant in the long run. Each season saw such a range shrink in grazing value. If it was overgrazed in summer and in the fall also, erosion would set in and a barren waste quickly succeeded a productive range.

If, on the other hand, the range grasses are permitted a fair start in the spring, never grazed so closely that they can not quickly recuperate when the stock is removed and they are given a chance to grow again, and a few other simple rules observed, the quality of the range need never deteriorate.

Other features included the Government's live stock market news service and outlook reports—methods of controlling the cattle grub which causes great losses to cattlemen—predatory animal control—a feature devoted to the usefulness of the horse—a discussion of the production and care of hides and leather, and another on the fattening of beef calves.

At most times of the day and night "Uncle Sam's classroom" was filled with farmers, ranchers, housewives, cooks and ultimate consumers, all absorbing a knowledge of the science and art of better live stock production.

AGAIN Supreme Honors for EDELLYN

For the third year in succession the get of Browndale Count won first in the get-of-sire class in America's greatest live stock show, The International, a record equaled only by his own ancestors. For the second successive year a son of Browndale Count, Browndale Goldspur, was made Grand Champion Bull at this show.

Edellyn Myrtle and Edellyn Missie 3d, two daughters of Browndale Count, won more championships in 1928 than any other females.

Browndale Count Bulls and Females Win and Produce Winners.

Our fourth annual sale made the highest American Shorthorn average for 1928. Our 1927 sale likewise was the high average for that year.

We are concentrating the Browndale Count blood in our herd through Edellyn Brownwood, a great grandson, and Browndale Gift, out of a Browndale Count dam, and by a son of Browndale Count.

Imp. Bridgebank Warbond has developed into a real herd bull and is being used on Browndale Count heifers most successfully.

MODERN HEREFORDS FOR 30 YEARS CONTINUOUSLY

Herd Founded on the Blood of Don Carlos and Developed Along the Same Bloodlines

The first requirement in breeding cattle at HAZFORD PLACE is good individual excellence which fulfills, as near as possible, our ideal in type and beef animal conformation. The second requirement is proper performance; that is, all animals retained in our breeding herd must be good, regular producers of offspring which measures up to our standard of uniformly good individual excellence, including type, conformation, quality, color and markings. The blood of DON CARLOS is concentrated in HAZFORD PLACE Herefords. We adhere to that blood for the reason that over a period of 30 years our breeding cattle have yielded offspring which meets our ideals of beef animal merit. We invite breeders to visit HAZFORD PLACE, see our Hereford herd and study our plans of breeding, selecting and developing.

Our Aim!

To Breed the Kind of Seedstock That the Present Day Market Demands

That we have been fairly successful in our aim and that we are breeding the kind of cattle that the present day market demands is evidenced by the results of our three annual sales. Each year our sale average has been up amongst the top sale averages of the year.

Moreover Sni-A-Bar bred animals have, during the past several years, taken leading places at the majority of the great shows of the country.

Outstanding amongst the products of our herd have been the sons and daughters of our chief herd sire, Prentice—and that because of their breed character, good heads and straight, strong backs.

Discriminating breeders look for these qualities in their herd sires and that's why the "get of Prentice" has been in such demand and why we advise you to consult us regarding your next herd sire.
